SIX IN FAMILY ASPHYXIATED

HUSBAND, WIFE AND FOUR TOTS DIE WHEN GAS FLOODS HOME

Mine Cave-in Causes Broken Pipe at West Scranton.

OTHERS SAVED

Neighbors, Alarmed, Break Down Door, Finding Victims.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 29.—The entire family of Louis Desino, including himself, his wife and four small children was wiped out today by illuminating gas that flooded their home at West Scranton, a suburb, after a pipe had been broken by a mine cave-in. Another family was overcome at the same time, but police arrived in time with pulmotors to save them.

Rescuers Brave Flames.

The dead:

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Desino, and their children, Stanley, 5; Upola, 8; Margaret, 3, and a year-old daughter.

The bodies were found by a neighbor, Christopher Mellon. Mellon said he pounded on the front door and shouted to the occupants. When he was unable to arouse the Desinos, he called other neighbors and broke down the door.

The house was filled with the poisonous fumes and the rescuers had difficulty in entering. Placing handkerchiefs about their mouths and noses, they dashed into the house, opening the windows. Later they entered and found the six members of the family dead in their beds.

Police believe that one of the mine galleries that honeycomb the neighborhood caved in close to the surface and the main broke beneath the weight of the earth.

MUSHING DOGS RACE AGAINST DEATH TO NOME

"Jazz-Struck" Matricide May Know Her Fate Before Night

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—"Jazz-struck" Dorothy Ellingson, who murdered her mother so she could attend a dancing party, may know her fate today.

The 16-year-old girl was scheduled to appear before Juvenile Judge Frank Murasky, who will hear her case at a secret court session. Judge Murasky will decide whether Dorothy is to spend the rest of her girlhood, until she is 23, at the Girls' school in Ventura, Cal., or bound over to the superior court to stand trial for murder.

While she waited for her trip to detention home to appear before the juvenile judge, the mother-slayer amused herself with cross-word puzzles, one of the first words she spelled out was "rogue" and another was "lucky."

"I wonder if I will be lucky today," the red-headed daughter of "Jazzland" asked Policewoman Kathryn Sullivan.

The cases of three of Dorothy's night-life friends, Keith Lord, Harry Chinitz and Emil Kreuter, members of a jazz orchestra, come up today. The men are charged with contributing to the girl's delinquency.

GEORGE CREEL SCORES BULL'S EYE IN RAPID FIRE SPEECH

Chamber of Commerce Members Delighted by Editor-Author.

Former Chairman of Public Information is Honor Guest.

A plea for the preservation of the American home and more interest in politics and elections to safeguard American ideals and principles was voiced by George Creel, reporter, editor, magazine writer and chairman of the committee on public information during the World war, in an address on "Current Events and Public Men," delivered before 200 men and women, at the annual dinner meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, last evening.

He condemned congress, lauded the League of Nations, praised prohibition, discussed taxes, referred to the Ku Klux Klan and, in a humorous manner, touched up such prominent figures as President Coolidge, Henry Ford, W. J. Bryan, Senator La Follette, and other national characters. Frequently he was forced to stop to allow the audience to quiet down from laughter at his remarks.

Joseph Betz, president of the chamber, presided and introduced the speaker. J. W. Moore read the auditor's report showing the Chamber's assets to be approximately $2,900 at the close of last year.

Directors Are Elected

Attorney Blaine H. Cochran rendered two solo numbers. He and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Danks Cochran, also sang a duet. Music, during the dinner was furnished by Sayer's Premier Syncopators.

Lee C. Cooper announced the result of the Chamber of Commerce election for the board of directors. New members of the board, elected for terms of three years, include D. M. Ogilvie, F. B. Lawrence, C. W. Hellyer, C. C. Ashbaugh, John B. MacDonald, J. W. Moore and Malcolm W. Thompson. Reports of H. B. Barth, secretary of the Chamber, covering 24 pages, were distributed.

Woman's Lifeless Body is Found in Wellsville Home

The lifeless body of Blanch Marsh, 37 years old, formerely employed at the Riverview hotel, Third and Main streets, Wellsville, was found late last night in her room at a private residence in Buckeye avenue.

The body is being held in the John Haugh funeral home pending the arrival of Coroner Van Fossen tomororw morning.

Syrian woman, with whom the girl resided, found the body. The cause of death, it is said, has not been determined.

Through Arctic Night, With Temperatures Ranging as Low as 58 Degrees Below Zero, Champion Drivers and Picked Dog Teams Rush From Nenana With Life-Giving Serum.

DREAD DISEASE IS THREATENING TO WIPE OUT FAR NORTH COMMUNITY

Physicians Declare Many Lives Will be Saved if Messengers and Faithful Canines Triumph Over 1,000-mile Frozen Trail—Most of Afflicted are Eskimos, According to Reports.

Through the Arctic night, with temperatures ranging as low as 58 degrees below zero, champion drivers and their picked dog teams rushed from Nenana, on the Alaska railway, to Nome with precious life-giving serum to be used in the battle against diphtheria, which is threatening to wipe out the far north town.

A supply of anti-toxin furnished by Dr. J. B. Beeson, former Livington, Mont., and Seattle, Wash., physicians, now in Anchorage, was started from here yesterday to striken Nome, and physicians declared should men and dogs triumph over the frozen trail in the race against the dread disease they would arrive in Nome in time to save many lives.

"Wild Bill" Shannon, with nine crack dogs, made the first leg of the 1,000-mile journey to Nome in a single mush. Covering 60 miles, his time was valuable.

Many Drivers Volunteer

Waiting for Shannon at Tolovana was Jim Kalland, another of the north's famous mushers, with a fleet string of dogs and a light Yukon sled. Kalland will make the second lap of the "death race."

Wireless messages sent along the route to Nome brought a generous response today form scores of drivers who wanted to enter the lists for the suffering men, women and children of Nome. They were eager to risk their lives and dogs in the wild ride over the snow.

Bitter Storm Rages

Reports here showed many communities had been locked in the grip of a bitter storm for the past two weeks. Temperatures ranged around 50 below zero and falling below that in many places.

The greatest danger to the mushers with their life-giving cargo will be along the lower Yukon river, where Arctic blizzards sweep across a broad stretch of country, including Norton Bay, the spot where many brave men of the trail have passed out in the grip of the "ice gods."

Among the interested watchers of the race was Dr. Beeson, who gave the serum and who was the hero of another famous race with death when he rushed anti-toxin to Iditarod.

GIRL KIDNAPED AND GAGGED BY ROBBERS' BAND

Oklahoma City Maiden Is Suffering From Shock.

SOCIETY LEADER

Department Store Owner's Stepdaughter Surprises Burglars.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 29.—Believed to have been abducted from her home as she surprised robbers early this morning, Mary Ellen Mellon, 19, was found two hours later near University hospital, bound and gagged.

Miss Mellon is a step-daughter of Haliburton, large department store owner. She is prominent in younger society circles. She is no relation to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

The girl told police this morning that she heard a noise in the living room and went down stairs to investigate.

A few moments later, her mother and stepfather heard her scream "Mother ——!"

When they got down stairs, the girl had disappeared.

Benedum Elected Health Board Chief To Succeed Croxall

Attorney G. L. Brokaw, new member, qualified. T. Gerald Ryan was reappointed clerk for one year. Other appointments were Dr. John A. Fraser, health commissioner; D. J. McKeever, sanitary inspector, and R. E. Hill, assistant sanitary inspector and sealer of weights and measures.

Deaths exceeded births in East Liverpool during January, according to Mrs. Alice M. Davidson, deputy registrar of vital statistics. Deaths totaled 49, 33 males and 19 females, while births numbered 45, of which 20 were males and 25 females.

Dr. Fraser reported the following contagious diseases: Scarlet fever 1, tuberculosis 1, measles 1, mumps 1, and chicken pox 1. In the clinic nine new cases were reported, four others returned, six discharged and two discontinued. A total of 159 male and 26 female treatments were given.

Y. M. C. A. Committee Dinner for Pastors And Meet Workers

A dinner for pastors and others, who have been taking part in the Y. M. C. A. industrial meetings, will be served in the Y. M. C. A. at 6:15 o'clock Friday evening.

Dr. F. G. Fowler, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, will be the speaker. Rev. L. J. Davison will act as toastmaster.

The meeting is open to the public, but reservations should be made in advance at the Y. M. C. A. office.

100 Reservations Made for Kiwanis Club Dinner-Dance

Jules Brazil, a noted entertainer, of Toronto, Canada, will be the honor guest at a dinner-dance to be given by the members of the Kiwanis club for their wives and friends at the Country club at 6:15 o'cloc ktonight.

About 100 reservations for the affair have been made. A Wheeling orchestra will furnish music for the dance. Mr. Brazil will put on a 90-minute entertainment following the dinner.

Hubby Charges Wife for Auto Rides.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 29.—Clarys Stewart Ingersoll, stenographer, suing for divorce, testified in the court of domestic relations late Wednesday that John W. Ingersoll, her husband, took her to and from work in his automobile, but charged her ten cents a trip. Judge Hoffman will give his decision later.

Pottery Workers Will Attend Church Of Christ Tonight

A large delegation of pottery workers will attend the Lockhart revival service at the First Church of Christ, corner Fourth and College streets, tonight. The evangelist will discuss "Earthen Vessels." A contingent of church people from Toronto will also be present.

Many persons were baptized at last night's service. Dr. Lockhart used the subject "The New Birth" for his sermon. Music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Harbinson.

In his discourse, the evangelist said:

"Jesus says, 'Ye must be born again.' He did not say that if you liked the people in the church and all the doctrines taught agreed with your way of thinking that you might, if it suited you, be born again. But he said, 'Ye must!'"

U. S. TRAINING FOR WAR VETS IS NEAR CLOSE

Thirty-one Thousand Men in Schools and Plants Today.

COST $6,300 EACH

Trainees Have Been Instructed in 400 Vocations.

BY ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Government training of veretans of the World War, whose wounds or disabilities incapaciated them for pre-war occupations, is drawing rapidly to a close.

The United States veterans' bureau announced today that by June 30, the last day upon which ex-soldiers may enter vocational training, approximately 30,000 men will be under instruction. All trainees must complete their course by June 30, 1926.

The government has spent $591,489,000 in the training of ex-soldiers or an average cost of $6,300 for each man.

Illiterates Among Enrolled

About 31,000 veterans are in government and private schools and under training in industrial and commercial plants today. A comparatively small number will be accepted prior to June 30, while nearly half of the present trainees will be rehabilitated in the next five months, according to the veterans' bureau.

Trainees have been instructed in more than 400 vocations. About half of them studied in the industrial trades while from 7,000 to 8,000 studied law, medicine or other professional work.

Veterans' bureau officials estimated that less than 10 per cent of the veterans who applied for training were illiterate at their discharge from the army. A large number of the illiterates have been furnished the rudiments of a common school education by the government.

Disabled Stage "Comeback."

The number of men in training has been declining rapidly since the peak of 109,000 in April, 1922. A comparatively few men will be in training when the system is abolished in June, 1926, officials said.

Tokio Faces Water Famine; Lightless City is Forecast

TOKIO, Jan. 29.—Tokio today faced a great water famine.

A lightless city was forecast within the near future unless heavy rains were received.

Ganna Walska Wins Plaudits in Grand Opera Debut Abroad

NICE, Jan. 29.—Ganna Walska looked forward today to a triumphal opera tour of Europe with an optimism spurred by her modified success on the Riveria last night.

"I was slightly nervous during the first act," she said, "but on the whole I am pleased with the outcome. I intend to continue my music and expect to sing in France and probably in Germany and Czecho-Slovakia this summer.

Walska, who is Mrs. Harold McCormick in private life, faced an opera house packed with Americans and British, many of whom had motored from neighboring resorts to attend her debut here in "Madame Butterfly."

She seemed badly stage frightened in the first act and there were loud remarks and catcalls from the audience but she overcame her nervousness in the second and third acts and received sympathetic applause.

Argentine Flyer Hops Off to Osaka, Resuming World Tour

CHINESE LEADER IS IMPROVING

PEKING, Jan. 29.—Dr. Sun Yet Sen, Chinese dictator, operated on for liver trouble at the American Rockefeller hospital here, passed a comfortable night, a hospital bulletin said today.

His pulse was 108 and his temperature almost normal. The patient was announced as free from pain and taking nourishment. The surgical wound was reported "progressing satisfactorily."

Miami, Fla., Man Arrested on Charge Of Slaying Kansan

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 29.—A warrant charging Andrew Osthoff, of Kansas City, with murder in connection with the slaying here a week ago of Morris L. Simon, also of Kansas City, was served here today by Sheriff Chase.

S. S. KRESGE STOCK JUMPS 50 POINTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The common stock of S. S. Kresge jumped 50 points to 519 in the New York stock market today, following announcement that the directors had declared a stock dividend of 50 per cent. They also declared a cash dividend of $2 a share on the common stock and $1.75 on the preferred, both payable April 1 to stockholders of record March 19.

Clarence McNutt, 28, Dies in Hospital Following Operation

Ill less than two weeks, he was removed to the hospital last night.

He was born here. During recent years he has been associated with his father, H. F. McNutt, of the McNutt Printing company, Market street job printer. Two years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Ruth Scott. He was a member of the Elks lodge and the First Presbyterian church.

Besides his wife and father, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Sara McNutt, and two brothers, Harold and James, all of this city.

Love Spurned, Yale Man Wounds Widow And Kills Himself

BRIDGEPORT, W. Va., Jan. 29. — After her repeated refusals to marry him, Neeson Woods, 29, of Philippi W. Va., shot and probably fatally wounded Mrs. George Warder, 23-year-old widow, at her brother's home here today, and then killed himself by firing the remaining bullets in his revolver into his own body.

Woods, a Yale university student, and son of the late J. E. Woods, prominent West Virginia attorney, had been desperately infatuated with the charming young widow for some time, but it is believed her parents and other kinfolk opposed the match.

AKRON BREAD PRICES TO SOAR

AKRON, Jan. 29.—On the plea that the recent advance in wheat quotations in Chicago make it necessary, Akron bakers announced today that bread prices would go up here February 1. Prices of other baked goods also may go up Monday morning. The increase for bread will be one and two cents on each loaf.

Inn Cabaret Owner Can't Tell Grandma From Modern Flapper

CINCINNATI, Jan. 29.—"You can't tell the grandmothers from the flappers nowadays," complained John Holland, proprietor of Peacock Inn cabaret, who was fined $200 and costs late Wednesday in juvenile court, for allowing girls under 17 to enter his place. The girls in question were members of a party entertained at the inn by Ruth Remus, daughter of George Remus, "king of the bootleggers," now serving sentence in Atlanta penitentiary.

GIRL IS KILLED AS AUTO SKIDS

WESTERVILLE, O., Jan. 29.—Instant death was the fate of 18-year-old Izabelle Watt, today when the auto in which she was riding skidded on the three C's highway, three miles north of here, and hit a telephone pole. Arthur Goff, 20, her companion, escaped with slight injuries. Miss Watt lived near Galena. The accident, due to icy highway, occurred when effort was made to go around a buggy driven by Riley Cicil, living near here.

PRICE OF WHEAT TAKES DECLINE

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Following its spectacular rise yesterday, May wheat opened at $2.02¾ on the board of trade today, a drop of 2¼ cents from its closing price yesterday.

TWENTY MINUTES BEHIND SCENES AT WASHINGTON, D. C., AND PARIS WITH MAN WHO KNOWS

Approximately 200 members and guests of the Chamber of Commerce were taken behind scenes of the exciting war-time events in Washington and Paris for 20 minutes last night by a man who was in a position to know who's who and what's what.

The guide was George Creel, reporter, editor, magazine writer and humorist, who was chairman of the committee on public information from 1917 to 1919.

Creel organized and directed the bureau established by Woodrow Wilson to maintain the morale of the American people and the allies and drive home to the peoples of enemy countries the real purpose of Uncle Sam in casting his lot with France, Great Britain, Belgium and other European nations against German autocracy.

Rapid Fire of Questions.

Granting the request of several guests, Creel answered a rapid fire of questions pertaining to the Wilson administration, the Paris conference and some of the war period rumors, expressed his opinion of certain American and European statesmen, and gave a first hand "size up" of other men who are or have been in the public eye.

The feature followed his address on "Current Events and Public Men."

The questions, which were read by T. T. Jones, and the answers given by Creel, follow:

Why Wood Didn't Go To Europe.

Q.—What was the real reason General Wood was not permitted to go to Europe during the World war?

A.—Because Pershing did not want him over there at any price. When General Pershing was sent overseas to command the American forces, he was given a promise by the war department that no one would be sent across without his approval. And General Wood's name was not on the list of officers Pershing sent back.

Q.—Did those in the Paris conference consider Lloyd George or Clemenceau the greater man?

A.—Clemenceau was by far the outstanding figure at the conference. He had a conviction and stood for that conviction—that Germany must pay and that France must be secured. Lloyd George was on one side one day and on the opposite side the next day. One could never tell where he stood.

Q.—What influence will W. J. Bryan have in Democracy from now on?

A.—About as much as he had in the last Democratic convention and campaign.

Wilson Was Sincere.

Q.—Was President Wilson sincere in trying to keep us out of war?

A.—In the campaign of 1916, the campaign cry, "he kept us out of war," was used by many of the newspapers, yet in every speech which Wilson made in that campaign he announced that if certain things came to happen United States would be compelled to enter the World war. He was sincere in his attempt to keep the United States neutral in the European conflict.

Q.—Why did Wilson change his attitude on war so quickly after the 1916 election?

A.—My reply to the other question answers that also.

Q.—Who really is Mrs. Peck and how much was she involved with Woodrow Wilson?

A.—Mrs. Peck was simply a delightful woman whom President Wilson met in Bermuda. In 1916 when every channel of sewage was being used to spread lies against the president her name was seized upon to give color to the lies. One story was that she had certain letters from President Wilson which she was paid $75,000 for suppressing. The Jews were reported to have raised this $75,000 and in payment for this gift President Wilson was said to have appointed Louis Brandeis, a Jew, to the supreme court bench. All lies! Now Mrs. Peck has sold her friendship by writing a series of articles for a Chicago magazine.

Q. How does the loss in registered mail compare with registry fees taken in? R. J.

A. The Postoffice Department says that the total amount paid for the registry of articles during the fiscal year 1924, was $83,189,290. The number of claims for losses as shown by the annual report was $5,313. Loss of registered mails is generally due to robbery, train wrecks, etc., and not to the careless handling of mail.

Q. What is fed to a boa constrictor in a zoo? W. F. B.

A. The National Zoological Park in Washington has a boa constrictor and it is fed a live young pig about once in two months.

Q. Are glacial deposits found in Indiana? W. R. E.

A. The Geological Survey says that there has been very little glacial deposit found in Indiana. Occurrence of mineral in drift have been located around Martinsville, Indiana.

Q. Can a person lend an ex-soldier money, and be named as beneficiary on his Adjusted Compensation certificate? E. C.

A. A person might lend a veteran money with the provision that he be named beneficiary in his Adjusted Compensation Certificate. However, in the event that the veteran decides to change the beneficiary, the lender could not hold him to his word, since such transaction is not legal under the Adjusted Compensation act.

Q. Do some atoms have both negative and positive electrons? H. R.

A. The Bureau of Standards says that all atoms are made up of positive nuclei and negative electrons. The removal of an electron gives the atom an apparent positive charge.

Q. Please tell me the author of an old book, "The Adventures of Lady Ursula." A. C. H.

A. "The Adventures of Lady Ursula" is the name of a comedy in four acts by Anthony Hope. It was published in book form by R. H. Russell of New York city in 1898.

Q. How did the saying, "he isn't worth his salt," originate? A. B. C.

A. This expression found its origin in the fact that Roman soldiers were paid in salt rather than with money.

Q. Why is milk pasteurized? A. A. W.

A. The purpose of pasteurization of milk is to kill the harmful bacteria which milk contains. It has been found that when milk is heated to a temperature of 145 degrees F. and sustained at that point for 30 minutes, the disease germs causing organisms are killed. If the milk is then immediately chilled and further contamination is prevented, it can no longer be considered dangerous to health. Milk which has been adequately pasteurized is, therefore, to be regarded as the safest milk which one can consume.

Q. What part of the men in our army during the World war were illiterate? E. H. B.

A. The wholly illiterate of the whole army was approximately 311,000; relatively illiterate, 712,000, making a total illiterate class of 1,023,000 and a literate class of 3,067,000.

Q. Where did the Continental Congress meet while the English occupied Philadelphia in 1777? C. R. O. C.

A. The Continental Congress sat in in Lancaster while Philadelphia was occupied by the English. It was the capital of the state from 1799 to 1812.

Q. Where was the trial of Aaron Burr held? J. McG.

A. It was held in the hall of the House of Delegates in the capitol at Richmond, Virginia.

Q. What battle was it in which Mollie Pitcher took the place of her husband?—R. L. C.

A. The battle in which Mollie Pitcher is said to have taken her husband's place was the battle of Monmouth.

Q. Whre was the first Indian school in Arizona?—C. B.

A. It was at San Tan. This was a government day school opened for Pima Indian children on the reservation, February 15, 1871.

Q. In the footnotes of the "Arabian Nights" is frequently given dates as being so many years after "The Flight." What is referred to?—J. M. W.

A. The flight referred to is the departure of Mohammed from Mecca to Medina to escape persecution. This is the starting point of the Mohammedan era, although the exact day of departure was uncertain.

Q. What larguage is spoken by the people of Siam?—E. F. W.

A. Siamese is spoken throughout central Siam, in all parts of the south except Patani Montoa, in northern Siam along the river banks as far up as the confines of the Korat Monton. In Patani the common language is Malay, while in the upper parts of the north the prevailing language is Lao. The language of the hill tribes include the following: Shan; Khmer; Muhso; Lishaw; Yao; Kuwi or Kivi; Kaw; Meao; Kache; Lawa; Yuan; Mon; Lu; Sam-Sam; Sakai; Karien.

Q. Where is the monument to "An Amiable Child?"—M. F. H.

A Rider's Guide to New York City says: "Between Claremont and Grant's tomb is a child's grave marked by a tombstone, bearing the quaint inscription: 'Erected to the memory of an amiable child, St. Clair Pollock, died 15th of July, 1797, in the fifth year of his age. Man that is born of woman is of few years, and full of trouble. He cometh like a flower and is cut down; he fleeth also as a shadow and continueth not.' The child was the nephew of George Pollock, a New York merchant, who at one time owned Claremont.

Q. What is the School of Military Cookery?—D. E. V.

A. This is an institution at Aldershot. The purpose is the training of men of the regular army militia, imperial yeomanry and volunteer force, as practical cooks.

Dentists' Prescription Whitens Dark Teeth Instantly—At Home

Now smokers and others whose teeth are dull, spotty, yellowish and stained can quickly make their teeth flashing white and lustrous right at home, and for a small cost. This is through a prescription of two prominent dentists which works in a new and entirely safe way. Consists of a mild harmless liquid and special paste. Just apply few drops of liquid to teeth. This softens stains. Then use paste. This gently removes softened stains. Dark, discolored, yellowish teeth become beautifully white and clear—often in a few minutes. Results of first application will very likely amaze you. This prescription is sold under the name Bicarbodent Combination. No effect on enamel. Safe to use. GAS FROM AUTOS CLAIMS HEAVY TOLL OF LIVES

Carbon Monoxide Dangers Cited by Physician.

GIVES SYMPTOMS

Urges Law to Force Motor Exhausts to Point Upward.

PHILADELPHIA — Lives are shortened by gas-laden air, according to Dr. Edward A. Shumway, of Philadelphia, in commenting on how poisonous carbon monoxide gas from automobiles fills the streets of cities in the United States.

Many cases of chronic monoxide poisoning, he said, can be traced to the automobile traffic in large cities.

"The carbon monoxide," continued Dr. Shumway, "is without odor, color or taste, and its presence is therefore frequently unsuspected. The gas, when once in the human system, stops the work of oxygen in the body.

"The most common symptoms, aside from headaches and nausea, are loss of appetite, anaemia and a reduction of the number of red blood cells, dizziness, general fatigue, dryness of the throat, irritation, watering of the eyes, and lack of mental concentration. Later changes in the mental state may occur, such as loss of will power, lack of decision, restlessness, irritability on the slightest discomfort and insomnia.

"Many examinations of the air have been made, in connection with calculations of the amount of carbon monoxide which can safely be breathed. This was done in drawing up plans for the construction of the vehicular traffic tube connecting New York city and New Jersey. The tests showed automobiles contain from 4 to 12 per cent of carbon monoxide."

Dr. Shumway suggested that legislation be enacted to change the position of the automobile exhaust. Make a law, he said, that will require an additional license fee from car owners having their exhaust pipes at the bottom of their cars, and thereby force automobile companies to manufacture machines with exhaust pipes sticking upward, so the poisonous gases would be carried off.

One hundred billion cigarettes will be smoked each year within a short time, says a tobacco expert.

P. W. Collins Urges Peace, Scores Bigotry, Intolerance

Boston Speaker Flays Communism and Urges Adherence to Constitution of United States and Ten Commandments.

Addressing several hundred persons last night in the high school auditorium, Peter W. Collins, of Boston, industrial and economic expert, laid down principles for restoration of peace and harmony in the country and decried religious bigotry and intolerance as opposed to the constitution of the United States and the ten commandments.

He flayed Communism as an attempt to rock the universe from its foundations, pointed out remedies for industrial and economic ills and suggested the establishment of non-partisan, non-political free bureaus across the country as the solution to the great problem of unemployment.

Mr. Collins spoke under the auspices of Wellsville council of the Knights of Columbus. Music was provided by Pearch's Night Hawk orchestra.

He said, in part:

"Life in general is in a progressive age, but, too, it is an age of isms—Communism, bolshevism, socialism, I. W. W. ism and others equally insidious and of which the public, the plain people, should and must be wary.

"Among these isms may be listed Communism as one of the most dangerous forces at work against the government and people of the United States. It is sometimes discussed in the language of the school room, academic Communism, or in the terms of 'evolutionary conception of the universe,' which, plainly told, means simply Communism's own view.

"This high flowing language, not understood by the masses of the plain people, is misleading and they don't know what they are following. On the other side is the street corner variety of Communism, exemplified by the radical agitator whose work is making bitter enemies and misunderstandings among the plain people, creating strife, discord and dissension, and whose object is the use of the masses as a crowbar to pry the universe from its present stable foundation.

"Communism pretends it is a doctrine for the people, of the people and by the people. But it did not come from the masses because the plain people inherently are spiritual and have the love of God in their hearts. Communism is simply the twentieth century nickname for the old spirit of radicalism.

"Some people do not think there is Communism in the United States. But I know there are 500 extreme red papers in the United States of which 300 are printed in foreign countries and shipped in to people in our own. So the subject becomes important to discuss.

"The doctrine of Communism does not come from the masses. As an example, the brutal rulers of Russia have actually murdered 1,735,000 persons because they refused to stop teaching the belief of God. The plain people had the love of God. The movement is misleading. It is dangerous to home, family, religion and civilization.

"Eighty per cent of those following the movement don't know what they are following. The air of mystery, the secret meetings, the regalia and trappings, symbolism and emotional, all lend enchantment to its operations which draw unsuspecting followers into its folds.

"Carl Marks, the leader of Communism, uses the language of the university in his preachings. This is one belief and there is another. One of the two, and one only, must be right. The right one is the Theistic belief, the true belief, that God created the world. Radicals deny the existence of a Supreme Being, because, they say they never saw him. Yet they do not deny that there once existed a George Washington, a Napoleon, and other great figures of history. They never saw any of these men, but yet they accept them on faith, on belief. But they won't accept the belief of the Supreme Designer. The belief in God is immutable and will never die. Communism's belief repudiates it. Communism's denial strikes at the very roots of civilization.

"The very first commandment of the ten handed down by Christ to Moses on Mt. Sinai opposes Communism and Communism opposes it, for Communism denies God. 'Love thy neighbor as thyself' and 'thou shalt not steal'—both are opposed to Communism. Russia is trying to do away with private ownership of property. Private property is a material right and a denial of that right is a denial of the commandment.

"The Ten Commandments need no apology and there should be instilled into the hearts of the people a recognition of the necessity of the commandments for the evils of the world.

"The ten commandments will be doing business when the grass is growing over the graves of bigotry and intolerance.

"What's wrong with the world? The answer might be expressed in four words—a lack of harmony.

"Nature is in harmony in everything. Men are not. Today they are inventing deadly gasses and instruments of warfare. There are those who stir up race hatred. They are makers of enemies.

"From the standpoint of industrialism—both capital and labor have rights, and it should be the duty of people to recognize those rights. But the human being is of more value than the dollar and should be protected. Lack of protection, dangerous machinery, lack of health devices, safety and comfort are evils against the working man and woman.

"The evil of unemployment is an-

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

THURSDAY, JANUARY 29, 1925.

A Brilliant Entertainer

George Creel, of New York, added 175 boosters to his already large roll, left no doubt in their minds as to why the late Woodrow Wilson selected him as the chairman of the committee on public information during the World war, and, incidentally, gave his hearers the benefit of his knowledge of the scenes back-stage during the exciting days before and after the war in a splendid two-hour address at the annual dinner-meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

Interspersing his talk on "Current Events and Public Men" with humor that struck the responsive chords in the hearts of an appreciative audience of men and women, representatives of labor as well as the business and professional world, the newspaperman, in a style characteristic of the writer and observer, was the headliner of the program.

He is an entertainer in every sense of the term. Possessing a delivery that is pleasing, keen wit and a personality that appeals, and fortified by 25 years' experience as a reporter, editor and magazine writer as well as nearly two years as chief of the governmental committee that played an important role in maintaining the morale of the American people and the Allies and shattering the illusions of their enemies in the 1914-18 holocaust, he held his hearers from the moment of his introduction by Joseph Betz, president of the chamber.

And adding punch to his program, he consented to answer a series of questions pertaining to his opinions of wartime events, cabinet officers and European statesmen that were uppermost in the minds of the people who had the privilege of sitting at the festive board.

Through the courtesy of the Chamber of Commerce and the fine-tooth system used by Secretary H. B. Barth in his selection of speakers for the civic body's meetings, East Liverpool has had the pleasure in recent years of hearing Congressman Charles Knight, of Akron; the late Thomas W. Morris, former East Liverpool newspaper editor and later Associated Press representative in Pittsburgh, New York and London; Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and others whose names are known wherever the printed word is read. And last night, another name was appended to the list.

George Creel's visit was a treat that will linger long in the memory of Chamber of Commerce members and their friends.

Running

A distinguished American editor scoffs at the speed of Nurmi, the great Finnish runner, because a motor can go faster and keep it up longer. He thinks Nurmi's remarkable racing in New York is of very little use.

This is a shallow view of the matter, inspired by undue zeal for mechanical progress. Such an argument is sufficiently answered by the thrill that comes to every normal human being when he sees a magnificent athletic feat or reads an adequate account of one. It is enthusiasm that pushes humanity ahead, and there is no enthusiasm in a gas engine, though a certain kind of enthusiasm can make or use one. A steel piston moving up and down within a steel cylinder, under the impact of a gasoline explosion, is a poor substitute for a human heart, as far as real values are concerned.

The human race at its best is athletic. This is not saying that athletics is the best thing about the human race, but that periods of highest achievement seem inseparable from athletic activity and admiration for physical prowess. Genuine vigor of mind and soul seem to require vigor of body. History shows that as men degenerate physically, they start degenerating morally and mentally, too.

Body and soul, somehow, go together, upholding and reflecting each other. So the whole civilized world instinctively turns from its dry scientific triumphs to draw new force and inspiration from a fine exhibition of this ensouled machine we call the human body.

Haskin Letter

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

WHY STONE WAS OPPOSED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The supreme court of the United States has long and interesting annals, but perhaps one of the most curious chapters to be added will be that concerning the appointment of Harlan Fisk Stone, the latest of the president's nominations to that tribunal. What attaches especial interest to the nomination of Mr. Stone is that he has been vigorously opposed for what might be called inverted reasons.

There have been several occasions in the past when jurists, upon being nominated by the president for this high position, have seen their confirmation by the senate meet with opposition, but in each previous case the reason has consisted chiefly of political or similar objection to the nominee's serving on the bench. In the case of Mr. Stone, one of the principal objections was, that in some quarters he was considered too well qualified for the position he held before his promotion to be permitted to leave it.

In April, 1924, Mr. Stone, then serving as the dean of the law school of Columbia university at New York, was called into the cabinet at attorney general of the United States. He immediately set about the discharge of his public functions in so vigorous and practical a fashion that within a few months he was acclaimed as one of the most efficient attorney generals of the twentieth century. The result has been that now, upon his promotion to the supreme court, the people interested in seeing the prosecutions he started carried through to a conclusion and eager to have his services as leading prosecutor of the nation continue, have objected to his being taken out of the job.

When nominations are sent to the senate they are referred by that body to an appropriate committee for approval or disapproval. The record of the nominee is investigated, whether he be nominated for postmaster, a cabinet member or a justice of the supreme court. The committee reports its findings back to the senate and the senate almost invariably acts upon the committee's recommendations. In nearly all cases, the recommendations are favorable. It is relatively rare that the senate refuses to confirm a nomination and then only for the very best of reasons.

The nomination of Attorney General Stone was referred to the senate committee on the judiciary. This body proceeded to hear persons who had anything to say concerning the nominee.

OPPOSED HIS PROMOTION

Several matters came up before the committee, but the one of special interest was the suggestion that Mr. Stone's confirmation be withheld on the ground that he could best serve the nation as attorney general. It was made plain to the committee that the objections to his appointment did not spring from any lack of confidence in his ability to serve as an associate justice of the supreme court.

On the contrary, the highest commendation of his abilities as a jurist was expressed. But, it was urged, there are others capable of serving as judges while there has been no one for some years who has seemed to be so capable of acting as attorney general. It was suggested that the committee entertain the idea of reporting back to the senate that it would be advisable to retain the services of Mr. Stone in his present capacity, postponing for a while, at least, his elevation to the bench.

The committee refused to take this view of the matter and unanimously recommended to the senate that Mr. Stone's nomination be confirmed. The suggestions placed before the body, however, were recognized as a high tribute to Mr. Stone's character and ability as an attorney general.

A review of Attorney General Stone's record gives some color to the plea that he was an official of unusual vigor. In nine or ten months of incumbency he brought a surprising number of important anti-trust suits and initiated many investigations under the Sherman law. He was more active in bringing these proceedings, seeking to suppress monopoly in the interest of the public, than any attorney general in recent years, it is said.

FOUGHT THE GASOLINE TRUST

Early in his term he brought a Sherman law action against the alleged gasoline trust, filing a suit at Chicago directed at the combination claimed to exist among refiners of gasoline. The Standard Oil company and a score of others were named as defendants. Shortly thereafter he filed a suit against the International Harvester company from which the American farmer buys many of his implements. Another suit in the interest of the farmer was that against the Sisal Sales corporation. This is the agency which has an alleged monopoly on the sale of sisal in the United States. Binder twine, used by every wheat grower, is made from Mexican sisal and millions of dollars a year are spent for the product. It was alleged that the selling agency had a monopoly which enabled it to control the price, excluding competition.

Further, Attorney General Stone vigorously opposed the modification of the famous packers' consent decree. This decree, entered in 1920, forbade the Chicago meat packers from entering so-called unrelated lines of business. That is, they were refused the privilege of going into the grocery business, grain business, or similar enterprises which were not strictly a part of the meat packing and slaughtering industry.

Since 1920, the packers have made a vigorous fight to have the consent decree set aside and fear has been expressed by some representatives of the farmers' organizations that the supplanting of Mr. Stone will result in the packers' success in their attempt, and in their resultant return to fields which, it is alleged, might result in building up a sort of super-food trust all under control of the meat packing corporations. Mr. Stone vigorously opposed modification of the decree on the ground that such action would foster monopoly contrary to public interest.

Mr. Stone launched an inquiry into the proposed merger of the big baking companies, which, it was claimed, were seeking to form a $600,000,000 bread trust. He was investigating the radio industry to determine if a monopoly existed or was threatened in this field so near to the public's heart at this time.

The prohibitionists also took a hand in the matter, one great dry organization going so far as to file a sort of protest with President Coolidge against Mr. Stone's promotion. Here, again, the same motive was found. The drys were so well pleased with Mr. Stone's vigorous policy of enforcement of the Volstead act that they wanted to see him remain at the head of the department of justice.

Nearly everyone in public life has many critics and someone usually is heard to protest against a nomination for almost any office, but it is a new thing in American politics for a man's appointment to a high position to be opposed because he is considered too good a public servant.

DINNER STORIES

It is supposed to have happened in a theatrical club. A well-known player remarked: "I am tired of the way they are casting me lately. In my last three plays I have been a dirty scoundrel."

"That's the trouble with your American idea," observed an English actor, "of casting with types."

A university president was complaining about the worship of wealth that has seemed to characterize our time.

"A young man," he said, "asked me which was the more estimable, riches or brains.

"'Brains,' said I, 'of course, but it sometimes seems as if in these times the only way for a man to convince people he has brains is to get riches!'"

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By ALICE LANGELIER.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The mistletoeman has come back to Paris as he always does the week before Christmas and he will remain until February. He is wearing his usual wooden sabots, his blue blouse and faded scarf swathed about his neck. Over his shoulder is his long pole with thick branches of holy and clumps of mistletoe strung up like fish. He sells the fresh Christmas greens much cheaper than one finds them in the flower shops, but not so cheap either, for, as he says, he has to do a deal of climbing to get them, and climbing is very hard on the corduroys.

New Year's Day is much more important than Christmas in France, and that is when most people have their stockings filled, or rather their shoes, for on this side of the water it is the shoe that goes before the fireplace. "Etrennes," of New Year's gifts, are an important factor in nearly every Frenchman's life. The doorbell begins ringing early in December and keeps up until after the first of January. First comes the postman in his dark blue uniform and battered-in cap that looks much like the one grandfather wore in the civil war. He has a little calendar to offer with a heap of information about postage rates and the metro lines that one will never use. This constitutes his entrennes for you and he waits at the door until yours comes forth. A nice bill is most appreciated, in fact, expected.

A few days after his visit comes another postman, dressed up just like the other. He is the paper and package carrier and he has little calendars in a little different style. His object is the same, but if you don't much mind losing a paper or two during the year, you may make his entrennes a little smaller. The letter carrier is the most important.

Then come along the boys who bring the "little blues," the pneumatic tube notes that are delivered within two short hours after being posted, and then the milkman, the telegraph messengers and, most important of all, the concierge, France's bughear, the lion that guards the doors, distributes the mail and makes life pleasant or decidedly the opposite for all the occupants of the house. Woe be unto you throughout the year if his etrennes are not satisfactory.

What is a fresh egg? The Paris civil courts have been deciding the important question and have agreed that eggs preserved in a refrigerator should not be called fresh ones. They have laid down three different classes for eggs:

1—New-laid eggs from eight to 15 days old in summer and from three weeks to one month in winter.

2—Fresh eggs are those which have not undergone any form or preparation with a view to preserving them and which are fit for eating when cooked.

3—Preserved eggs—eggs fit for eating only because they have been kept in cold storage or otherwise treated so as to prevent them from going bad.

Several merchants who have been selling preserved eggs for fresh ones have been given heavy fines and 15 days' imprisonment.

Dancing is apparently less popular in Paris than it was a year ago, according to the statistics just published. At the end of 1923 there were 848 dance halls and other places where dancing was indulged in, but the number has now diminished to under 500. Just what are the causes of this decrease no one knows, and it would seem that as many people as ever are dancing these days. However, the demand of jazz band musicians for higher wages spelled the doom of many small cabarets, and the taxe de luxe put many out of the running. Hundreds of small dancing halls sprang up like mushrooms over night last year when the raze was most noticeable and a certain large number of them were bound to disappear.

RICHARD L. SPRAGUE.

For 92 years without interruption a Sprague has acted as American consul at Gibraltar, Richard L. Sprague, representative of the third generation at the foreign post, is now on duty there.

The history of the "Spragues of Gibraltar" is almost as remarkable as that of the huge pile of stone itself.

Horatio Sprague, of Boston, a member of a mechanical firm whose vessels sailed to Cadiz, Malaga, Malta and Genoa, was the first of the family to establish a residence abroad—about the year 1800. Young Sprague, a junior clerk, embarked on one of the firm's ships with instructions to inspect Mediterranean ports and to open an office wherever trade was most active and shipping centralized.

During the war of 1812 he was forced to leave Gibraltar. He took up his residence at Algeciras in Spain, but by special permission of British authorities he was permitted to make daily trips to Gibraltar to attend to his business. After restoration of peace, he again went to Gibraltar, and in 1832 he was appointed American consul by President Andrew Jackson.

Horatio Sprague served as consul for 16 years. He died in 1848, and was succeeded by his son, Horatio ones Sprague, father of the present consul. The second Sprague to hold this post was appointed by President James K. Polk.

When Mr. Sprague died in 1901, he was succeeded by his son, Richard L. Sprague, the present consul. The third of the Spragues has been in charge of the office for 23 years, and he probably is better known among American naval officers than any other man in the consular service.

Naval guns stay as they were, but congressmen have raised their oral elevations.

Europe is complaining of a warm winter. But maybe that's just another clever bid for American tourists.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Out on North Brother Island there is a group of men who huddle together at eventide to watch the faint glow that lifts itself above New York's sky-line—like a city's passions smoking to the heavens.

Little tugs often skirt the island, unload their cargo of food and clothes and scurry away as though chased by the furies. The inhabitants of the island gaze wistfully. They know they will never again come in contact with their fellows. They are lepers.

They are doomed to tortured days of slow death. Now and then a tiny camp fire burns. It is the signal. Another soul has escaped from physical agony. And a tug arrives to carry away a disinfectant reeking pine box.

The radio has proved a beneficent boon to the social castaways on the island. Only recently one was installed and it has cheered the unfortunates up as nothing else has. And curiously enough their favorite tunes are those of the lively jazz bands.

The oldest leper there is 70 years. He is a Chinese and a scholar. He has given many of his fellows a philosophy of life that has helped in the travail. The youngest is a youth of 22, whose eyes are empty sockets.

The lepers find what amusement they can in their dreary commonplace existence. So one with infinite patience has trained a turtle to come when called. It is the only pet on the island and makes its home under one of the small shacks.

The small leper colony has comfortable quarters. They are given clean beds and well cooked food. There is much to read for those who desire, but most of them prefer to sit silently in their chairs. Conversation is rare. For, indeed, what is there to say!

David Belasco gives an afternoon theater party each time he presents a new play. He does not take his guests to the fashionable restaurants, but to a Child's restaurant on Forty-second street. Belasco is fond of the celebrated butter cakes served there. It was at one of these parties that some discovered there were 13 at the table. Morris Gest happened to come in. He was asked to join them to circumvent the superstition and he was placed next to Belasco's daughter. And thus began the romance which ended in Gest becoming Belasco's son-in-law.

People who bore me: "America's sweetheart" movie stars; doctors who announce new schemes to prolong life 25 years and cannot cure whooping cough; wonder kiddies of vaudeville; women who smoke cigarets in hotel lobbies and artists who wear Elbert Hubbard ties.

The New Yorker is always suspicious. He will refuse to accept samples of chewing gum, candy or the like from those employed to pass them out on the street. The other day the matter was being discussed in a club and 20 dimes were placed in 20 small white envelopes. A member of the club went out on the sidewalk and in a half hour's time was able to give only two away. And the second recipient went two blocks to a corner policeman and said: "A nut is over there giving money away." He came very nearly being arrested.

The word "culture" goes hand in hand with great learning. I often wonder if one has anything to do with the other. It seems to me the most cultured man I know is one who has had little education. He is a clerk in a mid-town store. He is the personification of gentleness. He is deeply religious and give one-third of his meager salary to charity. He quit school at the age of 12.

TOO MUCH KILLING

How long is the crime era to last? What causes the shooting mania? You pay no attention when you read about killings based on bootleg or hijacker feuds. But you are bound to notice and wonder about the innumerable killings of other kinds scattered through the paper.

Millionaire bootleggers, poorhouse inmates, jealous husbands, all seem to have the same remedy, to kill somebody.

Some of the most prosperous men in the nation have formed an organization to promote greater respect for the law.

Perhaps the fact that nearly all prosperous men ignore both the law and the constitution, when they interfere with their own comfort and pleasure, has something to do with law violations lower in the scale.

HUNDRED LITTLE PIGS

Five years ago when he was in the public school he bought a pure-bred pig, female, eight weeks old. Since then his pig has added 100 small pigs to the earth's porcine population. The little boy writes: "She paid for my clothes, three years in high school and gave me spending money also. I am now in my second year in college, and she is still doing the same."

This boy has joined the "Better sires—better stock" campaign and will work hard to improve the pig breed.

If it were possible to improve cattle or swine, civilization would progress rapidly. Unfortunately eugenists make little progress.

But something might be done.

That proud mother of 100 little pigs in five years—never smoked cigarets or drank cocktails. And the father or fathers did not set before their sons the example of bootleg law-breaking and contempt for the constitution.

AN INVENTION WANTED

Germany is perfecting a machine to make it impossible for ships to sink.

A series of electric pumping machines will take water out faster than it can go in—through any ordinary opening caused by a collision. That news would have been more important 50 years ago than it is today.

What is wanted now is something to make it impossible for a flying machine to fall. That also will come, and before long.

Men that have conquered the ocean waves will easily conquer the air waves.

What is the strongest wave of air compared with the ocean wave that rolls gigantic rocks up the beach, or cast away a granite cliff?

You never saw the wind that could roll big rocks uphill.

Flying machines, all steel, strong enough to resist any wind, and with engines 10 times as strong as the strongest wind, will make air travel, long before the end of this century, much safer than traveling on railroads has ever been.

CANADA IS GROWING

Canada is growing rapidly. Up there they welcome good immigrants. Here we discourage immigration. One of the most fertile states in the union, with 35,000,000 acres of land, has 33,000,000 acres not yet developed, but we say we have enough population.

What is more important even than immigration is human happiness and independence. Canadians attend to that. In Canada 92 per cent of farmers own their own farms. In the United States only 52 per cent own their land, the others are tenants paying rent.

The nations in which those that cultivate the land own the land on which they live, grow in strength. The power of France is due largely to the fact that Frenchmen own their land. That small country has more than six million landowners, a great improvement on the days of monarchy, when a handful of nobles, ecclesiastics and royal princes were the land owners.

Croup Relieved Without Dosing

Too much dosing is harmful to a child's delicate stomach. Often it lays the foundation for ill health in later life.

The next time a child seems croupy in the evening apply Vicks over throat and chest and cover with a warm flannel cloth. Leave the bedclothing loose about the neck so that the arising vapors may be freely inhaled. This usually prevents night attack.

If croup comes on without warning an application of Vicks usually brings relief in 15 minutes.

Beauty

A Gleamy Mass of Hair

35c "Danderine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance.

While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter and just see how healthy and youthful your hair appears after this delightful, refreshing dressing.

Mrs. William Brooks Hostess.

Mrs. William Brooks was hostess to the members of the Ohio club, Tuesday evening, in her home in West Eighth street. The home was attractively arranged with pink, red and yellow rosebuds and tulips. Fancywork, music and story telling were the diversions of the social hours. Mrs. Charles Wright presided at the piano, and Mrs. E. T. Emmerling told humorous narratives.

A four-course luncheon was served. The color scheme of pink and yellow predominated in the appointments. The hostess' daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Brooks was assisted in serving by Mrs. Charles Wright.

Mrs. Charles Wright and daughter, Alice Josephine, of Salineville, guests in the Brooks' home, were special guests of the club.

The next meeting will be in the form of a valentine party to be held at the home of Mrs. Leo Hilliard of West Eighth street, February 10.

Rose-Willert Wedding.

Coming as a surprise to their many friends in this city is the announcement of the marriage of Miss May Rose, of this city, formerly of Lisbon, O., to Orin C. Willert, son of Mrs. C. Willert, of 122nd street, Cleveland. The ceremony was performed in the home of the bridegroom's mother January 14. Miss Anna Thomas and Miss Irene Stewart were the brides maids, while A. Hoffman served as the bridegroom's best man.

The bride was gowned in pale blue georgette and wore a corsage of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Previous to her marriage she was employed by the Homer Laughlin China company. The bridegroom is a dye worker in a Cleveland automobile factory.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served in the Statler hotel. Several guests from this city were in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Willert left for a honeymoon in Buffalo and Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will reside at 2640 East 122nd street, Cleveland.

Painful Rheumatic Swellings Disappear

James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called ALLENRHU, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed all druggists everywhere to dispense ALLENRHU with the understanding that if the first pint bottle does not show the way to complete recovery he will gladly return your money without comment.

WEATHER MAN PROMISES SNOW

Sweeping Storm Blankets Pittsburgh; Forecast is Colder.

Street car service in the East Liverpool district was handicapped by a six inch blanket of snow which began falling about 8:30 o'clock this morning.

Two snow sweepers were kept in operation in East Liverpool, Wellsville, Chester and as far east as Smiths Ferry. A large force of trucks and workmen were also at work keeping switches cleared of snow.

Telephone and train service were reported normal at the noon hour.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 29.—Temperatures ranging from 12 to 15 degrees above zero were forecast for Ohio tonight by officials at the local United States weather bureau today. Cloudy and moderating weather Friday, with a probable minimum temperature Friday night of 20 degrees above the cipher, also, was predicted.

Snow flurries prevailed throughout the state today. Light snow is expected tonight.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—A terrific gale off the coast of North Carolina is moving northward with increasing intensity, the weather bureau warned shipping today. Storm warnings were ordered displayed between Nantucket and Delaware breakwater.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The outlook is for snow tonight in the middle Atlantic states and tonight and Friday in the northern Atlantic states and the eastern lower lake region, the United States weather bureau announced today.

Moderate heavy snows are indicated for this afternoon and tonight in southern New England, southeastern New York, New Jersey, eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 29.—A sweeping snow storm blew into Pennsylvania today on the heels of the below-zero temperatures reported from all sections of the state yesterday. Starting just before 9 o'clock in Pittsburgh. The local weather bureau stated the storm was general over the state and the North Atlantic seaboard and forecast almost continued snowfall until late tonight. A low pressure area covering this section caused the snow. Slightly colder weather forecast for tonight will stop the snow late today, but no precipitation is possible tomorrow, the weather bureau stated.

Seven below zero in a Pittsburgh suburb was the coldest official temperature reported to the bureau here, but 23 below was reported unofficially.

Kansas Banking Chief Denies Pardon Bribery Charges

TOPEKA, Jan. 29.—Carl J. Peterson, state banking commissioner under former Governor Jonathan M. Davis, was arraigned today on carges of conspiracy and soliciting a bribe in connection with pardons. Peterson pleaded not guilty and was released on a $1,200 bond for appearance in February.

Former Governor Davis, against whom information was filed by the district attorney's office yesterday, along with Peterson, was allowed until Saturday to get here from his Bourbon county home.

Diphtheria Epidemic

dreds, according to dispatches received here today by Dr. G. M. Magruder, in charge of the United States public health service in this district. Five are dead already and hundreds are dying.

There was no indication given in the dispatches as to the number of persons suffering from the disease.

Dr. Magruder said a large percentage of the afflicted were Eskimos, who, he said, were particularly susceptible to diseases that scourged the white man.

Arrangements were being completed today by Dr. Magruder to rush 1,000,000 anti-toxin units to Nome on the steamer Alameda which sails Saturday from Seattle to Seward, Alaska.

From Seward the units will have to be shipped overland and Dr. Magruder was trying today to arrange a system of packing to protect the shipment from freezing as it is carried on dog sleds.

Efforts to obtain an airplane in Alaska to carry the serum were unsuccessful, and it seemed probable the only method of transportation left will be by dog teams.

Temperatures in the north were reported being 60 and 70 degrees below zero, according to Dr. Magruder, which will mean special packing to protect the anti-toxin. Elaborate arrangements were planned by the health service for this feature of the race.

One Doctor in Nome

Included with the anti-toxin, which will weigh from 100 to 200 pounds, will be material for the Shick test, used to determine if persons are immune from diphtheria. These persons will be used to nurse the sick and to carry messages in the stricken northern town.

Dr. Curtis Welch, public health service surgeon, is the only doctor in Nome at present and his strength is being taxed to the utmost by the great demands made upon him.

According to word received by Dr. MaGruder, a special health board has been appointed in Nome by Mayor George S. Maynard to carry out the provisions of a district quarantine.

Every nurse in the town has been pressed into service and volunteer nurses are being asked.

HITTING TARGET AT C. OF C. MEET

Highlights of George Creel's address at the Chamber of Commerce meeting last night were:

"Twenty-five years ago a man married on his terms. But today a man is not allowed to 'shush' his wife and must be as courteous to her as he is to a stranger.

Years ago a woman never went out unless she wore as many layers as a Bermuda onion. The old fashioned riding habit not only covered her legs but the horse's legs as well.

"People don't read politics. Down south they have not heard of Jefferson's illness and in New England they are still voting for Abe Lincoln.

"In England, when a boy shows no signs of earning a living they put him in the army or in the church. Over here we send them to congress.

"Two states claim Hearst as a favorite son. New Yorkers say he is a Californian and Californians say he is a New Yorker.

"Men fear to enter public life because they dislike mud baths. It is cheaper to go to French Lick.

"Henry Ford would rather be wrong than be president.

"I am surprised that the humane society did not stop the last election.

"I can sit on a park bench and I never see a tax collector. But if I get a job, marry, raise a family and provide a home I pay a half dozen different kinds of taxes."

George Creel

of New York, held the undivided attention of his audience for nearly two hours, driving home truth after truth, very often in a mirthful manner. He manifested a keen knowledge of governmental affairs throughout his talk. Creel began his newspaper career as a reporter in Kansas City and for many years afterwards edited newspapers in Kansas City and Denver. He married B'anche Bates, former actress in 1912. He has written a half dozen or more books and also is the author of the famous "Uncle Henry" articles in Colliers Weekly. For nearly two years during the World war he headed the committee on Public Information, through an appointment of President Wilson. He is a member of the Players Club of New York.

Plea for Preservation of Home.

"I come to you tonight with a plea for the preservation of two of our foremost institutions," said Creel. "The first of these is the American home. It used to be you had to have cause for a divorce but today a wife may divorce her husband or vise versa for the most trival reasons.

"I do not want to see the home destroyed. It's a thing that cannot be made during the extra hours or over the week-end. In looking over the many unhappy marriages I come to the conclusion that the blame can be placed at the door of my own sex. Up to 1900, a man could marry by his own terms. A husband was the master of his own home.

"Any girl who reached the age of 25 years without having a husband had her hunting license taken away. At 40 she was assumed to have come into the world with the rocks and hills and at 50 they debated whether or not to chloroform her. A woman in those days, using a lip stick would have been prayed for in open church. When a woman married she became a wife and mother only.

"Man made his mistake when he took his foot off the woman's neck. We were made to take off our silks and satins. From that time on women have changed. The woman bounded out of the rut and went into the schools, the stores, banks and factories. They claim the right to vote—if they choose. In years to come the husband is going to realize more and more his wife's position and when that time comes, the home is going to be more safe.

Elections and Equal Suffrage.

Now we come to another thing that is being threatened—that is elections. Last year more than 24,000,000 voters stayed at home. When the Irish took over the elections it looked for a time as though the problem had been solved. But the Irish soon adopted American ideals of not voting and turned the situation over to the Italians. In many elections I have seen Italians voting nine or ten times in one day. Then the Greeks followed, but soon they arose above the voting level so now very few vote. It is too bad we cannot have the Japs and the Chinese do our voting.

"In the olden times Republicans voted for Abe Lincoln and Democrats for Thomas Jefferson. We used to vote in livery stables, but equal suffrage has done away with these conditions. Today we are expected to read the platforms and know the names of some of the candidates.

"Prohibition has had a lot to do with the decline of interest in elections for the red blooded manhood of America cannot do good work on sundaes. In the days when the saloon gave vim and vigor to the citizen I have seen stalwart electors voting early in the morning and keep it up till dark without turning a hair. As one politician recently complained to me you can not get up any sort of enthusiasm for civic duty with an Eskimo pie.

Bryan Greatest Anglo-Saxophone.

"People are disguested with the caliber of men holding public office. They are afraid they will be charged with being an accomplice to a crime and consequently do not go to the polls on election day. Today when a boy reaches the voting age, he is told how his father and grandfather voted and he is expected to vote the same way. Up in Maine recently, they got the rooster and the eagle mixed and in a solid Republican community they elected a Democratic ticket.

"Out in the great open spaces of the west, William J. Bryan is still held in reverence as the greatest Anglo-Saxophone. In Arkansas, they keep his speeches for the long winter evenings. In spite of these methods intelligent men occasionally get to congress. The people have fixed their terms at two years and they no sooner take office than they are compelled to start running for re-election again.

"A congressman is expected to pour so much money into his district each year, and if it isn't an appropriation for dredging Snake Creek, it would be a five-story Italian marble postoffice in a town of 200, pigs included When big men take interest in politics its usually 10 or 20 per cent. Instead of running the government they generally prefer to run the men that run the government—the power behind the bone.

Nation Likes Mud-Slinging.

The minute a man achieves success in business they look upon him as unfit for office. Just look at the case of John W. Davis. He lost because the people found out that J. P. Morgan had been one of his clients. The American people will not stand for any candidate who has clients unless it be in a few police court cases. They will not elect anybody who ever earned more than $18 a week. Preferably he ought to be in the bread line or live with his wife's folks.

"This is a great nation for 'mud-slinging,' and the worst of it the people like to see it. Whisper something to your neighbor about the other fellow and notice how he pricks up his ears. We should change the first line in our national anthem to 'Oh say, did you hear?' It would be more appropriate.

"They say more voters would come to the polls if we nominated great men like William R. Hearst or Henry Ford. You might nominate Hi Johnson but he's always running and would be out of breath when he reached the White House.

"A year ago I wasn't back of this Henry Ford movement for president. I favored Charley Chaplain, Mr. Sheean or Mr. Gallagher. I won't leave Mr. Ford without paying a tribute to his splendid Americanism. He likes America so well he does not take time to read its history.

"In the last campaign the Democrats were urged reneatedly to throw the towel into the ring. The fact is the Democrats never owned a towel to throw into the ring.

G. O. P.-Democratic Blunders

The Republicans give a lot of time and thought to their blunders. The Democrats just blunder instinctively, happily and with song. The Republicans nominate their candidates months in advance and keep them on ice until needed. Democrats go to their conventions without the slightest idea of what they are going to do and have to rely upon the telephone books or city directories in picking out their candidates.

"Mr. La Follette was termed a radical but he showed that he was a conservative when he did not resign his seat from that great commonwealth which borders the United States on the north. It is true the Wisconsin senator sought to curb the authority of the United States courts.

"The trouble with our courts is that they are too slow. La Follette was they are too slow. I know a man who inherited his litigation through his grandfather. La Follette was right when he said our courts needed reorganization. Justice moves too slow.

"Fifty years ago Republican leaders had the forethought to see a great problem facing the nation in 1924 and Calvin Coolidge was born to meet that issue. Party leaders sat beside his cradle talking tariff and other big issues with him. Everybody worked for his election, even his enemies. The Democrats did Coolidge a great service when they called him 'Silent Cal.' The people have a superstitious reverence for any man who keeps his mouth shut. That's why Coolidge was elected. We needed a sphinx in the last election.

Conservatives and Liberals.

"President Coolidge had done nothing during the year that he had been in the White House and that made him thousands of votes. He was one of the few Republicans who hadn't done something.

"But the Republicans are not through with the La Follettes, Brookharts, Farziers, Kenyons, Johnsons and others, generally regarded as radicals but who still classify themselves as Republicans. We are going to have two groups in the future to choose between—the conservatives and the liberals.

"There are no real burning issues today. The baseball season hasn't opened and Dempsey has no real rivals. The only minor matters before us are the K. K. K., prohibition and such questions.

"I am for the Ku Klux Klan. There isn't so much humor in American life that we can afford to part with a single source of laughter.

"The passage of the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill eliminated the danger of some of us becoming food addicts. Among the things which can now be imported into this country are leaves, roots, stems, dried bugs and fishbone. Imagine a housewife getting up a meal on such stuff!

Prohibition and Taxes.

"Prohibition is settled once and for all. Coolidge was elected on a law enforcement platform and you can rely on his doing his best to enforce the 18th amendment. Brewers and distillers are not so much against prohibition, they say, as they are against the secrecy with which it was adopted.

"It is splendid to see how some of our best people have turned their homes into bar rooms since the advent of prohibition. But they are fighting a losing battle. Raisins have nothing to offer, they have not even invented a wrinkle remover. As you go along in New York you can smell other things except sour mash today. But time will prove the worthiness of prohibition the future generation will favor enforcement. We will then all say 'I was always for it.'

"Now we come to the question of taxes. I am asked to furnish four affidavits from persons who saw me enter a St. Louis restaurant to eat a meal for which I am not to be taxed. What color was the cashier's hair and how many automobiles were parked in front of the place when I entered, I am asked. There's too much red tape about this tax collection business.

Question of War.

"Then comes the big question of war. Six years ago the people were a unit against future wars. Today we are being urged to pour millions into the manufacture of war machines.

"Coolidge had the courage to say this country will enter a world court, which is the first step toward the league of nations as a guarantee against future wars. With airplanes and zeppelins, we are no longer safe from European conflicts. We drew the sword in France that this thing should never happen again.

"During the war I was chairman of the committee on public information. We organized the four-minute men, published newspaper articles, showed motion pictures, conducted meetings and did everything in the United States and other allied countries to strengthen the morale of the allies and break down hope and cause despair in the camps of our enemies. We were successful.

"Our men went into the mud of Flanders with a new hope and fought that this thing should be ended for ever."

Visits K. T. & K. Pottery.

Mr. Creel, who reached East Liverpool late Tuesday night made his headquarters at the Thompson House during his stay in the city. With T. T. Jones, a local newspaperman, he visited the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles pottery, yesterday afternoon, through the courtesy of James B. McDonald, a member of the firm, and Robert Weinhardt, an office executive. He inspected every department of the industry from the slip house to the packing shed.

Mr. Creel left here by trolley last night for Pittsburgh where he made train connections for his home in New York.

MAN DIES WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

COLUMBUS, Jan. 29.—Death of J. C. Williamson, address unknown, occurred here early today soon after he was hit by an automobile driven by Louis Miltzler, Brooklyn. Pending identification Williamson's body is at Denton, Donaldson and Hughes undertaking parlors. Miltzer was being held at city prison for investigation.

Twenty Minutes

Al Smith's Potentialities.

Q.—Does Hughes really rank as America's greatest statesman?

A.—Mr. Hughes is a very able man—in fact, I regard him as one of the most brilliant secretaries of state which this country ever possessed. But there is one thing I can never forgive him for. That was when he and 31 others signed a statement, pledging their support of the league of nations, and later Mr. Hughes broke that pledge of honor.

Q.—Will Governor Al Smith have presidential possibilities in 1928?

A.—Of course Tammany Hall is behind him, but the trouble it isn't behind him far enough.

Q—Did Robert Lansing merit dismissal from the state department?

A—He should have been dismissed long before he was. He was the biggest mistake in the Wilson cabinet. He rightfully earned the title of the "Bud Fisher" of the cabinet, because he would sit during important meetings drawing caricatures with a pencil and tablet.

Baker's Place in History.

Q—What will be Secretary Newton Baker's ultimate place in history?

A—Mr. Baker will hold a prominent place in history because he accomplished a big task during the war. His only handicap is he does not weight 200 pounds. The trouble in this country is we put too much premium on beef.

Q—How much influence did Secretary Tumulty really have in President Wilson's activities?

A—Less than nothing.

Q—Does Senator Borah merit the high reputation given him as a statesman?

A—Senator Borah is for everything until he comes to vote and then he's against it. He was against the child labor bill because he found out that it interfered with state's right and so with many other measures. In the eleventh hour he always finds some excuse for being against a measure which was thought to have his whole hearted support.

Q—Why did Hughes resign his portfolio?

A—To make a living. Cabinet officers draw $12,000 a year and that isn't enough to pay their house rent. Men in public life in Washington must either starve or steal. Some do both.

Q—Will Ex-Secretary Fall ever be brought to court?

A—Not in our life time.

Q—Will Teddy Roosevelt, Jr., be able to come back?

A—He was never there.

Pays Tribute to Daniels.

Q.—Will our debtor nations pay the war loans due us? If so, when?

A.—They will pay as soon as they are able. France is unable to pay anything now. You cannot get blood out of a turnip.

Q.—Has John W. Davis a political future? If so, when?

Q.—What is your opinion of Josephus Daniels as a secretary of the navy?

A.—I will not tell you my opinion, but I will give you the statement of Admiral Dewey, made a year before he died, which I published. Dewey said that Daniels was the greatest secretary of the navy this country ever had. Every form of lie was used against him while he was in office. The brewers and distillers fought him because he banned liquor on government vessels for officers as well as enlisted men. A picture which he had taken at a Y. M. C. A. welfare hut, standing between two sailors with a hand on each of the men's shoulders, was stolen from the wall of the building, reproduced and scattered from one end of the country to the other in an effort to blacken his standing.

Fight Over Maine Primary Law.

Citizens in the State of Maine are preparing to fight for a repeal of the direct primary law. If 12,000 signatures to the petitions are obtained the Legislature will be asked to put the matter to a vote of the public, and already a large number of voters has been enrolled.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Oil stocks ran riot with the stock market in the early trading today, buying orders for the leading independent and Standard oil shares surged into the curb and listed markets in the largest volume since the early part of last year. pools which upset the calculations of Just prior to the opening of the big the oil industry. A decline of 20,000 barrels a day in crude oil production as reported by the American Petroleum institute and realization that higher crude oil prices means a gain of millions of dollars in the inventory values of companies which purchased large stores of oil at the low prices of 1924, brought new interest to the oil stocks today.

Stimulated by the steady rise in oil stock prices which has taken place since the middle of the month, culminating in advances of 2 to 5 points since Monday, traders rushed in to buy the oil shares at steadily advancing prices as soon as the market opened today. Wall street circulated rumors that a number of the prominent independent companies were to be merged into a giant producing refining and distributing combination. Standard Oil of New Jersey jumped a full point at the opening; Standard Oil of California sold a point higher and good gains were made by a score or more of the independent oils, including the Pan-Americans, Sinclair, Marland Cosden, Shell Union, Phillips, Texas Co., Pacific, Skelly, Pure Oil, Houston, California Pete.

A few of the rails and specialty stocks joined the upward movement near the opening, but it was evident that considerable "switching" was taking place from stocks of this class.

Soldier Confesses He Murdered Girl In Enraged Moment

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 29.—Private George C. Cordy, a member of headquarters company at Fort Adams, has confessed that he murdered Miss Mary Gleason, whose body was found in a moat near the fortification, Chief Inspector Ahearn, of Providence, announced today.

According to the confession, as related by Inspector Ahearn, Cordy was a former sweetheart of the young woman.

The night she was slain she was going to the fort to meet Private George Henderson, also a member of his company. Cordy, returning to the fort about the same time, after several days' absence, met her and became violently enraged when he learned she was going to see another man.

Henderson, who reported the young woman's disappearance two days later had been held by the police.

Plan to Speed up Action on Proposed New State Building

COLUMBUS, Jan. 29.—Plans for speeding up action relative to the proposed new state office building are expected to be made today when the senate committee on state buildings resumed discussion of the resolution of Senator Vorys, Franklin county, providing for creation of legislative committee to work in co-operation with the state building commission, in arranging for erection of an office building contiguous to the state house.

An architect of national renute is reported by State Auditor Tracy to have interested himself in the project "from the standpoint of art alone," and may propose two plans, one for erection of the building on the state house grounds and the other on a site nearby. The architect was not named.

U. S. Training

Veterans' bureau officials said that no men will be accepted for training prior to June who did not have application for training or compensation before June 30, 1923. Those whose applications were rejected still have an opportunity to obtain a re-opening of their cases. Appeals, it was stated, will be acted upon promptly.

Reports to Director Frank T. Hines indicated that the rehabilitated ex-service men, who came out of the war partially disabled and virtually a drug on the labor market, has "come back" and has established himself a firm cog in the commercial and industrial machinery of the nation.

Few rehabilitated men have failed to make good. Employment conditions among the rehabilitated ex-soldier were described as far better than a year ago.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Frank Ross

Mrs. Frank Ross, 55 years old, died this morning in her home, 1123 White street, Wellsville after a lingering illness of complications.

John Grant, over sixty years old, recently saved the life of William Dounes, a fellow fisherman, whose boat was capsized by a heavy sea near Folkeston, England.

IN MEMORIAM.

Burrows:—Mary C. In loving memory of our dear Mother, who was taken away one year ago today, Jan. 29th, 1924.

"What happy days we once enjoyed
When we were all together.
But, oh, how changed it all is now,
Since you have gone forever,
You fought life's battles bravely,
And patiently stood every test,
And you will always be loved and remembered,
Because you were one of the best.

other. Many are out of work all the time, and at depression periods some time as high as 7,000,000 are jobless. The answer is: Bring the man and the job together.

"The Knights of Columbus, following the war, established 1,000 free employment bureaus throughout the country, hired 1,000 paid secretaries, 4,000 paid job hunters and 5,000 volunteer job hunters. Hundreds of thousands of ex-service men were placed back at work. Then came education. Thousands were fitted for advancement under guidance of best instruction possible. And those K. of C. workers never asked a man what his religion was. He would have been fired if he had.

"Establishment of non-partisan, non-political, free employment bureaus across the country would do away with non-employment. The unemployed man presents another problem. Every man has the right to a living wage, decent and comfortable circumstances. If not he is the victim of fraud. These were the principles contained in the great document laid down by Pope Leo XIII. These things can be brought about by peace and harmony only.

"The men who'd make for discord and class hatred are enemies to civilization and our country.

"Concerning religious bigotry and intolerance: God gave everyone the right to determine the manner of his own worship. This right is guaranteed by the constitution of the United States. Religious bigotry and intolerance were not what made the United States great. This happened only by the service of all—Catholic, Protestant, Jew and Gentile.

"I take the word 'America. The first letter A stands for all Americans, which we are, irrespective of the land of birth of our forefathers. All of us come from some foreign country. The only difference, if any, was the difference in the time of the arrival of the boats.

"The letter M stands for Manhood, the glory of America. Every man must build upon the foundation of character.

"The letter E stands for education which in turn means freedom and protection. Education must recognize religious and moral principles.

"The letter R stands for Republic the greatest in history. It will be remembered we all stood shoulder to shoulder—Catholic, Protestant, Jew and Gentile—in time of war and the same conditions will prevail in the future.

"The letter I stands for Ideals, the rights of life, liberty and the persuit of happiness.

"The letter C is for the Constitution of our country, the foundation, guarantee and protection of rights. No one has the right to say that it will protect them and not some one else, because of differences in religion.

"The final letter A is for Ambition, which is the desire for service. As just laws come from the laws of God, so harmony, loyalty and peace emerge from the spirit of service for our country.

VALENTINE JOKE, DECLARES MAYOR

Mayor James S. Barnes is still living today despite the dire threats of his untimely end contained in a letter he received yesterday.

Mayor Barnes regards it as a premature Valentine note.

The letter said:

"Dirty ——— Mayor Barnes.

"Are you not shame of yourself to do that dirty d——— trick you done to kill that poor Mr. Frost for four bottles of slop beer.

"Now you are far enough. We are affiliated to get rid of you one by one. You will get your turn. We already got seven or eight kill of your dirty bunch and now you are the next one. Don't take this for a joke. We don't care how many watching you. We will get you and pretty dam quick.

"No mercies for you last than kill a mad dog. You don't worth more than a dog, less for us.

"You know what this means (blackhand drawing).

"We never stop for nothing."

ISSUE MANDAMUS AGAINST AUDITOR

City Auditor Fred Eckfeld, as fiscal officer of the city of Wellsville, has had an alternate writ of mandamus issued in common pleas court against him, returnable February 16 at 9:30 o'clock. This court action was taken following the refusal of Mr. Eckfeld to certify to council there was sufficient money in the city treasury of Wellsville to pay a judgment of $1,500 obtained by Jesse W. Stone against the municipality during the September term of court.

Following the judgment, Mr. Eckfeld was asked to certify to council his ability or inability to find funds to pay the judgment, or to suggest to council that bonds be issued to pay the judgment.

The petition relates that Mr. Eckfeld refused to go before the Wellsville council in this matter unless mandamus was issued.

The petition has been filed by Attorney W. A. O'Grady.

Plan Euchre Tonight.

Arrangements have been completed for the euchre which will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock under auspices of the Tulsa club in the headquarters of Corporal Dan D. Duty post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. Luncheon will be served by the social committee at the close of the program.

Mrs. Haggerty Hostess.

Mrs. Anna Haggerty will be hostess to members of the Tulsa club tomorrow evening at her home in Eighth street. The business session will be followed by a social hour.

Wellsville Personals.

Mrs. Fred Beatty of Mannington, W. Va., has concluded a visit with her mother, Mrs. George Fiber, of Arthur avenue.

Mrs. Bernard Hartman and daughter of Eighteenth street are ill.

Mrs. Anna Maas of Cleveland was a visitor yesterday with Mrs. R. A. McMullin of Riverside avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Morrow have concluded a visit with Minerva and Canton relatives.

Herrin is Crowded With Visitors for Klansman's Funeral

HERRIN, Ills., Jan. 29.—Herrin was crowded today with visitors who came from far and near for the most colorful drama in the stirring history of this little war-like town—the funeral of S. Glenn Young, two-gun Ku Klux Klan raider, who died with his boots on in a blaze of gun-fire last Saturday when two of his followers and his arch-enemy, Deputy Sheriff Ora Thomas also were killed.

Funeral services were being held simultaneously at five churches in order to accommodate the thousands of Klansmen who had journeyed here to participate in the monster demonstration. At the Baptist church where the leader's body lay in state, two white-robed klansmen stood guard at the bier throughout the night.

The background of the coffin, veiled on white, was a mass of red and white crosses and floral tributes from klan chapters in all parts of the state. Two illuminated crosses carried out the flaming symbol of the order.

Virtually all the city officers and principal business places were closed and it was estimated that a procession ten miles long will follow the hearse to the cemetery.

"Cozy" Dolan Tells Story of Baseball Scandal to Prober

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. — Albert "Cozy" Dolan," debarred coach of the New York Giants, suddenly appeared on the scene of the baseball scandal investigation today and went before Assistant District Attorney George Brothers for questioning. Dolan, with Jimmy O'Connell, New York Giants' outfielder, was declared ineligible by Baseball Commissioner Landis, following the attempt of O'Connell to bribe Heine Sand, of the Philadelphia club, not "to bear down" in a game with the Giants last September.

French Statesman Cites Two Ideals For Debt Payment

PARIS, Jan. 29.—If two "ideals" are observed, a settlement of Franco-American debts will come about with satisfaction to both countries, it was indicated today by Raoul Peret, opposition leader in the chamber of deputies, who spoke at noon at the American club.

He specified the ideals as:

"First, the respect of contract by France; second, respect of justice by America."

Ireland's Famine Aggravated by Fear Of Fever Outbreak

DUBLIN, Jan. 29.—Ireland's spreading famine threats of serious proportions in Galway, Dongal, Connemara and Kerry counties, was aggravated today by a threatened outbreak of fever in the afflicted regions.

FIRST SESSION COMES TO CLOSE

Upper House Succeeds in Blocking Governor's Appointments.

The initial session of the 1925 legislature came to its end with the customary formal resolutions and committees to wait on the governor and the houses of the legislature shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Introduction of long lists of bills occupied virtually all of the time today in the house of delegates and much of that spent by the senate and in the end a total for the session of 1,098 introduced in two houses was reached, of this number 679 being in the hands of the clerk of the house of delegates and 399 in the senate. A large proportion of the bills were "local" measures affecting charters, levies and bond issues of municipalities and districts or counties, and many of the others were "skeleton" or "dummy" bills introduced to make possible legislation that might be desired on various subjects.

Combination of 14 Democrats and two Republicans in the senate blocked action by the body on confirmation of a series of appointments submitted by Governor Morgan and affecting about a score of positions. The names submitted were not made public, in accordance with the practice of the senate. Senator R. L. Hogg, of Mason county, offered a motion that the senate go into executive session, but after a conference of the Democratic members they joined with Senators Hugus and Hardman from the Republican side in voting against the motion. Several of the senators explained their votes, among them Senator Hugus, who declared he had no personal opposition to any man named on the list, but believed an incoming governor should have the power to name the men who would share the responsibilities of the administration.

ABANDONED BOOZE CAR IS CAPTURED

An auto, evidently being used to transport liquor from Pennsylvania into Ohio, was captured by Brooke county authorities on the Washington pike yesterday afternoon. The driver escaped.

A search resulted in the discovery of 100 gallons of whisky, hidden in the rear compartment of the car. It was stored in 15 five-gallon and 20 one-gallon cans, all packed tightly underenath a seat.

The auto was apparently broken down, as it had been abandoned by the driver. Footprints of the alleged liquor runner were traced in the snow but were lost at a point where the man is believed to have boarded a vehicle.

Authorities confiscated the auto and its contents and have started an investigation to learn the identity of the owner. Ohio and Pennsylvania licenses were found in the car.

BURGETTSTOWN SCHOOLS CLOSED

Owing to a new outbreak of scarlet fever this week at Burgettstown, the public schools of that place have been closed by order of the district school board.

First cases of the disease appeared around Christmas when Principal R. Knarr and his son, the latter captain of the football team, were stricken with the malady.

PROBATE COURT RECORDS CITED

Figures for Past Year Made Public by Judge Riddle.

Thirty-nine persons from Columbiana county were committed to state institutions because of their mental condition in 1924, according to the records of the office of Probate Judge Lodge Riddle.

In 1923 the record of commitments stood at 57.

Last year there were 18 males and 8 females committed to the Massillon state hospital, and two males and one female were sent to the Gallipolis institution.

The record shows that in 1923 23 males and 28 females were committed to Massillon, and two males and four females were sent to Gallipolis. The record shows that no colored people were committed to either of these state hospitals during 1923 or 1924.

During 1924 this court sent four children to the state reform schools, one girl between the age of 12 and 13, another between the age of 14 and 15 and another between the age of 15 and 16 years. These girls were sent to the State Industrial school.

Only one boy was sent to the Boys' industrial school last year by this court, and he was between the age of 14 and 15 years.

The record for 1923 shows one girl between the age of 14 and 15 and three between the age of 15 and 16 years sent to the Girls' Industrial school and two boys between the age of 10 and 11; three boys between the age of 14 and 15 and two between the age of 15 and 16 were sent to the Boys' Industrial school.

A comparison of these records shows that the number of persons requiring treatment in state hospitals during 1924 showed a decided decrease from the record of 1923 and also the number of boys and girls who were sent to state industrial schools.

It is the opinion of the court in handling juvenile cases that misguided ones should be given that "one more opportunity" before more severe measures are adopted, and of the large number of cases of this class that the court has handled the established rule has worked to the good of many children.

Hand Book for Cow Testers Prepared by Agricultural Bureau

The county farm bureau has been informed that a hand book for cow testers has been prepared by the United States department of agriculture which is of considerable value to those men engaged in the work of testing cows for production in cow testing associations. It has been declared that many men engaged in this line of work are not especially trained but by following the suggestions of the handbook and the standard methods advised, they will make their records much more valuable to the dairymen and also more useful in the various studies of the department based on such records.

The handbook not only informs the tester just how to do his work in the most valuable way, but also informs the owner of the herd just what he can expect from the tester.

The handbook is called Miscellaneous Circular No. 26, and can be had free from the United States department of agriculture at Washington upon request.

Two Handed Fines.

Mrs. Baraschiva Balan and her son, Charles Balan, and Sam Hoza, of Salem, indicted by the grand jury for resisting an officer in the performance of his duty, went before Judge James G. Moore and changed their plea from that of not guilty to that of guilty. The woman and Hoza were fined $10 and costs and young Balan was taken before the juvenile court, where he also was fined $10 and costs.

Tuberculosis Clinic Will Be Held Here In Next Few Weeks

A tuberculosis clinic with thorough physical examination of persons believed to have incipient cases of the disease will be conducted in Lisbon in the next few weeks as part of the state and district health program, as announced by Rr. T. T. Church district and county health commissioner following receipt from the state department of health of an offer to install such service here. This service will be without expense to those examined.

The health commissioner has suggested February 10 and 11 as the most convenient time for holding the clinic, which will extend over two days. Two recognized chest specialists will conduct the examinations, assisted by a nurse from the state department of health.

The local clinic will be the sixty-fifth of a series to be conducted in various parts of the state during the next year under joint auspices of the state department of health, local health authorities, the Ohio State Medical association and various voluntary health organizations.

This clinic will take care of all such patients residing in all northern townships.

It is also proposed to have a similar clinic in East Liverpool, probably early in March, and arrangements for this affair are now being made. This clinic will take care of patients in Franklin, Washington, Yellow Creek, Wayne, Madison, St. Clair and Liverpool townships, including Wellsville and East Liverpool.

$2,100 DAMAGE ACTION IS ASKED

Margaret F. Walters, who owns lot 89 on West Second street, East Liverpool, has filed an action in common pleas court through her counsel, Charles Boyd, for $2,100 against Jacob Hepps and others, doing business as A. E. Hepps & Co., wholesale grocers, and Fred and William Windland, partners, doing business as Windland Bros. Lumber company.

The plaintiff claims that in the erection of the new Hepps building, adjoining that of the plaintiff, her property and lands were damaged, and that the house was put out of plumb as a result of the construction and ecavating for the new building.

It is also claimed in the petition that a railroad switch was built over the rear of her property, and that other encroachments were made during the construction of the warehouse.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause — Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the REAL cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

By ELIZABETH A. THOMPSON

A Risk.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: About four months ago I met a young man and it was love at first sight. We were introduced at a dance. He had another girl with him and I had gone with another fellow and so he could not take me home, but he asked to call the next night. Since then he has come or taken me somewhere every night I would let him. I am a stenographer and he is selling life insurance. He would like to get married right away but can't afford it as he has not saved anything and is barely making enough for us to live on. Last night he asked me if I would be willing to get married and go on working for a while. I told him I would think it over. I am the kind of girl who would be perfectly willing to work for a man who wanted to support me, but I don't feel quite ready to marry and keep on working when the man asks it of me. Am I selfish in feeling this way? Please advise me what to do. I am 23 years of age.

POLLY N.

It is only natural that you should feel as you do, and not selfish. Tell the man you cannot consent to such a thing and that you want him to be in a position to provide a home for you and to support you after marriage. The risk of marrying as he suggests would be too great. If you and he had children you would no longer be able to work, or else you would have to do so at the expense of the little ones.

Her Heart Is Lost.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a high school girl. Early last fall I met a young man with whom I fell in love. I did not know whether he cared for me but he asked me to go several places with him. He seemed pleased with my company and then suddenly he quit asking me to go places with him and began acting very distant. He still treats me as a friend but that is all. I still care for him and care more every time I see him. He does not go with other girls. Please tell me how to win back my heart.

BLUE EYES.

To try to win back the young man would only be wasted effort. If you want happiness, forget him as quickly as possible. As long as you cling so fondly to your memory of him you will not enjoy the happy things which come to you day by day.

Father's Fault.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married man and at preesnt not living with my wife and baby and I miss them ever so much and she refuses to live with me but wants money and I will not give her any till she comes back to me. She has some one else so she tells me and wants to stay with her mother all the time and I can't get along with her mother. I am willing to do anything for them but I will never do what is right as long as I am craven for my baby. I have a wonderful job with big pay but I just throw my money away so please tell me how I can get them back as I need them bad to straighten me out.

LONSEOME FATHER AND HUSBAND.

Inasmuch as you are denied the privilege of determining what all the rules of the game shall be, you refuse to play. Your letter indicates childish self-indulgence and no woman is proud of a childish husband. Exhibit some self respect and you will find your troubles vanishing. To begin with it would be a good idea to save some of your money. You doubtless will need it for your child to whom you say you are devoted.

PIMPLES DRIED RIGHT UP WITH SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin on face, neck, arms or body is overcome quickest by applying Metho-Sulphur. The pimples seem to dry right up and go away, declares a noted skin specialist.

Nothing has ever been found to take the place of sulphur as a pimple remover. It is harmless and inexpensive. Just ask any druggist for a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur and use it like cold cream.

A Hint for Beginners

The cross-word puzzle diagram is merely a means of concealing words which are synonymous to those listed and which will interlock perfectly and so read equally well crosswise of downwards. Always look for the number of the synonym on the diagram. If horisontal, you must find a word to fit between that number and the first shaded stop to the right; if vertical, you must fit your word between the number and the first shaded stop below.

Rheumatism

A Remarkable Home Treatment Given by One Who Had It.

In the year of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Sub-Acute Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who are thus afflicted know for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, but such relief as I obtained was only temporary. Finally, I found a treatment that cured me completely and such a pitiful condition has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, even bedridden, some of them seventy to eighty years old, and the results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of muscular and sub-acute (swelling at the joints) rheumatism, to try the great value of my improved "Home Treatment" for its remarkable healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address, and I will send it free to try. After you have used it, and it has proven itself to be that long-looked for means of getting rid of such forms of rheumatism, you may send the price of it, One Dollar, but understand I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer, when relief is thus offered you free. Don't delay. Write today.

THE DOUBLE HOUSE

By Elizabeth Dejeans

He led her up the galleried stairway which looked down into the patio strung with soft lights, and Karesia heard the light splash of water and glimpsed depths beneath arches curtained with vines; the commingled sweetness of tropical flowers reached her. A door on the gallery stood open and Rossiter took her hand and led her into a little vestibule. To the right was a suite of rooms, richly furnished; in spite of their spaciousness, there was the atmosphere of an actor's dressing room about the place, dozens of photographs and a wide dressing table with mirrors arranged to afford every possible view of face and body, and a luxurious couch in the center of the room; beyond were a bedroom and bath, both luxurious.

"My rooms," Rossiter said, "but that isn't what I want you to see."

He turned to the right and opened a door, touched an electric button and a suite of rooms sprang out of darkness, a vista of rose-colored lights. Lotus-pink and pale green and cream-white; decorations, furniture, hangings, rugs, even the exquisite articles on the dressing tables were of the three colors; the cream satin hangings of the wide bed and its satin cover were embroidered with lotus flowers, broad green leaves and entwined stemps; and the bathroom was of cream-colored marble mosaicked with rose-pink and green.

"How very beautiful!" Karesia said in a hushed, still way. All day she had sat in the presence of tragedy, seeing a face that never weakened, never smiled; ever present in her mind the saw-toothed, water-washed cavern that had given up its dead. Here were softness and ease and dalliance.

"Your rooms, Kara," Rossiter said a little unsteadily. "I didn't want you to see my house until they were finished."

Karesia said nothing; she did not flush, her eyes were wide and dark. Rossiter did not expect her to exclaim; the moment he had seen her he knew that she had come with her decision made. He had a vivid remembrance of how she had looked when he had taken her into the minister's little parlor in San Francisco, emotionally tense, camillia-white, as she looked now. A fear had lurked in his heart then, there was a fear tugging at him now. He knew, from the way she looked, that she was prepared to give herself; back at that time he had had a confession to make, and he had a confession to make now; he was exultant and at the same time fearful.

He was pale and his eyes very bright. "You will—stay—after they are gone?" he asked huskily.

"Yes," she answered in the same even way.

Rossiter put his arms about her, held her close. She turned her face against his breast, stood perfectly quiet. "You will forgive me, Kara?" He was hot and quivering.

"It is I—who will beg to be forgiven," she answered very low.

He laughed a little in his excitement, pressed his lips to her shoulder. "Come down soon!" he said and left her.

Karesia went to the window and looked across the canyon. Scattered lights were below her, to her right an immense expanse of lights reaching to the canopy of stars that touched a glowing line of horizon. She looked across the canyon only, at a light nearest the opposite slope of hillside, her house. Then she drew down the shade and plunged the room into darkness. She heard voices below and went down.

XXXI

It was a dinner of twenty-four. Karesia stood near Rossiter as the guests came in, looking very much the mistress of Rossiter Hill. Randsome Rossiter's devotion to Sonya Karesia was the latest gossip of Hollywood, and there was a double interest in the appraising eyes of his guests.

They were people whom Karesia and the public knew well by name; Rossiter had chosen as his guests on this occasion the people in whom he thought Karesia would be particularly interested; several authors whom interest in the motion picturization of their novels had brought to Los Angeles, two of them authors who were screen writers as well as novelists; several playwrights who now gave all their time to screen work, and several actors and actresses who had been contemporaries of Rossiter during his stage days and who were now appearing in pictures, producing their own pictures, some of them. There was the tall, broad-shouldered actor, an Englishman, a matinee idol of a decade ago and now a screen favorite. And there were Nadine Navarre, and also the many-gifted woman, the Carmen of opera and screen.

Karesia had not expected Nadine Navarre to be one of Rossiter's guests. She came with Clarice. They were the last to arrive, and it was evident that Nadine Navarre had taken John Dascome's daughter under her wing. She was cordially greeted as she made her way through the group around Rossiter and Karesia, and she paused to introduce Clarice to all who greeted her. "I present Spring to you—is she not?" she said with her piquant accent, and Clarice raised grave wide eyes to the admiring looks bent on her.

She looked Spring at its loveliest; her little gown was of gauzy silver with touches of jade, a jade girdle interlinked with silver, and at her breast a single blush rose. Her exquisite face was as perfect in its beauty as the rose at her breast. Nadine Navarre was an artist and she had evolved this costume.

"What a lively child," the man who was standing by Karesia exclaimed. "Who is she?"

"Clarice Dascome," Karesia answered. "I think she is the most beautiful girl I have ever seen."

Sarah Whitsey, the little gray-haired, bright-eyed author, had heard and turned swiftly. Judge Whitsey's wife was seven years older than she was on the night when she had given her husband her theory of the Dascome mystery, but none the less clever and vivacious. Karesia noticed the startled and vividly interested way in which she looked at Clarice, and made the connection: she had heard Rossiter ask Mrs. Whitsey, "How is the judge?" This then was the wife of Judge Joseph Whitsey before whom Dascome had been tried.

"John Dascome's daughter?" Mrs. Whitsey asked quickly. "Is she here—alone?"

Universal Adoption Of Mixed Farming Urged in Canada

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. — Universal adoption of mixed farming will insure continued prosperity for western Canada, according to Hon. John Bracken, "Farmer Premier" of Manitoba, in an address here.

"Increasing development of dairying and live stock raising throughout the prairie provinces," said Mr. Bracken, "is placing agriculture on a sounder basis. Grain growing will continue to be the main industry of western Canada and will continue to create an immense amount of wealth. But diversified farming will bring about an agricultural development in the next ten years even greater than the grain growing has in the last two decades."

You just know he's NOT well

There is no reason for you to look or feel this way.

CONSTIPATION means WEAKNESS

Constipation is practically universal among civilized human beings. It is a national curse causing inefficiency and physical unpreparedness. It causes disease, premature old age, lessens endurance and resistance, and many times fatal illness is directly traceable to its obnoxious results. The clear eye, healthy look, vim, vigor and vitality can be had only when the bowels are free and are moving regularly.

Dr. Caldwell's

SYRUP PEPSIN

The Family Laxative

—promptly relieves constipation. It is not a bitter medicine nor a griping, nauseating, uncomfortable physic. It is a pleasing liquid combination of Egyptian senna, pepsin and aromatics that Dr. Caldwell, with his long and extensive practice, found effective and an aid to Nature in performing her proper functions when the bowels were mistreated through improper food, lack of exercise, and indifference to physical sanitation.

Gently Restores The Bowels To Health

The first dose will gently ease the bowels to action and as Nature resumes her proper functions, the dose may be gradually decreased. Your bowels should act at least twice daily. If they do not, you need Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. 10,000,000 bottles sold annually prove its effectiveness. Used nationally for over 30 years.

It is sold everywhere medicine is sold—and guaranteed. Try it at our risk. Your druggist will return your money if it fails to do as promised.

YOUR HEALTH

Baldness May Be a Sign of Weak Heart or Tight Hat

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

RECENTLY a correspondent wrote me:

"In a discussion the other night, it was my contention that unclean hats, that is, those with sweat bands, full of perspiration and oil from the hair, were in the main, contributing factors to baldness. On the other side of the argument it was contended that baldness is hereditary."

Both these men are right and both of them are wrong. I must explain this paradoxical statement.

There can be no doubt that unclean sweat bands in hats may become culture beds for the growth of the germs of disease. Perhaps the germs of some skin disease might develop so extensively in a foul sweat band as to lead to infection of the scalp. The development of disease in the scalp might be followed by baldness or loss of hair in patches. But such a case would be exceptional.

The other man argued that baldness is hereditary. It cannot be denied that President Adams was bald and his descendants were bald. There are many notable examples of baldness through several generations of the same family. This is likely to be founded on family structural similarity. As a man's nose is like his father's, so are the blood vessels.

The scalp is nourished from blood vessels running up the sides and front of the face and the back of the neck. The further removed the blood vessels are from the heart the smaller they are. Any blood vessel to find a side place in the scalp would have to be small because the space between the skull and the outer skin is very thin. For these reasons the amount of blood which can be forced to the crown of the head is limited in quantity.

There can be no growth of hair without free blood supply. The hair is just as dependent on the blood as the growth of plants is upon moisture. Unless the roots of the hair are freely irrigated there can be no growth of the hair and if for any reason the blood supply is seriously interfered with the hair may die from lack of nourishment.

Whenever I see a bald-headed man I know he has a weak heart. I do not mean by this that he has a diseased heart. But I do mean that his heart is not a powerful pump forcing the blood in unfailing stream to the farthest extremities of the body.

Let the man with the weak heart wear a hat a trifle too small for him and so pulled down upon his head that the sweatband presses upon the tiny blood vessels cutting off the circulation of the blood and you have the conditions necessary for the loss of hair.

The sweatband is really a matter of importance. Not alone should it be clean to avoid infecting the scalp, but the sweatband should be elastic and large enough so that the blood vessels of the scalp are not pressed upon.

Vigorous health, sufficient exercise to keep the circulation good and the choice of foods which contain sulphur and the other hair-building materials—through these will come a bodily condition which will defeat the efforts of Father Time to cut down the head of hair which should be the glory of the old man as well as of the youth.

Answers to Health Questions

MRS. C. R. Q.—What effect would a small amount of escaping gas have on the general health and how would its effects be noticeable? The gas in question escaping from a faulty gas stove or pipes.

A.—Such a condition would produce drowsiness, lack of concentration or anemia if endured for an indefinite time. It would also cause nausea later and possibly a cough, due to irritation.

ANXIOUS Q.—I am a woman of 31 years—during the past 5 years I have grown 2 inches and am still increasing in height. I tire very easily and have a feeling of extreme weakness. Could this be the result of unusual growth? What would you advise?

A.—You should consult your doctor and have him suggest treatment under the circumstances. The tired, weak feeling is probably caused as you say by unusual growth.

W. H. Q.—Will you kindly advise what causes night sweats?

A.—This is usually an indication of weakness and is in some instances an early sign of more serious trouble. It would be wise to have a thorough examination so that the proper treatment may be prescribed and followed.

Fruit—Prepare one package of raspberry gelatin, adding more lemon and sugar if needed. Pour gelatin in mold, then diced apples, sliced orange, sliced banana and halved green grapes. Then more gelatin. Walnuts can be added if desired.

Spaghetti—Cook one-half pound of spaghetti until tender in two quarts of boiling salt water, drain and blanch in cold water. Place two tablespoons of butter in skillet and cook a small onion and one green pepper and one cup of celery (do not brown). Lift these vegetables out and then fry one-half pound ground round steak until tender and brown, add one small can of tomato sauce and then add onion, pepper, celery and cooked spaghetti. Season with salt, pepper, dash of red pepper and tablespoon of grated cheese and heat thoroughly. Serve piping hot with grated cheese sprinkled on top.

SGGGESTIONS

If a chicken or beef is well rubbed with a cut lemon before being cooked it will make the meat tender and juicy.

You will find satisfaction in using kerosene to clean an enamel sink. Using gritty substances like powdered pumice removes the fine finish of enamel and as a consequence grease and dirt adhere and will increase pipe stoppage. Don't use kerosene lavishly and send it down the drain unnecessarily. Use a cloth.

Coffee stains on a cloth or on any material are most difficult to eradicate unless treated immediately. Boiling water will remove them if the fiber of the material has not had time thoroughly to absorb the coffee. But if the stain is of long standing, equal parts of yolk of egg and glycerine applied to the spot and allowed to dry on it offer practically the only method of removing them.

This suggestion solves the problem of cleaning the kitchen easily. Divide kitchen into six part, mentally, and do one part of the additional work every morning with the regular clearing up after washing the breakfast dishes. The result is a clean kitchen every day in the week, with only a few minutes of extra work.

ELYRIA—Fred Peters, 32, died as a result of burns received when coal oil, which he was using in an attempt to speed up a fire, exploded in his home at Fields Corners.

NIGHT COUGH QUICKLY RELIEVED.

This is the substance of a letter received from H. W. Webb, Quincy, Ill., "I coughed a great deal, especially at night. Tried almost everything and have found nothing to equal FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND. One dose relieved my cough and I rested well all night." One of the largest selling cough medicines in the World. Contains no opiates. Safe for children. Insist upon Foley's. Refuse substitutes. Sold everywhere.

Says---Now Stiff Joints Must Go!

Joint-Ease they call this wonder working substance, for the reason that when ordinary remedies fail to loosen up the stiff, inflamed rheumatic joint, or reduce the swelling, Joint-Ease succeeds.

It's a good name for a good, clean, penetrating prescription that in just a few months has proven to a multitude of people that lame, swollen, distorted joints can speedily have the kinks taken out of them and work as smoothly as ever.

But Joint-Ease is for bothersome joints, whether knee, ankle, hip, shoulder, spine or finger, and for that purpose its sale is immense.

Jesse D. Holloway or Mathews' Medicine Store and druggists everywhere report a big demand.

Runyon Says

"You Can't Beat 'Em!"
Jack Sharkey Goes to Work.
Is Trying a "Comeback."

ONE who signs 'M. S." asks an unusual question.

"Assuming that you knew you could beat the races pursuing legitimate methods in doing so, would you play the game?"

That is the question.

The answer, of course, is "yes."

Any other answer would be hypocrisy.

The writer is just as eager to acquire sudden wealth as the next man. But "M. S." should learn that there is NO method, legitimate or otherwise, of beating the races.

Ask any bookmaker. He will tell you.

It is wholly ECONOMIC.

There probably is no great sin involved in playing the races, if you can afford the money.

It is a sin if you play them when the loss of the money you are BOUND TO LOSE deprives you of the necessities and comforts to which your work entitles you, if it deprives your family of anything.

It is a sin in that the TIME you waste might be usefully employed. Many men can easily afford the money. No man can afford the TIME.

"M. S." perhaps thinks he has a system for beating the races. If systems of this kind were filed in some government office, like patents, there would be several million of them in the files. And not one of them is worth a nickel.

The horses don't run to systems, if they are permitted to run HONESTLY by their owners, trainers and jockeys. The hoses can't be made to understand systems.

And when they are forced to run DISHONESTLY it is generally for the purpose of beating systems.

Men have committed suicide following systems to their logical conclusion, which almost invariably is FAILURE.

You can't beat 'em!

Let "M. S." walk up to any old bookmaker, and say, "I've got a million dollars, plenty of time, and

Score is Deadlocked Several Times During Battle Which Proves Biggest Event of Season in Sunday School Circuit.

Sunday school basketball league honors for the first half of the present season last night were unanimously awarded the First Methodist Protestant passers following their hard-earned, one point victory over the Lutherans, their nearest rivals. The final score in the M. P.-Lutheran championship clash, staged on the high school gym court before a record breaking crowd, was 21 to 20.

The game resembled in every way that of high school teams as throngs cheered on their favorites. The clash was somewhat rough and neither team had much of anything on the other.

The champions won the game from the foul line, for the Lutherans outscored them from the field. The West Third streeters tossed the ball through the hoops for nine field goals while the best the M. P. cagers could do was five goals.

The Lutherans can blame their defeat to their inability to count from the foul line for out of 16 chances they were successful only twice while the M. P.'s scored 11 times in 22 tries.

The Lutherans got under way with a crushing attack that saw G. Woessner score the first field goal of the game. Wilson scored from the foul line for the M. P.'s. Davis hit the hoop from near the center of the floor giving the Lutherans a three-point lead. Mackey tallied on a free throw for the Protestants. The quarter ended with the Lutherans ahead, 4 to 2.

Mackey's pretty field goal from the center of the floor tied up the score for the Protestants in the second period. Davis broke the tie with a foul for the Lutherans. The lead changed hands again when Wilson scored from the field for the M. P.'s.

G. Woessner brought it back again to the Lutherans when he found the basket for another two-pointer. Thus the lead see-sawed back and forth between the battling contenders. The M. P.'s forged ahead with Todd's two-pointer, and Mackey made good from the foul line, giving the Protestants a 9 to 7 margin at the end of the half.

The Lutherans again savagely tore into the ranks of the foe at the outset of the third period. Davis, Schneidmiller and G. Woessner registered successive field goals and the Lutherans took a four-point lead. Both teams made good from the free line. Wilson made a foul line tally and Todd came through with a field goal which knotted the count for the Protestants. Todd's field goal gave the M. P. cagers the lead at the end of the third period with the score standing 15 to 14.

The Lutherans went into the lead when G. Woessner and Davis scored from the field, the baskets putting them three points ahead. Mackey's foul and Wilson's field goal tied it up. Then Mackey hooped the ball three times straight from the foul line. With a minute to go, Kibble for the Lutherans hit the bull's eye from back of center, and his team still had a chance to win. But the scoring was over after that shot and the M. P.'s left the floor with coveted honors.

To name the individual star of the game would be difficult as every player on both teams was doing his level best and then some, from start to finish. Mackey and Wilson were scoring stars for the winners while G. Woessner and Davis performed in a similar capacity for the losers.

The opening game of the evening, in which Park Boulevards defeated the First Presbyterians, 51 to 15, proved a fitting preliminary to the title scrap, although the Presbyterians were no match for the Boulevard lads. Barnes, the Kirkhams and McBee did most of the scoring for the Parks while Allison, Todd and Householder were the chief performers for the Presbyterians.

Lineups and summaries:

Park Boulevards		First Presby.
Barnes	F	Allison
F. Kirkham	F	George
O. Kirkham	C	McShane
Hall	G	Householder
McKee	G	Todd

Substitutions — Craven for Hall, Crawford for McKee.

First M. P.		Lutherans
Mackey	F	G. Woessner
Wilson	F	R. Woessner
Todd	C	Schneidmiller
Weikart	G	Kibble
Carey	G	Davis

Substitutions — Dawson for Davis, Anthony for R. Woessner.

Foul goals—Mack 6, Wilson 3, Todd, Carey, Davis 2.

Referee, McConville; timer, Price; scorer, Brown.

Last Night's Fights

O'Connell Will Not Go East Unless He's Promised Immunity

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29—Jimmy O'Connell, the giant outfielder, intends to spend many months in California's golden sunshine, his attorney, Joseph McInery, announced here today.

"Jimmy O'Connell has been refused the immunity he demanded by the New York district attorney and therefore will not go East to testify in the probe of the alleged attempt to bribe Heinie Sand, Phillie's infielder," said McInerny.

"Get Cozy Dolan to talk and then you can get all the higherups and all the boys in this affair.

"We don't blame Judge Landis. He did all he could in this investigation and was without authority to go further but the district attorney can go further and make a real investigation.

"However, O'Connell has no intention of testifying unless a genuine investigatfon is assured and unless he is promised immunity."

McInerny said in response to a question, that O'Connell has nothing to tell. He said, if the outfielder went to New York he would relate the same story he did in his "confession."

Thirty Thousand is Gibbons' Price for Battle With Feunte

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 29.—Thirty thousand dollars or a privilege of 40 per cent of the gate receipts. That is what Tommy Gibbons, runner up for the heavyweight crown of Jack Dempsey, is reported to want for a match here on February 21 with Tony Fuente. This figure, it was said today, was quoted by Eddie Kane, Gibbons' manager, to Dick Donald, who replied he would guarantee $20,000 with an alternate privilege of 35 per cent of the gate receipts.

Donald plans to stage the bout in Washington Park here on the evening before Washington's birthday. On the same card it is planned to have Sammy Mandell meet Phil Salvadore and Kane is said to want a $7,500 guarantee for Mandell's appearance.

Fuente, with his manager, Fred Winsor, and Fred Fulton and his manager are scheduled to go on trial here today for conspiracy to violate the California boxing laws as the result of a fight staged here some time ago in which Fuente disposed of Fulton via the K. O. route in unusual short order.

Training Camp Will Be Discontinued by Bison Grid Leaders

BETHANY, W. Va., Jan. 29.—Athletic Director Elder of Bethany college has announced that in all probability there will be no training camp at the Bison school next year before the opening of the regular college session.

The fact that the opening game of the season will not be played until October 3 is the reason for discontinuing the two weeks of training camp before the opening of school.

A training camp has been maintained at Bethany for several years but mainly because the grid season opened early and it was necessary to give the men the extra two weeks' drill and training.

Potters Take Lead In First Half and Win From Irondale

The Potters Co-Operative floor squad Tuesday night defeated the Irondale Independents, at Irondale, by the count of 30 to 20.

The Potters piled up a commanding lead in the first half of the game. The score was 19 to 7 when play was resumed in the second half. In the third period Irondale put on a rally but was unable to overcome the points that the Potters had amassed at the outset of the battle.

Myers, Brookes and Hogue were the stars for the Irondale passers. Zuck was high point maker with five field goals and two fouls. The classy guarding of Wallace and McGuinness was too much for the home lads. The lineup:

Potters		Irondale
Ward	F	Sperandi
Cooper	F	Davis
Zuck	C	Hogue
McGuinness	G	Close
Wallace	G	Brookes

Fouls—Zuck 2, Hogue, Davis.

Referee—H. Smith.

Two British Boxers To Make Appearance Tonight in New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 29—Two British boxers, representing Tex O'Rourke's three-year quest of a representative English heavyweight at the behest of a London syndicate, will make their American debut tonight at the Manhattan A. C. They are Billy Prestage who will meet Arthur Smith, and Les Price, who will face smiling Bill Nolan.

Prestige is twenty years old, 6 feet and 2 inches in height and weight 192 pounds. He is an ex-foundryman from Rugby. Price, said to be wealthy in his own right, has taken up boling as a hobby. He is six feet, one inch in height and weighs 185 pounds. He comes from Bristol.

If it wasn't for the word "biliousness" we wouldn't know how to designate the results that follow over eating and lack of exercise.

Y Baseball Loop Ready For Action

Four Teams Entered for Play in Indoor League.

The Y. M. C. A. industrial baseball league was organized last night at a meeting in the "Y."

The league will get under way with four teams in action, including Laughlin 5, Laughlin 6, Potters and Smith-Phillips. Games will be played on the schedule formerly used by the volleyball league — Mondays and Wednesdays.

The first game on the Monday night dates will start at 8 and the second at 8:45. The Wednesday games will be of half-hour duration, the first game commencing at 7 and the second at 7:30, in order to permit the basketball circuit to run its games according to schedule.

Any player working at the shop represented by the team will be eligible to take part in the games.

Teams will hold separate meetings before the week-end to appoint their own managers.

D. E. McVey, of Laughlin 6, was elected president and C. Moore, of Potters Co-operative, secretary of the circuit.

Mount Union Five Will Battle Hiram Passers Saturday

ALLIANCE, Jan. 29.—Mount Union college cage team treks down to Hiram Saturday, January 31, for a game with the Disciples. This will be Coach Detrick's first game abroad this season.

Since the Hiram five beat Reserve at Cleveland, and since their floor is smaller than Mount's men are used to, the game will be a hard one. The enemy's court squad is a veteran one, Hurd being their star player.

Mountites engage the Heidelberg five on the home floor next Tuesday, February 3.

Labor, Miller, and Bromby, are showing excellent form and make a powerful triumvirate as the backbone of the Purple attack.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—After watching Paavo Nurmi deposit his fifteen indoor record in the athletic morgue, while winning the Wanamaker mile and a half last night, Joe Loomis, national champion of another day and age, delivered himself of the opinion that the Finn has merely kidded the great American public to date. Loomis thinks that, not unlike John Paul Jones, Admiral Perry, or somebody who said he had just begun to fight, Paavo hasn't even begun to run.

The man who has made the records fall right and left in the path of his twingling toes has only given eighty percent of his best since coming to America, the ex-champion declared.

Nurmi, he says, can do a half mile in 1:49, the mile in 4 minutes, two miles in 9 minutes and so on at a corresponding speed up to ten miles.

"This talk of Nurmi's wonderful achievements is a joke," said Loomis, who has seen the great Finn in most of his races here. "Why, that man can take every one of the fifteen records he has made on our indoor tracks and break them over all against by as much as five seconds.

The public seems to be dazzled by his performances but it has missed the vital fact that the man has been under wraps in every race.

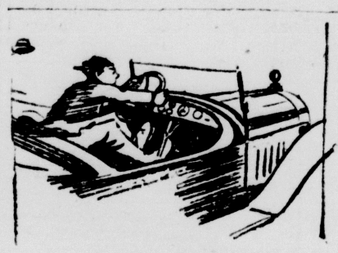

Loomis added that he didn't considered Nurmi a limelight seeker and that, therefore, no one would really see him run until a new and almost equally gifted contender is developed.

The present lot, he says, will not do at all; in fact, ought to be given handicaps, Joie Ray included, in order to make the business interesting.

"Six or seven years ago Ray would have made Nurmi step some and you would have seen records created that would make the present standards look sick," Loomis declared. "But Joie is not the runner he was, in spite of general opinion to the contrary. This idea, I think, has been fostered by the fact that Ray ran 4:14 for the mile against Nurmi. But it is a fallacy. Seven years ago Nurmi would have carried Ray along on at least two seconds faster than he can do now.

"As it is, Nurmi's competition is such that he plays around during a race. In the special three quarters on Tuesday night he did everything a runner shouldn't do and yet he won, pulled up, in record time. I am not criticising his tactics, however, because I think he knew perfectly well that he didn't have to resort to strategy.

"Nurmi has a million dollar pair of legs and they tell me he is very intelligent. That is an unbeatable combination. If he really makes up his mind to do, no record will safe, from Ted Meredith's half mile on up to ten miles."

Murrin May Break Into Mountaineer Lineup This Week

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 29.—There is a strong possibility that Clarence Murrin will break into the regular West Virginia university lineup while the Mountaineer basketball squad is on its annual between semester trip. In practice this week Coach Francis H. Stadsvold has been giving Murrin steady work at forward, and the former Parkersburg high athlete stands a good chance of getting into the Washington and Lee game at Charleston, W. Va., this Saturday and the battles with the University of Kentucky and Marietta college the first part of next week.

Murrin was not a member of the party that invaded western Pennsylvania on the first trip of the year and at that time is was thought that he had not been successful in his fight for a place on the varsity squad. He kept on fighting, and before notified that he would be able to carry nine players on this trip Coach Stadsvold started grooming Murrin for relief service. It was clear that he intended to have Murrin with the squad for the W. and L., Kentucky and Marietta engagements even if it had been necessary to leave one tof the men taken on the earlier jaunt at home.

Sunday School Loop Games for Tonight Put Off to Friday

Because of an entertainment that is to be held at the First Methodist Protestant church tonight the Sunday school league basketball contests scheduled to be played on the First Methodist Protestant floor have been postponed until tomorrow night, the Chester Presbyterians meeting the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal five. The game between the First Christians and the United Presbyterians, scheduled for tonight, will be played at a later date.

Runyon Says:

health, and a system for beating the races by legitimate methods."

The bookmaker will answer:

"You haven't got a chance!"

He was a real good fighter at his best, picturesque, colorful. He drew big crowds whenever he appeared in a boxing show in New York. He made considerable money.

Also he spent considerable money. The little man loved Broadway, with its lights, its crowds, its "good times." He did much dancing in cabarets, a pair of shiny patent leather shoes on his nimble feet.

He was a fine dancer. If he had covered as much territory in early morning road work through Central Park as he covered in dancing he would have maintained great physical condition.

The writer often used to see Sharkey skipping about the dance floors along Broadway, a good-natured, happy-go-lucky little chap.

He wrote of Sharkey on several occasions that he would wind up where all fighters who do their training on Broadway wind up, past, present, and future.

You haven't heard much of him for some time, have you?

He left his fights on Broadway. The last time the writer saw him in a ring, the little fellow couldn't fight himself into a good perspiration. You had to feel sorry for Sharkey. He always was a pleasant little man.

He even flashed a faint smile on this occasion. Perhaps he was smiling at his own efforts, thinking of what he USED TO BE.

Now it seems that a friend has come to Sharkey's aid in an effort to send the little chap back to the ring in CONDITION.

The friend has adopted a novel method that may succeed. He is keeping Sharkey MENTALLY occupied. That is a good scheme. The trouble with the average boxer today is he doesn't have anything to THINK about when not in the ring.

Sharkey's friend is Humbert J. Fugazy, son of a wealthy banker, and well known himself in boxing and political circles. He has induced Sharkey to buy a billiard academy and bowling alley at 152 Bleecker street on the lower East Side.

This is the theory underlying Mr. Fugazy's advice:

By getting Sharkey to go into business, he gives Sharkey regular hours.

To keep the business going, Sharkey must be there at all times during the day. He must report at his place of business every morning at 7 o'clock. He leaves at 5 o'clock, and is in bed a few hours later.

Before he became a business man, Sharkey had no idea of the value of a dollar. He was open-handed, reckless. Now, as a business man, a dollar is a dollar to him. He is learning to take care of his money.

Sharkey has commenced to feel better, to look better.

He didn't want to go into business. He thought he could keep on fighting just as he was. It sometimes is quite difficult to make fighters realize tha they are "bad."

He appreciates the difference now that he has commenced to attain condition. A few months of regular living may send Sharkey back to the ring in his old form. In the meantime Shakey is winning his greatest victory, a victory over HIMSELF.

If any young boxer just starting out on his professional career wishes a few words of sage advice, he might well consult little Jack Sharkey.

Sharkey can tell him something that may be of immense value to the youth later on, when things are breaking nicely for him, the money pouring in and people telling him how good he is.

One thing you may be sure Sharkey will tell the young man is:

"Keep away from that Broadway!"

Yankee Boss And Hurler Confer But Is It About Team's Chances?

Miller Huggins, manager of the ex-champion Yankees, is wintering in St. Petersburg, Fla., where the permanent training camp of the team is being completed. Bob Shawkey, veteran hurler, is also sojourning at St. Pete. Here they are on a bit of Florida real estate. Bet one of them is selling tother some of it.

BIG MOMENTS in SPORT.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH,
International News Service Sport Editor.

No. 4.—When Tilden Gambled His All on One Shot.

William T. Tilden is not altogether immune to defeat. Vincent Richards has beaten him on occasions; Bill Johnston holds at least one important decision over him. So does Lindley Murray. But none of them can do much about it when the young man decides that he really owes it to himself to win.

Murray took a fall out of him in the national finals of 1918 and Johnston repeated the following year. That, however, was before Tilden became great. He has lost neither a Davis Cup nor a national championship match in the last five years. Once and once only was he as close as a dead heat to defeat in the national finals. And therein rests the plot.

It came in the national championships of 1922 at the Germantown Cricket Club, Philadelphia, and Johnston, volleying with deadly intensity and using his famed forehand drive to excellent purpose, had brought the situation to a head by winning the first two sets. He lost the third and the principals retired to the dressing room for intermission.

Johnston Outplayed.

Johnston had been outplayed in the third set, but he was a new man when he returned to the courts. He jockeyed Tilden out of position, forced the going at all times and altogether comported himself as a champion-in-prospect should. He won the first four games of the fourth set and was within eight points of the championship. He carried the points to love-forty in the fifth game and needed only five points to renew acquaintance with a title that had been his personal property in 1915 and 1919.

Driving hard to Tilden's backhand, he rushed the net with the laudable idea of volleying the game-point out of the champion's reach. Tilden was in the far corner of the court as he received the ball and his return was none too good. It was a weak lob that went directly to Johnston at the net, and as the ball rose in the air the gallery knew that only a miracle could prevent Johnston from winning the game, which almost inevitably would carry with it the set and match.

The miracle happened. As soon as he returned the ball Tilden began running toward the opposite corner of the court with a speed that only Tilden, among tennis players, can summon. Had Johnston crossed him by smashing to his original position, Tilden would have been caught on his feet flat. But Johnston didn't.

Does the Obvious.

He elected to do the obvious by smashing so hard to the extreme corner that when Tilden met the ball he was half way across the adjoining court. From that position he had a space about the size of a pocket handkerchief to shoot at and not the slighest chance of meeting Johnston's return volley, if any.

"As I ran to meet that ball," Tilden afterward explained to the writer, "I realized I was in the tightest position of my career. I decided to give the ball everything I had. It was not a moment in which to play safe. I just smashed the ball and hoped for the best."

He got it. Never has the writer seen a more perfect shot come back across the net. It was unreturnable as it whistled beyond Johnston's reach and ricocheted in mid-court for a perfect placement ace.

Somehow, fight as he would, Johnston was a beaten man from that moment. Ultimately, the points went to dence, and he lost the game. Ultimately, he lost the set. Ultimately, he lost the following set, the match and the title.

In the shadow of defeat that day Tilden was greater than ever he has been in victory.

EAST END
POTTERS HEAR FORCEFUL TALK

Evangelist Kaye Speaks at Church of Christ Here.

A large crowd attended the services last evening at the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ, where Rev. Harry Kaye delivered one of the most forceful sermons of the campaign when he spoke to potters and their friends on the subject, "In the Potters House," which was found in the book of Jeremiah 18:3. His sermon subject for this evening is "The Credentials of Jesus."

He said in part as follows: "I believe that the potters' work is a business of art. At this day and age there are only a few that are willing to work hard, while the rest of us look for the easy jobs. Working in a pottery is not easy work, there are a lot of people in this world that are wanting to make money faster than they earn it.

"Jeremiah pictures man as a potter. God tonight is the potter, the wheel on which God is using, is my experience. God moulds us from an ugly mass of clay into a thing of beauty. He's taking us tonight and is trying to mould us into a thing of beauty. God wants no other material tonight but you and me.

"We find that the potter is right and that he has unlimited power. What we have belongs to God. God has the power and tonight he is moulding you and I as he wishes. Apart from God's will I have no part. God gives us a will to do, whether we choose to do right or wrong. He is not forcing any one to do right, but he is asking you to do right.

"I can will to do—right or wrong, but if I go to hell I have no one to blame but myself. Now is the time to open up to God's will. God and man are greater than the potter, than the clay. The potter and clay cannot communicate with God, but you and I can have a real communication whenever we desire, if we only trust our Christ.

"Old Lucifer said it is better to reign in hell than serve in heaven, that is what happened to him. He was kicked out of heaven because he rebelled, but I hope you are better than the devil. You cannot get away from God if you do serve the devil, because the devil is going to be put in chains, himself, God never created the devil. The devil created himself.

"The potter gains little, but the clay gains much. God has very little to gain through us. Instead of being a sinner out in this cruel sincursed world, as you are, you can be the child of a King. We find that the wheel is the church of Christ. Do the prayers that we utter tell the story of the old cross? Do the sermons that we preach tell the old, old story? If they don't there is something wrong.

"The Bible is our book of disciples. Our trials in this life are but the turning of the wheel. The thirty pieces of silver bought the potters' field. The Lord came that he might remould the wrecks that we find on the highways of life."

Who Was Blunderer at Jutland—Beatty or Jellicoe? Britain Asks

Who was responsible for the failure of the British to destroy the German fleet at Jutland, the greatest, yet most indecisive naval battle of modern times? The question is again agitating Britain, following the publication of a book by Admiral Sir Reginald Bacon in which Admiral Earl Beatty (right) is blamed. Until now the responsibility has rested largely upon Admiral Viscount Jellicoe (left).

OAKLAND CHURCH MEETS CONTINUE

Evangelist R. G. Wilkin, of Freeport, Ill., addressed another large audience last evening in the Oakland Free Methodist church. The campaign will close with three services Sunday. During the meetings many have professed conversion.

Lodge Officers Installed.

Large number of Odd Fellows attended the meeting of Tri-State Encampment, held last evening in the Hill building, Mulberry street. Delegations were in attendance from the various lodges in the district. Refreshments were served at the close of the exercises.

Orchestra Practice.

Orchestra members of the Second Presbyterian and Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal churches will hold practice sessions this evening in their respective churches. Choir practice will be held in both the above churches tomorrow evening.

Oberlin Funeral.

Funeral services for Donald C. Oberlin, 14 years old, were held this afternoon at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wolf, St. George street. A. E. Wickum, officiated.

Burial was made in Riverview cemetery.

Scouts To Meet.

A COUGH REMEDY WITHOUT OPIATES.

Many cough preparations contain some one or more harmful drugs which are added to take the place of opiates. None of these narotic substitutes have ever been used in FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND. The name of every ingredient is plainly printed on every carton. You know what you are taking when you take Foley's. It clings to the throat. Good for old and young. You have a cough, why not try it. Refuse substitutes. Sold everywhere.

VERSE AND WORSE

By Larry Flint

Mouldin' Life.

Reckon life is whut yuh make it;
Grief an' sorrow ef uh take it
Like a pill; er sweet an' soothin'
Ef you walk yer pathway smoothin'
Out th' rough spots fer th' others
Comin' after yuh—yer brothers;
Never growlin'; never mopin';
Always trustin' life an' hopin.'

Reckon loads ain't hard ner labor
Ef yuh face 'em with yer neighbor
Hand in hand. An' woe an' grievin'
Have a funny way o' leavin'
When they see a face thet's grinnin,
Fer th' feller thet is winnin,'
Ef youh'll notice, laughs at sorrow,
Trustin' in a bright tomorrow.

Dark will turn t' dawn, I reckon,
Ef you turn frum gloom an' beckon
Fer th' sunshine. Never fear it—
Yer tomorrow; thet's th' spirit!
Ef it's tough, be brave. God never
Made a day thet lasts forever.
Grin an' bear it; never mind it—
There's another right behind it.

POEMS THAT LIVE

Habitat

I build a house I call my own
To shut the city out,
With brick and mortar, wood and stone
I hedge myself about.

With bread and sweet philosophy
I arm myself within,
That I may view composedly
The city's dirt and sin.

But see, one window opens wide—
And may it never close—
For through it like a mighty tide
The city's music flows;

The wheels of work, the tears of sin—
Laughter to shake the skies—
And I who at the window lean
Am grown a little wise.

Don't Fuss With Mustard Plasters!

Musterole Works Without the Bliste.—Easier, Quicker

There's no sense in mixing a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can easily relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole.

Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of the present white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Stop Night Coughing This Simple Way

People who have persistent, annoying coughing spells at night, and who through loss of valuable sleep are weakening their systems and laying themselves open to dangerous infections, can stop their distressing trouble promptly by a very simple treatment. Hundreds who have hardly been able to rest at all for coughing, have gotten their full night's sleep the very first time they tried it.

The treatment is based on a remarkable prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You simply take a teaspoonful at night before retiring and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it, without following with water. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing. The result is that you usually sleep as soundly as a babe the very first night, and the entire cough condition goes in a very short time.

The prescription is highly recommended for coughs, chest colds, hoarseness and bronchitis, and is wonderful for children's coughs and spasmodic croup—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. It is on sale at all good druggists. Ask for

SICK WOMEN ATTENTION!

Norfolk, Virginia. — "If you only knew how many women and girls have taken your medicine by hearing my testimony, it would seem wonderful to you. Every day and every chance I have I advise some one to try it. It was in June, 1904, when I had given up to never get well, that I wrote to you. My husband went to the drug-store and brought the Vegetable Compound home to me. In a few days I began to improve and I have often taken it since. I am now passing through the Change of Life and still stick by it and am enjoying wonderful health. When I first started with your medicines I was a mere shadow. My health seemed to be gone. The last doctor I had said he would give me no more local treatments unless I went to the Hospital and was operated on. That was when I gave the doctors up. Now I am a healthy robust woman. I wish I could tell the world what a wonderful medicine Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is. I will be only too glad to answer letters from anywhere. I wish all sick women would take it."—Mrs. J. A. Jones, 317 Colley Avenue, Norfolk, Virginia.

SIX IN FAMILY ASPHYXIATED

HUSBAND, WIFE AND FOUR TOTS DIE WHEN GAS FLOODS HOME

Mine Cave-in Causes Broken Pipe at West Scranton.

OTHERS SAVED

Neighbors, Alarmed, Break Down Door, Finding Victims.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 29.—The entire family of Louis Desino, including himself, his wife and four small children was wiped out today by illuminating gas that flooded their home at West Scranton, a suburb, after a pipe had been broken by a mine cave-in. Another family was overcome at the same time, but police arrived in time with pulmotors to save them.

Rescuers Brave Flames.

The dead:

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Desino, and their children, Stanley, 5; Upola, 8; Margaret, 3, and a year-old daughter.

The bodies were found by a neighbor, Christopher Mellon. Mellon said he pounded on the front door and shouted to the occupants. When he was unable to arouse the Desinos, he called other neighbors and broke down the door.

The house was filled with the poisonous fumes and the rescuers had difficulty in entering. Placing handkerchiefs about their mouths and noses, they dashed into the house, opening the windows. Later they entered and found the six members of the family dead in their beds.

Police believe that one of the mine galleries that honeycomb the neighborhood caved in close to the surface and the main broke beneath the weight of the earth.

Ganna Walska Wins Plaudits in Grand Opera Debut Abroad

NICE, Jan. 29.—Ganna Walska looked forward today to a triumphal opera tour of Europe with an optimism spurred by her modified success on the Riveria last night.

"I was slightly nervous during the first act," she said, "but on the whole I am pleased with the outcome. I intend to continue my music and expect to sing in France and probably in Germany and Czecho-Slovakia this summer.

Walska, who is Mrs. Harold McCormick in private life, faced an opera house packed with Americans and British, many of whom had motored from neighboring resorts to attend her debut here in "Madame Butterfly."

She seemed badly stage frightened in the first act and there were loud remarks and catcalls from the audience but she overcame her nervousness in the second and third acts and received sympathetic applause.

Love Spurned, Yale Man Wounds Widow And Kills Himself

BRIDGEPORT, W. Va., Jan. 29. — After her repeated refusals to marry him, Neeson Woods, 29, of Phillippi W. Va., shot and probably fatally wounded Mrs. George Warder, 23-year-old widow, at her brother's home here today, and then killed himself by firing the remaining bullets in his revolver into his own body.

Woods, a Yale university student, and son of the late J. E. Woods, prominent West Virginia attorney, had been desperately infatuated with the charming young widow for some time, but it is believed her parents and other kinfolk opposed the match.

"Jazz-Struck" Matricide May Know Her Fate Before Night

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—"Jazz-struck" Dorothy Ellingson, who murdered her mother so she could attend a dancing party, may know her fate today.

The 16-year-old girl was scheduled to appear before Juvenile Judge Frank Murasky, who will hear her case at a secret court session. Judge Murasky will decide whether Dorothy is to spend the rest of her girlhood, until she is 23, at the Girls' school in Venturo, Cal., or bound over to the superior court to stand trial for murder.

While she waited for her trip to detention home to appear before the juvenile judge, the mother-slayer amused herself with cross-word puzzles, one of the first words she spelled out was "rogue" and another was "lucky."

"I wonder if I will be lucky today," the red-headed daughter of "Jazzland" asked Policewoman Kathryn Sullivan.

The cases of three of Dorothy's night-life friends, Keith Lord, Harry Chinitz and Emil Kreuter, members of a jazz orchestra, come up today. The men are charged with contributing to the girl's delinquency.

Department Store Owner's Stepdaughter Surprises Burglars.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 29.—Believed to have been abducted from her home as she surprised robbers early this morning, Mary Ellen Mellon, 19, was found two hours later near University hospital, bound and gagged.

Miss Mellon is a step-daughter of Haliburton, large department store owner. She is prominent in younger society circles. She is no relation to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

The girl told police this morning that she heard a noise in the living room and went down stairs to investigate.

A few moments later, her mother and stepfather heard her scream "Mother ——!"

When they got down stairs, the girl had disappeared.

PEKING, Jan. 29.—Dr. Sun Yet Sen, Chinese dictator, operated on for liver trouble at the American Rockefeller hospital here, passed a comfortable night, a hospital bulletin said today.

His pulse was 108 and his temperature almost normal. The patient was announced as free from pain and taking nourishment. The surgical wound was reported "progressing satisfactorily."

Benedum Elected Health Board Chief To Succeed Croxall

Ralph Benedum, drug clerk, was elected president of the health board, to succeed Joseph T. Croxall, resigned, at the reorganization meeting in the clinic rooms, Diamond, last night.

Attorney G. L. Brokaw, new member, qualified. T. Gerald Ryan was reappointed clerk for one year. Other appointments were Dr. John A. Fraser, health commissioner; D. J. McKeever, sanitary inspector, and R. E. Hill, assistant sanitary inspector and sealer of weights and measures.

Deaths exceeded births in East Liverpool during January, according to Mrs. Alice M. Davidson, deputy registrar of vital statistics. Deaths totaled 49, 33 males and 19 females, while births numbered 45, of which 20 were males and 25 females.

Dr. Fraser reported the following contagious diseases: Scarlet fever 1, tuberculosis 1, measles 1, mumps 1, and chicken pox 1. In the clinic nine new cases were reported, four others returned, six discharged and two discontinued. A total of 159 male and 26 female treatments were given.

Chamber of Commerce Members Delighted by Editor-Author.

A plea for the preservation of the American home and more interest in politics and elections to safeguard American ideals and principles was voiced by George Creel, reporter, editor, magazine writer and chairman of the committee on public information during the World war, in an address on "Current Events and Public Men," delivered before 200 men and women, at the annual dinner meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, last evening.

He condemned congress, lauded the League of Nations, praised prohibition, discussed taxes, referred to the Ku Klux Klan and, in a humorous manner, touched up such prominent figures as President Coolidge, Henry Ford, W. J. Bryan, Senator La Follette, and other national characters. Frequently he was forced to stop to allow the audience to quiet down from laughter at his remarks.

Joseph Betz, president of the chamber, presided and introduced the speaker. J. W. Moore read the auditor's report showing the Chamber's assets to be approximately $2,900 at the close of last year.

Directors Are Elected

Attorney Blaine H. Cochran rendered two solo numbers. He and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Danks Cochran, also sang a duet. Music, during the dinner was furnished by Sayer's Premier Syncopators.

Lee C. Cooper announced the result of the Chamber of Commerce election for the board of directors. New members of the board, elected for terms of three years, include D. M. Ogilvie, F. B. Lawrence, C. W. Heliyer, C. C. Ashbaugh, John B. MacDonald, J. W. Moore and Malcolm W. Thompson. Reports of H. B. Barth, secretary of the Chamber, covering 24 pages, were distributed.

Pottery Workers Will Attend Church Of Christ Tonight

A large delegation of pottery workers will attend the Lockhart revival service at the First Church of Christ, corner Fourth and College streets, tonight. The evangelist will discuss "Earthen Vessels." A contingent of church people from Toronto will also be present.

Many persons were baptized at last night's service. Dr. Lockhart used the subject "The New Birth" for his sermon. Music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Harbinson.

In his discourse, the evangelist said:

"Jesus says, 'Ye must be born again.' He did not say that if you liked the people in the church and all the doctrines taught agreed with your way of thinking that you might, if it suited you, be born again. But he said, 'Ye must!'"

Woman's Lifeless Body is Found in Wellsville Home

The lifeless body of Blanch Marsh, 37 years old, formerely employed at the Riverview hotel, Third and Main streets, Wellsville, was found late last night in her room at a private residence in Buckeye avenue.

The body is being held in the John Haugh funeral home pending the arrival of Coroner Van Fossen tomororw morning.

Syrian woman, with whom the girl resided, found the body. The cause of death, it is said, has not been determined.

U. S. TRAINING FOR WAR VETS IS NEAR CLOSE

Thirty-one Thousand Men in Schools and Plants Today.

COST $6,300 EACH

Trainees Have Been Instructed in 400 Vocations.

BY ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Government training of veretans of the World War, whose wounds or disabilities incapacitated them for pre-war occupations, is drawing rapidly to a close.

The United States veterans' bureau announced today that by June 30, the last day upon which ex-soldiers may enter vocational training, approximately 30,000 men will be under instruction. All trainees must complete their course by June 30, 1926.

The government has spent $591,469,000 in the training of ex-soldiers or an average cost of $6,300 for each man.

Illiterates Among Enrolled

About 31,000 veterans are in government and private schools and under training in industrial and commercial plants today. A comparatively small number will be accepted prior to June 30, while nearly half of the present trainees will be rehabilitated in the next five months, according to the veterans' bureau.

Trainees have been instructed in more than 400 vocations. About half of them studied in the industrial trades while from 7,000 to 8,000 studied law, medicine or other professional work.

Veterans' bureau officials estimated that less than 10 per cent of the veterans who applied for training were illiterate at their discharge from the army. A large number of the illiterates have been furnished the rudiments of a common school education by the government.

Disabled Stage "Comeback."

The number of men in training has been declining rapidly since the peak of 109,000 in April, 1922. A comparatively few men will be in training when the system is abolished in June, 1926, officials said.

DIPHTHERIA EPIDEMIC SWEEPS ALASKAN TOWN; HUNDREDS ARE DYING

Through Arctic Night, With Temperatures Ranging as Low as 58 Degrees Below Zero, Champion Drivers and Picked Dog Teams Rush From Nenana With Life-Giving Serum.

DREAD DISEASE IS THREATENING TO WIPE OUT FAR NORTH COMMUNITY

Physicians Declare Many Lives Will be Saved if Messengers and Faithful Canines Triumph Over 1,000-mile Frozen Trail—Most of Afflicted are Eskimos, According to Reports.

Through the Arctic night, with temperatures ranging as low as 58 degrees below zero, champion drivers and their picked dog teams rushed from Nenana, on the Alaska railway, to Nome with precious life-giving serum to be used in the battle against diphtheria, which is threatening to wipe out the far north town.

A supply of anti-toxin furnished by Dr. J. B. Beeson, former Livington, Mont., and Seattle, Wash., physicians, now in Anchorage, was started from here yesterday to striken Nome, and physicians declared should men and dogs triumph over the frozen trail in the race against the dread disease they would arrive in Nome in time to save many lives.

"Wild Bill" Shannon, with nine crack dogs, made the first leg of the 1,000-mile journey to Nome in a single mush. Covering 60 miles, his time was valuable.

Many Drivers Volunteer

Waiting for Shannon at Tolovana was Jim Kalland, another of the north's famous mushers, with a fleet string of dogs and a light Yukon sled. Kalland will make the second lap of the "death race."

Wireless messages sent along the route to Nome brought a generous response today form scores of drivers who wanted to enter the lists for the suffering men, women and children of Nome. They were eager to risk their lives and dogs in the wild ride over the snow.

Bitter Storm Rages

Reports here showed many communities had been locked in the grip of a bitter storm for the past two weeks. Temperatures ranged around 50 below zero and falling below that in many places.

The greatest danger to the mushers with their life-giving cargo will be along the lower Yukon river, where Arctic blizzards sweep across a broad stretch of country, including Norton Bay, the spot where many brave men of the trail have passed out in the grip of the "ice gods."

Among the interested watchers of the race was Dr. Beeson, who gave the serum and who was the hero of another famous race with death when he rushed anti-toxin to Iditarod.

A lightless city was forecast within the near future unless heavy rains were received.

Ill less than two weeks, he was removed to the hospital last night.

He was born here. During recent years he has been associated with his father, H. F. McNutt, of the McNutt Printing company, Market street job printer. Two years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Ruth Scott. He was a member of the Elks lodge and the First Presbyterian church.

Besides his wife and father, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Sara McNutt, and two brothers, Harold and James, all of this city.

Inn Cabaret Owner Can't Tell Grandma From Modern Flapper

CINCINNATI, Jan. 29.—"You can't tell the grandmothers from the flappers nowadays," complained John Holland, proprietor of Peacock Inn cabaret, who was fined $200 and costs late Wednesday in juvenile court, for allowing girls under 17 to enter his place. The girls in question were members of a party entertained at the inn by Ruth Remus, daughter of George Remus, "king of the bootleggers," now serving sentence in Atlanta penitentiary.

TWENTY MINUTES BEHIND SCENES AT WASHINGTON, D. C., AND PARIS WITH MAN WHO KNOWS

Approximately 200 members and guests of the Chamber of Commerce were taken behind scenes of the exciting war-time events in Washington and Paris for 20 minutes last night by a man who was in a position to know who's who and what's what.

The guide was George Creel, reporter, editor, magazine writer and humorist, who was chairman of the committee on public information from 1917 to 1919.

Creel organized and directed the bureau established by Woodrow Wilson to maintain the morale of the American people and the allies and drive home to the peoples of enemy countries the real purpose of Uncle Sam in casting his lot with France, Great Britain, Belgium and other European nations against German autocracy.

Rapid Fire of Questions.

Granting the request of several guests, Creel answered a rapid fire of questions pertaining to the Wilson administration, the Paris conference and some of the war period rumors, expressed his opinion of certain American and European statesmen, and gave a first hand "size up" of other men who are or have been in the public eye.

The feature followed his address on "Current Events and Public Men."

The questions, which were read by T. T. Jones, and the answers given by Creel, follow:

Why Wood Didn't Go To Europe.

Q.—What was the real reason General Wood was not permitted to go to Europe during the World war?

A.—Because Pershing did not want him over there at any price. When General Pershing was sent overseas to command the American forces, he was given a promise by the war department that no one would be sent across without his approval. And General Wood's name was not on the list of officers Pershing sent back.

Q.—Did those in the Paris conference consider Lloyd George or Clemenceau the greater man?

A.—Clemenceau was by far the outstanding figure at the conference. He had a conviction and stood for that conviction—that Germany must pay and that France must be secured. Lloyd George was on one side one day and on the opposite side the next day. One could never tell where he stood.

Q.—What influence will W. J. Bryan have in Democracy from now on?

A.—About as much as he had in the last Democratic convention and campaign.

Wilson Was Sincere.

Q.—Was President Wilson sincere in trying to keep us out of war?

A.—In the campaign of 1916, the campaign cry, "he kept us out of war," was used by many of the newspapers, yet in every speech which Wilson made in that campaign he announced that if certain things came to happen United States would be compelled to enter the World war. He was sincere in his attempt to keep the United States neutral in the European conflict.

Q.—Why did Wilson change his attitude on war so quickly after the 1916 election?

A.—My reply to the other question answers that also.

Q—Who really is Mrs. Peck and how much was she involved with Woodrow Wilson?

A.—Mrs. Peck was simply a delightful woman whom President Wilson met in Bermuda. In 1916 when every channel of sewage was being used to spread lies against the president her name was seized upon to give color to the lies. One story was that she had certain letters from President Wilson which she was paid $75,000 for suppressing. The Jews were reported to have raised this $75,000 and in payment for this gift President Wilson was said to have appointed Louis Brandeis, a Jew, to the supreme court bench. All lies! Now Mrs. Peck has sold her friendship by writing a series of articles for a Chicago magazine.

SIX IN FAMILY ASPHYXIATED

HUSBAND, WIFE AND FOUR TOTS DIE WHEN GAS FLOODS HOME

Mine Cave-in Causes Broken Pipe at West Scranton.

OTHERS SAVED

Neighbors, Alarmed, Break Down Door, Finding Victims.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 29.—The entire family of Louis Desino, including himself, his wife and four small children was wiped out today by illuminating gas that flooded their home at West Scranton, a suburb, after a pipe had been broken by a mine cave-in. Another family was overcome at the same time, but police arrived in time with pulmotors to save them.

Rescuers Brave Flames.

The dead:

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Desino, and their children, Stanley, 5; Upola, 8; Margaret, 3, and a year-old daughter.

The bodies were found by a neighbor, Christopher Mellon. Mellon said he pounded on the front door and shouted to the occupants. When he was unable to arouse the Desinos, he called other neighbors and broke down the door.

The house was filled with the poisonous fumes and the rescuers had difficulty in entering. Placing handkerchiefs about their mouths and noses, they dashed into the house, opening the windows. Later they entered and found the six members of the family dead in their beds.

Police believe that one of the mine galleries that honeycomb the neighborhood caved in close to the surface and the main broke beneath the weight of the earth.

Ganna Walska Wins Plaudits in Grand Opera Debut Abroad

NICE, Jan. 29.—Ganna Walska looked forward today to a triumphal opera tour of Europe with an optimism spurred by her modified success on the Riveria last night.

"I was slightly nervous during the first act," she said, "but on the whole I am pleased with the outcome. I intend to continue my music and expect to sing in France and probably in Germany and Czecho-Slovakia this summer.

Walska, who is Mrs. Harold McCormick in private life, faced an opera house packed with Americans and British, many of whom had motored from neighboring resorts to attend her debut here in "Madame Butterfly."

She seemed badly stage frightened at the first act and there were loud remarks and catcalls from the audience but she overcame her nervousness in the second and third acts and received sympathetic applause.

Love Spurned, Yale Man Wounds Widow And Kills Himself

BRIDGEPORT, W. Va., Jan. 29. — After her repeated refusals to marry him, Neeson Woods, 29, of Philippi W. Va., shot and probably fatally wounded Mrs. George Warder, 23-year-old widow, at her brother's home here today, and then killed himself by firing the remaining bullets in his revolver into his own body.

Woods, a Yale university student, and son of the late J. E. Woods, prominent West Virginia attorney, had been desperately infatuated with the charming young widow for some time, but it is believed her parents and other kinfolk opposed the match.

AKRON BREAD PRICES TO SOAR

AKRON, Jan. 29.—On the plea that the recent advance in wheat quotations in Chicago make it necessary, Akron bakers announced today that bread prices would go up here February 1. Prices of other baked goods also may go up Monday morning. The increase for bread will be one and two cents on each loaf.

"Jazz-Struck" Matricide May Know Her Fate Before Night

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—"Jazz-struck" Dorothy Ellingson, who murdered her mother so she could attend a dancing party, may know her fate today.

The 16-year-old girl was scheduled to appear before Juvenile Judge Frank Murasky, who will hear her case at a secret court session. Judge Murasky will decide whether Dorothy is to spend the rest of her girlhood, until she is 23, at the Girls' school in Ventura, Cal., or bound over to the superior court to stand trial for murder.

While she waited for her trip to detention home to appear before the juvenile judge, the mother-slayer amused herself with cross-word puzzles, one of the first words she spelled out was "rogue" and another was "lucky."

"I wonder if I will be lucky today," the red-headed daughter of "Jazzland" asked Policewoman Kathryn Sullivan.

The cases of three of Dorothy's night-life friends, Keith Lord, Harry Chinitz and Emil Kreuter, members of a jazz orchestra, come up today. The men are charged with contributing to the girl's delinquency.

GIRL KIDNAPED AND GAGGED BY ROBBERS' BAND

SOCIETY LEADER

Department Store Owner's Stepdaughter Surprises Burglars.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 29.—Believed to have been abducted from her home as she surprised robbers early this morning, Mary Ellen Mellon, 19, was found two hours later near University hospital, bound and gagged.

Miss Mellon is a step-daughter of Haliburton, large department store owner. She is prominent in younger society circles. She is no relation to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

The girl told police this morning that she heard a noise in the living room and went down stairs to investigate.

A few moments later, her mother and stepfather heard her scream "Mother ——!"

When they got down stairs, the girl had disappeared.

CHINESE LEADER IS IMPROVING

PEKING, Jan. 29.—Dr. Sun Yet Sen, Chinese dictator, operated on for liver trouble at the American Rockefeller hospital here, passed a comfortable night, a hospital bulletin said today.

His pulse was 108 and his temperature almost normal. The patient was announced as free from pain and taking nourishment. The surgical wound was reported "progressing satisfactorily."

Benedum Elected Health Board Chief To Succeed Croxall

Ralph Benedum, drug clerk, was elected president of the health board, to succeed Joseph T. Croxall, resigned, at the reorganization meeting in the clinic rooms, Diamond, last night.

Attorney G. L. Brokaw, new member, qualified. T. Gerald Ryan was reappointed clerk for one year. Other appointments were Dr. John A. Fraser, health commissioner; D. J. McKeever, sanitary inspector, and R. E. Hill, assistant sanitary inspector and sealer of weights and measures.

Deaths exceeded births in East Liverpool during January, according to Mrs. Alice M. Davidson, deputy registrar of vital statistics. Deaths totaled 49, 33 males and 19 females, while births numbered 45, of which 20 were males and 25 females.

Dr. Fraser reported the following contagious diseases: Scarlet fever 1, tuberculosis 1, measles 1, mumps 1, and chicken pox 1. In the clinic nine new cases were reported, four others returned, six discharged and two discontinued. A total of 159 male and 26 female treatments were given.

Y. M. C. A. Committee Dinner for Pastors And Meet Workers

A dinner for pastors and others, who have been taking part in the Y. M. C. A. industrial meetings, will be served in the Y. M. C. A. at 6:15 o'clock Friday evening.

Dr. F. G. Fowler, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, will be the speaker. Rev. L. J. Davison will act as toastmaster.

The meeting is open to the public, but reservations should be made in advance at the Y. M. C. A. office.

100 Reservations Made for Kiwanis Club Dinner-Dance

Jules Brazil, a noted entertainer, of Toronto, Canada, will be the honor guest at a dinner-dance to be given by the members of the Kiwanis club for their wives and friends at the Country club at 6:15 o'cloc ktonight.

About 100 reservations for the affair have been made. A Wheeling orchestra will furnish music for the dance. Mr. Brazil will put on a 90-minute entertainment following the dinner.

Hubby Charges Wife for Auto Rides.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 29.—Clarys Stewart Ingersoll, stenographer, suing for divorce, testified in the court of domestic relations late Wednesday that John W. Ingersoll, her husband, took her to and from work in his automobile, but charged her ten cents a trip. Judge Hoffman will give his decision later.

Chamber of Commerce Members Delighted by Editor-Author.

A plea for the preservation of the American home and more interest in politics and elections to safeguard American ideals and principles was voiced by George Creel, reporter, editor, magazine writer and chairman of the committee on public information during the World war, in an address on "Current Events and Public Men," delivered before 200 men and women, at the annual dinner meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, last evening.

He condemned congress, lauded the League of Nations, praised prohibition, discussed taxes, referred to the Ku Klux Klan and, in a humorous manner, touched up such prominent figures as President Coolidge, Henry Ford, W. J. Bryan, Senator La Follette, and other national characters. Frequently he was forced to stop to allow the audience to quiet down from laughter at his remarks.

Joseph Betz, president of the chamber, presided and introduced the speaker. J. W. Moore read the auditor's report showing the Chamber's assets to be approximately $2,900 at the close of last year.

Directors Are Elected

Attorney Blaine H. Cochran rendered two solo numbers. He and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Danks Cochran, also sang a duet. Music, during the dinner was furnished by Sayer's Premier Syncopators.

Lee C. Cooper announced the result of the Chamber of Commerce election for the board of directors. New members of the board, elected for terms of three years, include D. M. Ogilvie, F. B. Lawrence, C. W. Hellyer, C. C. Ashbaugh, John B. MacDonald, J. W. Moore and Malcolm W. Thompson. Reports of H. B. Barth, secretary of the Chamber, covering 24 pages, were distributed.

Pottery Workers Will Attend Church Of Christ Tonight

A large delegation of pottery workers will attend the Lockhart revival service at the First Church of Christ, corner Fourth and College streets, tonight. The evangelist will discuss "Earthen Vessels." A contingent of church people from Toronto will also be present.

Many persons were baptized at last night's service. Dr. Lockhart used the subject "The New Birth" for his sermon. Music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Harbinson.

In his discourse, the evangelist said:

"Jesus says, 'Ye must be born again.' He did not say that if you liked the people in the church and all the doctrines taught agreed with your way of thinking that you might, if it suited you, be born again. But he said, 'Ye must!'"

Woman's Lifeless Body is Found in Wellsville Home

The lifeless body of Blanch Marsh, 37 years old, formerely employed at the Riverview hotel, Third and Main streets, Wellsville, was found late last night in her room at a private residence in Buckeye avenue.

The body is being held in the John Haugh funeral home pending the arrival of Coroner Van Fossen tomororw morning.

Syrian woman, with whom the girl resided, found the body. The cause of death, it is said, has not been determined.

U. S. TRAINING FOR WAR VETS IS NEAR CLOSE

Thirty-one Thousand Men in Schools and Plants Today.

COST $6,300 EACH

Trainees Have Been Instructed in 400 Vocations.

BY ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Government training of veretans of the World War, whose wounds or disabilities incapaciated them for pre-war occupations, is drawing rapidly to a close.

The United States veterans' bureau announced today that by June 30, the last day upon which ex-soldiers may enter vocational training, approximately 30,000 men will be under instruction. All trainees must complete their course by June 30, 1926.

The government has spent $591,489,000 in the training of ex-soldiers or an average cost of $6,300 for each man.

Illiterates Among Enrolled

About 31,000 veterans are in government and private schools and under training in industrial and commercial plants today. A comparatively small number will be accepted prior to June 30, while nearly half of the present trainees will be rehabilitated in the next five months, according to the veterans' bureau.

Trainees have been instructed in more than 400 vocations. About half of them studied in the industrial trades while from 7,000 to 8,000 studied law, medicine or other professional work.

Veterans' bureau officials estimated that less than 10 per cent of the veterans who applied for training were illiterate at their discharge from the army. A large number of the illiterates have been furnished the rudiments of a common school education by the government.

Disabled Stage "Comeback."

The number of men in training has been declining rapidly since the peak of 109,000 in April, 1922. A comparatively few men will be in training when the system is abolished in June, 1926, officials said.

DIPHTHERIA EPIDEMIC SWEEPS ALASKAN TOWN; HUNDREDS ARE DYING

Through Arctic Night, With Temperatures Ranging as Low as 58 Degrees Below Zero, Champion Drivers and Picked Dog Teams Rush From Nenana With Life-Giving Serum.

DREAD DISEASE IS THREATENING TO WIPE OUT FAR NORTH COMMUNITY

Physicians Declare Many Lives Will be Saved if Messengers and Faithful Canines Triumph Over 1,000-mile Frozen Trail—Most of Afflicted are Eskimos, According to Reports.

Through the Arctic night, with temperatures ranging as low as 58 degrees below zero, champion drivers and their picked dog teams rushed from Nenana, on the Alaska railway, to Nome with precious life-giving serum to be used in the battle against diphtheria, which is threatening to wipe out the far north town.

A supply of anti-toxin furnished by Dr. J. B. Beeson, former Livington, Mont., and Seattle, Wash., physicians, now in Anchorage, was started from here yesterday to striken Nome, and physicians declared should men and dogs triumph over the frozen trail in the race against the dread disease they would arrive in Nome in time to save many lives.

"Wild Bill" Shannon, with nine crack dogs, made the first leg of the 1,000-mile journey to Nome in a single mush. Covering 60 miles, his time was valuable.

Many Drivers Volunteer

Waiting for Shannon at Tolovana was Jim Kalland, another of the north's famous mushers, with a fleet string of dogs and a light Yukon sled. Kalland will make the second lap of the "death race."

Wireless messages sent along the route to Nome brought a generous response today form scores of drivers who wanted to enter the lists for the suffering men, women and children of Nome. They were eager to risk their lives and dogs in the wild ride over the snow.

Bitter Storm Rages

Reports here showed many communities had been locked in the grip of a bitter storm for the past two weeks. Temperatures ranged around 50 below zero and falling below that in many places.

The greatest danger to the mushers with their life-giving cargo will be along the lower Yukon river, where Arctic blizzards sweep across a broad stretch of country, including Norton Bay, the spot where many brave men of the trail have passed out in the grip of the "ice gods."

Among the interested watchers of the race was Dr. Beeson, who gave the serum and who was the hero of another famous race with death when he rushed anti-toxin to Iditarod.

Answers to Questions
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

(Any reader can get the answer to any question by writing The Review-Tribune Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C. This offer applies strictly to information. The Bureau can not give advice on legal, medical and financial matters. It does not attempt to settle domestic troubles, nor undertake exhaustive research on any subject. Write your question plainly and briefly. Give full name and address and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. All replies are sent direct to the inquirer.)

Q. How does the loss in registered mail compare with registry fees taken in? R. J.

A. The Postoffice Department says that the total amount paid for the registry of articles during the fiscal year 1924, was $83,189,290. The number of claims for losses as shown by the annual report was $5,313. Loss of registered mails is generally due to robbery, train wrecks, etc., and not to the careless handling of mail.

Q. What is fed to a boa constrictor in a zoo? W. F. B.

A. The National Zoological Park in Washington has a boa constrictor and it is fed a live young pig about once in two months.

Q. Are glacial deposits found in Indiana? W. R. E.

A. The Geological Survey says that there has been very little glacial deposit found in Indiana. Occurrence of mineral in drift have been located around Martinsville, Indiana.

Q. Can a person lend an ex-soldier money, and be named as beneficiary on his Adjusted Compensation certificate? E. C.

A. A person might lend a veteran money with the provision that he be named beneficiary in his Adjusted Compensation Certificate. However, in the event that the veteran decides to change the beneficiary, the lender could not hold him to his word, since such transaction is not legal under the Adjusted Compensation act.

Q. Do some atoms have both negative and positive electrons? H. R.

A. The Bureau of Standards says that all atoms are made up of positive nuclei and negative electrons. The removal of an electron gives the atom an apparent positive charge.

Q. Please tell me the author of an old book, "The Adventures of Lady Ursula." A. C. H.

A. "The Adventures of Lady Ursula" is the name of a comedy in four acts by Anthony Hope. It was published in book form by R. H. Russell of New York city in 1898.

Q. How did the saying, "he isn't worth his salt," originate? A. B. C.

A. This expression found its origin in the fact that Roman soldiers were paid in salt rather than with money.

Q. Why is milk pasteurized? A. A. W.

A. The purpose of pasteurization of milk is to kill the harmful bacteria which milk contains. It has been found that when milk is heated to a temperature of 145 degrees F. and sustained at that point for 30 minutes, the disease germs causing organisms are killed. If the milk is then immediately chilled and further contamination is prevented, it can no longer be considered dangerous to health. Milk which has been adequately pasteurized is, therefore, to be regarded as the safest milk which one can consume.

Q. What part of the men in our army during the World war were illiterate? E. H. B.

GAS FROM AUTOS CLAIMS HEAVY TOLL OF LIVES

GIVES SYMPTOMS

Urges Law to Force Motor Exhausts to Point Upward.

PHILADELPHIA — Lives are shortened by gas-laden air, according to Dr. Edward A. Shumway, of Philadelphia, in commenting on how poisonous carbon monoxide gas from automobiles fills the streets of cities in the United States.

Many cases of chronic monoxide poisoning, he said, can be traced to the automobile traffic in large cities.

"The carbon monoxide," continued Dr. Shumway, "is without odor, color or taste, and its presence is therefore frequently unsuspected. The gas, when once in the human system, stops the work of oxygen in the body.

"The most common symptoms, aside from headaches and nausea, are loss of appetite, anaemia and a reduction of the number of red blood cells, dizziness, general fatigue, dryness of the throat, irritation, watering of the eyes, and lack of mental concentration. Later changes in the mental state may occur, such as loss of will power, lack of decision, restlessness, irritability on the slightest discomfort and insomnia.

"Many examinations of the air have been made, in connection with calculations of the amount of carbon monoxide which can safely be breathed. This was done in drawing up plans for the construction of the vehicular traffic tube connecting New York city and New Jersey. The tests showed automobiles contain from 4 to 12 per cent of carbon monoxide."

Dr. Shumway suggested that legislation be enacted to change the position of the automobile exhaust. Make a law, he said, that will require an additional license fee from car owners having their exhaust pipes at the bottom of their cars, and thereby force automobile companies to manufacture machines with exhaust pipes sticking upward, so the poisonous gases would be carried off.

One hundred billion cigarettes will be smoked each year within a short time, says a tobacco expert.

The tests showed automobiles contain from 4 to 12 per cent of carbon monoxide."

Dr. Shumway suggested that legislation be enacted to change the position of the automobile exhaust. Make a law, he said, that will require an additional license fee from car owners having their exhaust pipes at the bottom of their cars, and thereby force automobile companies to manufacture machines with exhaust pipes sticking upward, so the poisonous gases would be carried off.

One hundred billion cigarettes will be smoked each year within a short time, says a tobacco expert.

P. W. Collins Urges Peace, Scores Bigotry, Intolerance

Boston Speaker Flays Communism and Urges Adherence to Constitution of United States and Ten Commandments.

Addressing several hundred persons last night in the high school auditorium, Peter W. Collins, of Boston, industrial and economic expert, laid down principles for restoration of peace and harmony in the country and decried religious bigotry and intolerance as opposed to the constitution of the United States and the ten commandments.

He flayed Communism as an attempt to rock the universe from its foundations, pointed out remedies for industrial and economic ills and suggested the establishment of non-partisan, non-political free bureaus across the country as the solution to the great problem of unemployment.

Mr. Collins spoke under the auspices of Wellsville council of the Knights of Columbus. Music was provided by Pearch's Night Hawk orchestra.

He said, in part:

"Life in general is in a progressive age, but, too, it is an age of isms—Communism, bolshevism, socialism, I. W. W. ism and others equally insidious and of which the public, the plain people, should and must be wary.

"Among these isms may be listed Communism as one of the most dangerous forces at work against the government and people of the United States. It is sometimes discussed in the language of the school room, academic Communism, or in the terms of 'evolutionary conception of the universe,' which, plainly told, means simply Communism's own view.

"This high flowing language, not understood by the masses of the plain people, is misleading and they don't know what they are following. On the other side is the street corner variety of Communism, exemplified by the radical agitator whose work is making bitter enemies and misunderstandings among the plain people, creating strife, discord and dissension, and whose object is the use of the masses as a crowbar to pry the universe from its present stable foundation.

"Communism pretends it is a doctrine for the people, of the people and by the people. But it did not come from the masses because the plain people inherently are spiritual and have the love of God in their hearts. Communism is simply the twentieth century nickname for the old spirit of radicalism.

"Some people do not think there is Communism in the United States. But I know there are 500 extreme red papers in the United States of which 300 are printed in foreign countries and shipped in to people in our own. So the subject becomes important to discuss.

"The doctrine of Communism does not come from the masses. As an example, the brutal rulers of Russia have actually murdered 1,735,000 persons because they refused to stop teaching the belief of God. The plain people had the love of God. The movement is misleading. It is dangerous to home, family, religion and civilization.

"Eighty per cent of those following the movement don't know what they are following. The air of mystery, the secret meetings, the regalia and trappings, symbolism and emotional, all lend enchantment to its operations which draw unsuspecting followers into its folds.

"Carl Marks, the leader of Communism, uses the language of the university in his preachings. This is one belief and there is another. One of the two, and one only, must be right. The right one is the Theistic belief, the true belief, that God created the world. Radicals deny the existence of a Supreme Being, because, they say they never saw him. Yet they do not deny that there once existed a George Washington, a Napoleon, and other great figures of history. They never saw any of these men, but yet they accept them on faith, on belief. But they won't accept the belief of the Supreme Designer. The belief in God is immutable and will never die. Communism's belief repudiates it. Communism's denial strikes at the very roots of civilization.

"The very first commandment of the ten handed down by Christ to Moses on Mt. Sinai opposes Communism and Communism opposes it, for Communism denies God. 'Love thy neighbor as thyself' and 'thou shalt not steal'—both are opposed to Communism. Russia is trying to do away with private ownership of property. Private property is a material right and a denial of that right is a denial of the commandment.

"The Ten Commandments need no apology and there should be instilled into the hearts of the people a recognition of the necessity of the commandments for the evils of the world.

"The ten commandments will be doing business when the grass is growing over the graves of bigotry and intolerance.

"What's wrong with the world? The answer might be expressed in four words—a lack of harmony.

"Nature is in harmony in everything. Men are not. Today they are inventing deadly gasses and instruments of warfare. There are those who stir up race hatred. They are makers of enemies.

"From the standpoint of industrialism—both capital and labor have rights, and it should be the duty of people to recognize those rights. But the human being is of more value than the dollar and should be protected. Lack of protection, dangerous machinery, lack of health devices, safety and comfort are evils against the working man and woman.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

A Brilliant Entertainer

George Creel, of New York, added 175 boosters to his already large roll, left no doubt in their minds as to why the late Woodrow Wilson selected him as the chairman of the committee on public information during the World war, and, incidentally, gave his hearers the benefit of his knowledge of the scenes back-stage during the exciting days before and after the war in a splendid two-hour address at the annual dinner-meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

Interspersing his talk on "Current Events and Public Men" with humor that struck the responsive chords in the hearts of an appreciative audience of men and women, representatives of labor as well as the business and professional world, the newspaperman, in a style characteristic of the writer and observer, was the headliner of the program.

He is an entertainer in every sense of the term. Possessing a delivery that is pleasing, keen wit and a personality that appeals, and fortified by 25 years' experience as a reporter, editor and magazine writer as well as nearly two years as chief of the governmental committee that played an important role in maintaining the morale of the American people and the Allies and shattering the illusions of their enemies in the 1914-18 holocaust, he held his hearers from the moment of his introduction by Joseph Betz, president of the chamber.

And adding punch to his program, he consented to answer a series of questions pertaining to his opinions of wartime events, cabinet officers and European statesmen that were uppermost in the minds of the people who had the privilege of sitting at the festive board.

Through the courtesy of the Chamber of Commerce and the fine-tooth system used by Secretary H. B. Barth in his selection of speakers for the civic body's meetings, East Liverpool has had the pleasure in recent years of hearing Congressman Charles Knight, of Akron; the late Thomas W. Running

A distinguished American editor scoffs at the speed of Nurmi, the great Finnish runner, because a motor can go faster and keep it up longer. He thinks Nurmi's remarkable racing in New York is of very little use.

This is a shallow view of the matter, inspired by undue zeal for mechanical progress. Such an argument is sufficiently answered by the thrill that comes to every normal human being when he sees a magnificent athletic feat or reads an adequate account of one. It is enthusiasm that pushes humanity ahead, and there is no enthusiasm in a gas engine, though a certain kind of enthusiasm can make or use one. A steel piston moving up and down within a steel cylinder, under the impact of a gasoline explosion, is a poor substitute for a human heart, as far as real values are concerned.

The human race at its best is athletic. This is not saying that athletics is the best thing about the human race, but that periods of highest achievement seem inseparable from athletic activity and admiration for physical prowess. Genuine vigor of mind and soul seem to require vigor of body. History shows that as men degenerate physically, they start degenerating morally and mentally, too.

Body and soul, somehow, go together, upholding and reflecting each other. So the whole civilized world instinctively turns from its dry scientific triumphs to draw new force and inspiration from a fine exhibition of this ensouled machine we call the human body.

WHY STONE WAS OPPOSED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The supreme court of the United States has long and interesting annals, but perhaps one of the most curious chapters to be added will be that concerning the appointment of Harlan Fisk Stone, the latest of the president's nominations to that tribunal. What attaches especial interest to the nomination of Mr. Stone is that he has been vigorously opposed for what might be called inverted reasons.

There have been several occasions in the past when jurists, upon being nominated by the president for this high position, have seen their confirmation by the senate meet with opposition, but in each previous case the reason has consisted chiefly of political or similar objection to the nominee's serving on the bench. In the case of Mr. Stone, one of the principal objections was, that in some quarters he was considered too well qualified for the position he held before his promotion to be permitted to leave it.

In April, 1924, Mr. Stone, then serving as the dean of the law school of Columbia university at New York, was called into the cabinet at attorney general of the United States. He immediately set about the discharge of his public functions in so vigorous and practical a fashion that within a few months he was acclaimed as one of the most efficient attorney generals of the twentieth century. The result has been that now, upon his promotion to the supreme court, the people interested in seeing the prosecutions he started carried through to a conclusion and eager to have his services as leading prosecutor of the nation continue, have objected to his being taken out of the job.

When nominations are sent to the senate they are referred by that body to an appropriate committee for approval or disapproval. The record of the nominee is investigated, whether he be nominated for postmaster, a cabinet member or a justice of the supreme court. The committee reports its findings back to the senate and the senate almost invariably acts upon the committee's recommendations. In nearly all cases, the recommendations are favorable. It is relatively rare that the senate refuses to confirm a nomination and then only for the very best of reasons.

The nomination of Attorney General Stone was referred to the senate committee on the judiciary. This body proceeded to hear persons who had anything to say concerning the nominee.

OPPOSED HIS PROMOTION

Several matters came up before the committee, but the one of special interest was the suggestion that Mr. Stone's confirmation be withheld on the ground that he could best serve the nation as attorney general. It was made plain to the committee that the objections to his appointment did not spring from any lack of confidence in his ability to serve as an associate justice of the supreme court.

On the contrary, the highest commendation of his abilities as a jurist was expressed. But, it was urged, there are others capable of serving as judges while there has been no one for some years who has seemed to be so capable of acting as attorney general. It was suggested that the committee entertain the idea of reporting back to the senate that it would be advisable to retain the services of Mr. Stone in his present capacity, postponing for a while, at least, his elevation to the bench.

The committee refused to take this view of the matter and unanimously recommended to the senate that Mr. Stone's nomination be confirmed. The suggestions placed before the body, however, were recognized as a high tribute to Mr. Stone's character and ability as an attorney general.

A review of Attorney General Stone's record gives some color to the plea that he was an official of unusual vigor. In nine or ten months of incumbency he brought a surprising number of important anti-trust suits and initiated many investigations under the Sherman law. He was more active in bringing these proceedings, seeking to suppress monopoly in the interest of the public, than any attorney general in recent years, it is said.

FOUGHT THE GASOLINE TRUST

Early in his term he brought a Sherman law action against the alleged gasoline trust, filing a suit at Chicago directed at the combination claimed to exist among refiners of gasoline. The Standard Oil company and a score of others were named as defendants. Shortly thereafter he filed a suit against the International Harvester company from which the American farmer buys many of his implements. Another suit in the interest of the farmer was that against the Sisal Sales corporation. This is the agency which has an alleged monopoly on the sale of sisal in the United States. Binder twine, used by every wheat grower, is made from Mexican sisal and millions of dollars a year are spent for the product. It was alleged that the selling agency had a monopoly which enabled it to control the price, excluding competition.

Further, Attorney General Stone vigorously opposed the modification of the famous packers' consent decree. This decree, entered in 1920, forbade the Chicago meat packers from entering so-called unrelated lines of business. That is, they were refused the privilege of going into the grocery business, grain business, or similar enterprises which were not strictly a part of the meat packing and slaughtering industry.

Since 1920, the packers have made a vigorous fight to have the consent decree set aside and fear has been expressed by some representatives of the farmers' organizations that the supplanting of Mr. Stone will result in the packers' success in their attempt, and in their resultant return to fields which, it is alleged, might result in building up a sort of super-food trust all under control of the meat packing corporations. Mr. Stone vigorously opposed modification of the decree on the ground that such action would foster monopoly contrary to public interest.

Mr. Stone launched an inquiry into the proposed merger of the big baking companies, which, it was claimed, were seeking to form a $600,000,000 bread trust. He was investigating the radio industry to determine if a monopoly existed or was threatened in this field so near to the public's heart at this time.

The prohibitionists also took a hand in the matter, one great dry organization going so far as to file a sort of protest with President Coolidge against Mr. Stone's promotion. Here, again, the same motive was found. The drys were so well pleased with Mr. Stone's vigorous policy of enforcement of the Volstead act that they wanted to see him remain at the head of the department of justice.

Nearly everyone in public life has many critics and someone usually is heard to protest against a nomination for almost any office, but it is a new thing in American politics for a man's appointment to a high position to be opposed because he is considered too good a public servant.

DINNER STORIES

It is supposed to have happened in a theatrical club. A well-known player remarked: "I am tired of the way they are casting me lately. In my last three plays I have been a dirty scoundrel."

"That's the trouble with your American idea," observed an English actor, "of casting with types."

A university president was complaining about the worship of wealth that has seemed to characterize our time.

"A young man," he said, "asked me which was the more estimable, riches or brains.

"'Brains,' said I, 'of course, but it sometimes seems as if in these times the only way for a man to convince people he has brains is to get riches!'"

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By ALICE LANGELIER.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The mistletoeman has come back to Paris as he always does the week before Christmas and he will remain until February. He is wearing his usual wooden sabots, his blue blouse and faded scarf swathed about his neck. Over his shoulder is his long pole with thick branches of holy and clumps of mistletoe strung up like fish. He sells the fresh Christmas greens much cheaper than one finds them in the flower shops, but not so cheap either, for, as he says, he has to do a deal of climbing to get them, and climbing is very hard on the corduroys.

New Year's Day is much more important than Christmas in France, and that is when most people have their stockings filled, or rather their shoes, for on this side of the water it is the shoe that goes before the fireplace. "Etrennes," of New Year's gifts, are an important factor in nearly every Frenchman's life. The doorbell begins ringing early in December and keeps up until after the first of January. First comes the postman in his dark blue uniform and battered-in cap that looks much like the one grandfather wore in the civil war. He has a little calendar to offer with a heap of information about postage rates and the metro lines that one will never use. This constitutes his entrennes for you and he waits at the door until yours comes forth. A nice bill is most appreciated, in fact, expected.

A few days after his visit comes another postman, dressed up just like the other. He is the paper and package carrier and he has little calendars in a little different style. His object is the same, but if you don't much mind losing a paper or two during the year, you may make his entrennes a little smaller. The letter carrier is the most important.

Then come along the boys who bring the "little blues," the pneumatic tube notes that are delivered within two short hours after being posted, and then the milkman, the telegraph messengers and, most important of all, the concierge, France's bugbear, the lion that guards the doors, distributes the mail and makes life pleasant or decidedly the opposite for all the occupants of the house. Woe be unto you throughout the year if his etrennes are not satisfactory.

What is a fresh egg? The Paris civil courts have been deciding the important question and have agreed that eggs preserved in a refrigerator should not be called fresh ones. They have laid down three different classes for eggs:

1—New-laid eggs from eight to 15 days old in summer and from three weeks to one month in winter.

2—Fresh eggs are those which have not undergone any form or preparation with a view to preserving them and which are fit for eating when cooked.

3—Preserved eggs—eggs fit for eating only because they have been kept in cold storage or otherwise treated so as to prevent them from going bad.

Several merchants who have been selling preserved eggs for fresh ones have been given heavy fines and 15 days' imprisonment.

RICHARD L. SPRAGUE.

For 92 years without interruption a Sprague has acted as American consul at Gibraltar, Richard L. Sprague, representative of the third generation at the foreign post, is now on duty there.

The history of the "Spragues of Gibraltar" is almost as remarkable as that of the huge pile of stone itself.

R.L. SPRAGUE

Horatio Sprague, of Boston, a member of a mechanical firm whose vessels sailed to Cadiz, Malaga, Malta and Genoa, was the first of the family to establish a residence abroad—about the year 1800. Young Sprague, a junior clerk, embarked on one of the firm's ships with instructions to inspect Mediterranean ports and to open an office wherever trade was most active and shipping centralized.

During the war of 1812 he was forced to leave Gibraltar. He took up his residence at Algeciras in Spain, but by special permission of British authorities he was permitted to make daily trips to Gibraltar to attend to his business. After restoration of peace, he again went to Gibraltar, and in 1832 he was appointed American consul by President Andrew Jackson.

Horatio Sprague served as consul for 16 years. He died in 1848, and was succeeded by his son, Horatio ones Sprague, father of the present consul. The second Sprague to hold this post was appointed by President James K. Polk.

When Mr. Sprague died in 1901, he was succeeded by his son, Richard L. Sprague, the present consul. The third of the Spragues has been in charge of the office for 23 years, and he probably is better known among American naval officers than any other man in the consular service.

Naval guns stay as they were, but congressmen have raised their oral elevations.

Europe is complaining of a warm winter. But maybe that's just another clever bid for American tourists.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Out on North Brother Island there is a group of men who huddle together at eventide to watch the faint glow that lifts itself above New York's sky-line—like a city's passions smoking to the heavens.

Little tugs often skirt the island, unload their cargo of food and clothes and scurry away as though chased by the furies. The inhabitants of the island gaze wistfully. They know they will never again come in contact with their fellows. They are lepers.

They are doomed to tortured days of slow death. Now and then a tiny camp fire burns. It is the signal. Another soul has escaped from physical agony. And a tug arrives to carry away a disinfectant reeking pine box.

The radio has proved a beneficent boon to the social castaways on the island. Only recently one was installed and it has cheered the unfortunates up as nothing else has. And curiously enough their favorite tunes are those of the lively jazz bands.

The oldest leper there is 70 years. He is a Chinese and a scholar. He has given many of his fellows a philosophy of life that has helped in the travail. The youngest is a youth of 22, whose eyes are empty sockets.

The lepers find what amusement they can in their dreary commonplace existence. So one with infinite patience has trained a turtle to come when called. It is the only pet on the island and makes its home under one of the small shacks.

The small leper colony has comfortable quarters. They are given clean beds and well cooked food. There is much to read for those who desire, but most of them prefer to sit silently in their chairs. Conversation is rare. For, indeed, what is there to say!

David Belasco gives an afternoon theater party each time he presents a new play. He does not take his guests to the fashionable restaurants, but to a Child's restaurant on Forty-second street. Belasco is fond of the celebrated butter cakes served there. It was at one of these parties that some discovered there were 13 at the table. Morris Gest happened to come in. He was asked to join them to circumvent the superstition and he was placed next to Belasco's daughter. And thus began the romance which ended in Gest becoming Belasco's son-in-law.

People who bore me: "America's sweetheart" movie stars; doctors who announce new schemes to prolong life 25 years and cannot cure whooping cough; wonder kiddies of vaudeville; women who smoke cigarets in hotel lobbies and artists who wear Elbert Hubbard ties.

The New Yorker is always suspicious. He will refuse to accept samples of chewing gum, candy or the like from those employed to pass them out on the street. The other day the matter was being discussed in a club and 20 dimes were placed in 20 small white envelopes. A member of the club went out on the sidewalk and in a half hour's time was able to give only two away. And the second recipient went two blocks to a corner policeman and said: "A nut is over there giving money away." He came very nearly being arrested.

The word "culture" goes hand in hand with great learning. I often wonder if one has anything to do with the other. It seems to me the most cultured man I know is one who has had little education. He is a clerk in a mid-town store. He is the personification of gentleness. He is deeply religious and give one-third of his meager salary to charity. He quit school at the age of 12.

TOO MUCH KILLING

How long is the crime era to last? What causes the shooting mania? You pay no attention when you read about killings based on bootleg or hijacker feuds. But you are bound to notice and wonder about the innumerable killings of other kinds scattered through the paper.

Millionaire bootleggers, poorhouse inmates, jealous husbands, all seem to have the same remedy, to kill somebody.

Some of the most prosperous men in the nation have formed an organization to promote greater respect for the law.

Perhaps the fact that nearly all prosperous men ignore both the law and the constitution, when they interfere with their own comfort and pleasure, has something to do with law violations lower in the scale.

HUNDRED LITTLE PIGS

Five years ago when he was in the public school he bought a pure-bred pig, female, eight weeks old. Since then his pig has added 100 small pigs to the earth's porcine population. The little boy writes: "She paid for my clothes, three years in high school and gave me spending money also. I am now in my second year in college, and she is still doing the same."

This boy has joined the "Better sires—better stock" campaign and will work hard to improve the pig breed.

If it were possible to improve cattle or swine, civilization would progress rapidly. Unfortunately eugenists make little progress.

But something might be done.

That proud mother of 100 little pigs in five years—never smoked cigarets or drank cocktails. And the father or fathers did not set before their sons the example of bootleg law-breaking and contempt for the constitution.

AN INVENTION WANTED

Germany is perfecting a machine to make it impossible for ships to sink.

A series of electric pumping machines will take water out faster than it can go in—through any ordinary opening caused by a collision. That news would have been more important 50 years ago than it is today.

What is wanted now is something to make it impossible for a flying machine to fall. That also will come, and before long.

Men that have conquered the ocean waves will easily conquer the air waves.

What is the strongest wave of air compared with the ocean wave that rolls gigantic rocks up the beach, or cast away a granite cliff?

You never saw the wind that could roll big rocks uphill.

Flying machines, all steel, strong enough to resist any wind, and with engines 10 times as strong as the strongest wind, will make air travel, long before the end of this century, much safer than traveling on railroads has ever been.

CANADA IS GROWING

Canada is growing rapidly. Up there they welcome good immigrants. Here we discourage immigration. One of the most fertile states in the union, with 35,000,000 acres of land, has 33,000,000 acres not yet developed, but we say we have enough population.

What is more important even than immigration is human happiness and independence. Canadians attend to that. In Canada 92 per cent of farmers own their own farms. In the United States only 62 per cent own their land, the others are tenants paying rent.

The nations in which those that cultivate the land own the land on which they live, grow in strength. The power of France is due largely to the fact that Frenchmen own their land. That small country has more than six million landowners, a great improvement on the days of monarchy, when a handful of nobles, ecclesiastics and royal princes were the land owners.

A Brilliant Entertainer

George Creel, of New York, added 175 boosters to his already large roll, left no doubt in their minds as to why the late Woodrow Wilson selected him as the chairman of the committee on public information during the World war, and, incidentally, gave his hearers the benefit of his knowledge of the scenes back-stage during the exciting days before and after the war in a splendid two-hour address at the annual dinner-meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

Interspersing his talk on "Current Events and Public Men" with humor that struck the responsive chords in the hearts of an appreciative audience of men and women, representatives of labor as well as the business and professional world, the newspaperman, in a style characteristic of the writer and observer, was the headliner of the program.

He is an entertainer in every sense of the term. Possessing a delivery that is pleasing, keen wit and a personality that appeals, and fortified by 25 years' experience as a reporter, editor and magazine writer as well as nearly two years as chief of the governmental committee that played an important role in maintaining the morale of the American people and the Allies and shattering the illusions of their enemies in the 1914-18 holocaust, he held his hearers from the moment of his introduction by Joseph Betz, president of the chamber.

And adding punch to his program, he consented to answer a series of questions pertaining to his opinions of wartime events, cabinet officers and European statesmen that were uppermost in the minds of the people who had the privilege of sitting at the festive board.

Through the courtesy of the Chamber of Commerce and the fine-tooth system used by Secretary H. B. Barth in his selection of speakers for the civic body's meetings, East Liverpool has had the pleasure in recent years of hearing Congressman Charles Knight, of Akron; the late Thomas W. He is wearing his usual wooden sabots, his blue blouse and faded scarf swathed about his neck. Over his shoulder is his long pole with thick branches of holy and clumps of mistletoe strung up like fish. He sells the fresh Christmas greens much cheaper than one finds them in the flower shops, but not so cheap either, for, as he says, he has to do a deal of climbing to get them, and climbing is very hard on the corduroys.

New Year's Day is much more important than Christmas in France, and that is when most people have their stockings filled, or rather their shoes, for on this side of the water it is the shoe that goes before the fireplace. "Etrennes," of New Year's gifts, are an important factor in nearly every Frenchman's life. The doorbell begins ringing early in December and keeps up until after the first of January. First comes the postman in his dark blue uniform and battered-in cap that looks much like the one grandfather wore in the civil war. He has a little calendar to offer with a heap of information about postage rates and the metro lines that one will never use. This constitutes his etrennes for you and he waits at the door until yours comes forth. A nice bill is most appreciated, in fact, expected.

A few days after his visit comes another postman, dressed up just like the other. He is the paper and package carrier and he has little calendars in a little different style. His object is the same, but if you don't much mind losing a paper or two during the year, you may make his etrennes a little smaller. The letter carrier is the most important.

Then come along the boys who bring the "little blues," the pneumatic tube notes that are delivered within two short hours after being posted, and then the milkman, the telegraph messengers and, most important of all, the concierge, France's bugbear, the lion that guards the doors, distributes the mail and makes life pleasant or decidedly the opposite for all the occupants of the house. Woe be unto you throughout the year if his etrennes are not satisfactory.

What is a fresh egg? The Paris civil courts have been deciding the important question and have agreed that eggs preserved in a refrigerator should not be called fresh ones. They have laid down three different classes for eggs:

1—New-laid eggs from eight to 15 days old in summer and from three weeks to one month in winter.

2—Fresh eggs are those which have not undergone any form or preparation with a view to preserving them and which are fit for eating when cooked.

3—Preserved eggs—eggs fit for eating only because they have been kept in cold storage or otherwise treated so as to prevent them from going bad.

Several merchants who have been selling preserved eggs for fresh ones have been given heavy fines and 15 days' imprisonment.

Dancing is apparently less popular in Paris than it was a year ago, according to the statistics just published. At the end of 1923 there were 848 dance halls and other places where dancing was indulged in, but the number has now diminished to under 500. Just what are the causes of this decrease no one knows, and it would seem that as many people as ever are dancing these days. However, the demand of jazz band musicians for higher wages spelled the doom of many small cabarets, and the taxe de luxe put many out of the running. Hundreds of small dancing halls sprang up like mushrooms over night last year when the taxe was most noticeable and a certain large number of them were bound to disappear.

RICHARD L. SPRAGUE.

For 92 years without interruption a Sprague has acted as American consul at Gibraltar, Richard L. Sprague, representative of the third generation at the foreign post, is now on duty there.

The history of the "Spragues of Gibraltar" is almost as remarkable as that of the huge pile of stone itself.

R.L. SPRAGUE

Horatio Sprague, of Boston, a member of a mechanical firm whose vessels sailed to Cadiz, Malaga, Malta and Genoa, was the first of the family to establish a residence abroad—about the year 1800. Young Sprague, a junior clerk, embarked on one of the firm's ships with instructions to inspect Mediterranean ports and to open an office wherever trade was most active and shipping centralized.

During the war of 1812 he was forced to leave Gibraltar. He took up his residence at Algeciras in Spain, but by special permission of British authorities he was permitted to make daily trips to Gibraltar to attend to his business. After restoration of peace, he again went to Gibraltar, and in 1832 he was appointed American consul by President Andrew Jackson.

Horatio Sprague served as consul for 16 years. He died in 1848, and was succeeded by his son, Horatio ones Sprague, father of the present consul. The second Sprague to hold this post was appointed by President James K. Polk.

When Mr. Sprague died in 1901, he was succeeded by his son, Richard L. Sprague, the present consul. The third of the Spragues has been in charge of the office for 23 years, and he probably is better known among American naval officers than any other man in the consular service.

Naval guns stay as they were, but congressmen have raised their oral elevations.

Europe is complaining of a warm winter. But maybe that's just another clever bid for American tourists.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Out on North Brother Island there is a group of men who huddle together at eventide to watch the faint glow that lifts itself above New York's sky-line—like a city's passions smoking to the heavens.

Little tugs often skirt the island, unload their cargo of food and clothes and scurry away as though chased by the furies. The inhabitants of the island gaze wistfully. They know they will never again come in contact with their fellows. They are lepers.

They are doomed to tortured days of slow death. Now and then a tiny camp fire burns. It is the signal. Another soul has escaped from physical agony. And a tug arrives to carry away a disinfectant reeking pine box.

The radio has proved a beneficent boon to the social castaways on the island. Only recently one was installed and it has cheered the unfortunates up as nothing else has. And curiously enough their favorite tunes are those of the lively jazz bands.

The oldest leper there is 70 years. He is a Chinese and a scholar. He has given many of his fellows a philosophy of life that has helped in the travail. The youngest is a youth of 22, whose eyes are empty sockets.

The lepers find what amusement they can in their dreary commonplace existence. So one with infinite patience has trained a turtle to come when called. It is the only pet on the island and makes its home under one of the small shacks.

The small leper colony has comfortable quarters. They are given clean beds and well cooked food. There is much to read for those who desire, but most of them prefer to sit silently in their chairs. Conversation is rare. For, indeed, what is there to say!

David Belasco gives an afternoon theater party each time he presents a new play. He does not take his guests to the fashionable restaurants, but to a Child's restaurant on Forty-second street. Belasco is fond of the celebrated butter cakes served there. It was at one of these parties that some discovered there were 13 at the table. Morris Gest happened to come in. He was asked to join them to circumvent the superstition and he was placed next to Belasco's daughter. And thus began the romance which ended in Gest becoming Belasco's son-in-law.

People who bore me: "America's sweetheart" movie stars; doctors who announce new schemes to prolong life 25 years and cannot cure whooping cough; wonder kiddies of vaudeville; women who smoke cigarets in hotel lobbies and artists who wear Elbert Hubbard ties.

The New Yorker is always suspicious. He will refuse to accept samples of chewing gum, candy or the like from those employed to pass them out on the street. The other day the matter was being discussed in a club and 20 dimes were placed in 20 small white envelopes. A member of the club went out on the sidewalk and in a half hour's time was able to give only two away. And the second recipient went two blocks to a corner policeman and said: "A nut is over there giving money away." He came very nearly being arrested.

The word "culture" goes hand in hand with great learning. I often wonder if one has anything to do with the other. It seems to me the most cultured man I know is one who has had little education. He is a clerk in a mid-town store. He is the personification of gentleness. He is deeply religious and give one-third of his meager salary to charity. He quit school at the age of 12.

TOO MUCH KILLING

How long is the crime era to last? What causes the shooting mania? You pay no attention when you read about killings based on bootleg or hijacker feuds. But you are bound to notice and wonder about the innumerable killings of other kinds scattered through the paper.

Millionaire bootleggers, poorhouse inmates, jealous husbands, all seem to have the same remedy, to kill somebody.

Some of the most prosperous men in the nation have formed an organization to promote greater respect for the law.

Perhaps the fact that nearly all prosperous men ignore both the law and the constitution, when they interfere with their own comfort and pleasure, has something to do with law violations lower in the scale.

HUNDRED LITTLE PIGS

Five years ago when he was in the public school he bought a pure-bred pig, female, eight weeks old. Since then his pig has added 100 small pigs to the earth's porcine population. The little boy writes: "She paid for my clothes, three years in high school and gave me spending money also. I am now in my second year in college, and she is still doing the same."

This boy has joined the "Better sires—better stock" campaign and will work hard to improve the pig breed.

If it were possible to improve cattle or swine, civilization would progress rapidly. Unfortunately eugenists make little progress.

But something might be done.

That proud mother of 100 little pigs in five years—never smoked cigarets or drank cocktails. And the father or fathers did not set before their sons the example of bootleg law-breaking and contempt for the constitution.

AN INVENTION WANTED

Germany is perfecting a machine to make it impossible for ships to sink.

A series of electric pumping machines will take water out faster than it can go in—through any ordinary opening caused by a collision. That news would have been more important 50 years ago than it is today.

What is wanted now is something to make it impossible for a flying machine to fall. That also will come, and before long.

Men that have conquered the ocean waves will easily conquer the air waves.

What is the strongest wave of air compared with the ocean wave that rolls gigantic rocks up the beach, or cast away a granite cliff?

You never saw the wind that could roll big rocks uphill.

Flying machines, all steel, strong enough to resist any wind, and with engines 10 times as strong as the strongest wind, will make air travel, long before the end of this century, much safer than traveling on railroads has ever been.

CANADA IS GROWING

Canada is growing rapidly. Up there they welcome good immigrants. Here we discourage immigration. One of the most fertile states in the union, with 35,000,000 acres of land, has 33,000,000 acres not yet developed, but we say we have enough population.

What is more important even than immigration is human happiness and independence. Canadians attend to that. In Canada 92 per cent of farmers own their own farms. In the United States only 42 per cent own their land, the others are tenants paying rent.

The nations in which those that cultivate the land own the land on which they live, grow in strength. The power of France is due largely to the fact that Frenchmen own their land. That small country has more than six million landowners, a great improvement on the days of monarchy, when a handful of nobles, ecclesiastics and royal princes were the land owners.

Croup Relieved Without Dosing

Too much dosing is harmful to a child's delicate stomach. Often it lays the foundation for ill health in later life.

The next time a child seems croupy in the evening apply Vicks over throat and chest and cover with a warm flannel cloth. Leave the bedclothing loose about the neck so that the arising vapors may be freely inhaled. This usually prevents night attack.

If croup comes on without warning an application of Vicks usually brings relief in 15 minutes.

Beauty

A Gleamy Mass of Hair

35c "Danderine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance.

While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter and just see how healthy and youthful your hair appears after this delightful, refreshing dressing.

Painful Rheumatic Swellings Disappear

James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

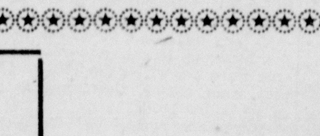

He freely gave his discovery, which he called ALLENRHU, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed all druggists everywhere to dispense ALLENRHU with the understanding that if the first pint bottle does not show the way to complete recovery he will gladly return your money without comment.

"Just Rub It On"

Croup Relieved Without Dosing

Too much dosing is harmful to a child's delicate stomach. Often it lays the foundation for ill health in later life.

The next time a child seems croupy in the evening apply Vicks over throat and chest and cover with a warm flannel cloth. Leave the bedclothing loose about the neck so that the arising vapors may be freely inhaled. This usually prevents night attack.

If croup comes on without warning an application of Vicks usually brings relief in 15 minutes.

Beauty

A Gleamy Mass of Hair

35c "Danderine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance.

While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter and just see how healthy and youthful your hair appears after this delightful, refreshing dressing.

Mrs. William Brooks Hostess.

Mrs. William Brooks was hostess to the members of the Ohio club, Tuesday evening, in her home in West Eighth street. The home was attractively arranged with pink, red and yellow rosebuds and tulips. Fancywork, music and story telling were the diversions of the social hours. Mrs. Charles Wright presided at the piano, and Mrs. E. T. Emmerling told humorous narratives.

A four-course luncheon was served. The color scheme of pink and yellow predominated in the appointments. The hostess' daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Brooks was assisted in serving by Mrs. Charles Wright.

Mrs. Charles Wright and daughter, Alice Josephine, of Salineville, guests in the Brooks' home, were special guests of the club.

The next meeting will be in the form of a valentine party to be held at the home of Mrs. Leo Hilliard of West Eighth street, February 10.

Rose-Willert Wedding.

Coming as a surprise to their many friends in this city is the announcement of the marriage of Miss May Rose, of this city, formerly of Lisbon, O., to Orin C. Willert, son of Mrs. C. Willert, of 122nd street, Cleveland. The ceremony was performed in the home of the bridegroom's mother January 14. Miss Anna Thomas and Miss Irene Stewart were the brides maids, while A. Hoffman served as the bridegroom's best man.

The bride was gowned in pale blue georgette and wore a corsage of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Previous to her marriage she was employed by the Homer Laughlin China company. The bridegroom is a dye worker in a Cleveland automobile factory.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served in the Statler hotel. Several guests from this city were in attendance.

Painful Rheumatic Swellings Disappear

James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called ALLENRHU, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed all druggists everywhere to dispense ALLENRHU with the understanding that if the first pint bottle does not show the way to complete recovery he will gladly return your money without comment.

WEATHER MAN PROMISES SNOW

Sweeping Storm Blankets Pittsburgh; Forecast is Colder.

Street car service in the East Liverpool district was handicapped by a six inch blanket of snow which began falling about 8:30 o'clock this morning.

Two snow sweepers were kept in operation in East Liverpool, Wellsville, Chester and as far east as Smiths Ferry. A large force of trucks and workmen were also at work keeping switches cleared of snow.

Telephone and train service were reported normal at the noon hour.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 29.—Temperatures ranging from 12 to 15 degrees above zero were forecast for Ohio tonight by officials at the local Untied States weather bureau today. Cloudy and moderating weather Friday, with a probable minimum temperature, Friday night of 20 degrees above the cipher, also, was predicted.

Snow flurries prevailed throughout the state today. Light snow is expected tonight.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—A terrific gale off the coast of North Carolina is moving northward with increasing intensity, the weather bureau warned shipping today. Storm warnings were ordered displayed between Nantucket and Delaware breakwater.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The outlook is for snow tonight in the middle Atlantic states and tonight and Friday in the northern Atlantic states and the eastern lower lake region, the United States weather bureau announced today.

Moderate heavy snows are indicated for this afternoon and tonight in southern New England, southeastern New York, New Jersey, eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 29.—A sweeping snow storm blew into Pennsylvania today on the heels of the below-zero temperatures reported from all sections of the state yesterday. Starting just before 9 o'clock in Pittsburgh. The local weather bureau stated the storm was general over the state and the North Atlantic seaboard and forecast almost continued snowfall until late tonight. A low pressure area covering this section caused the snow. Slightly colder weather forecast for tonight will stop the snow late today, but no precipitation is possible tomorrow, the weather bureau stated.

Seven below zero in a Pittsburgh suburb was the coldest official temperature reported to the bureau here, but 23 below was reported unofficially.

Kansas Banking Chief Denies Pardon Bribery Charges

TOPEKA, Jan. 29.—Carl J. Peterson, state banking commissioner under former Governor Jonathan M. Davis, was arraigned today on carges of conspiracy and soliciting a bribe in connection with pardons. Peterson pleaded not guilty and was released on a $1,200 bond for appearance in February.

Former Governor Davis, against whom information was filed by the district attorney's office yesterday, along with Peterson, was allowed until Saturday to get here from his Bourbon county home.

dreds, according to dispatches received here today by Dr. G. M. Magruder, in charge of the United States public health service in this district. Five are dead already and hundreds are dying.

There was no indication given in the dispatches as to the number of persons suffering from the disease.

Dr. Magruder said a large percentage of the afflicted were Eskimos, who, he said, were particularly susceptible to diseases that scourged the white man.

Arrangements were being completed today by Dr. Magruder to rush 1,000,000 anti-toxin units to Nome on the steamer Alameda which sails Saturday from Seattle to Seward, Alaska.

From Seward the units will have to be shipped overland and Dr. Magruder was trying today to arrange a system of packing to protect the shipment from freezing as it is carried on dog sleds.

Efforts to obtain an airplane in Alaska to carry the serum were unsuccessful, and it seemed probable the only method of transportation left will be by dog teams.

Temperatures in the north were reported being 60 and 70 degrees below zero, according to Dr. Magruder, which will mean special packing to protect the anti-toxin. Elaborate arrangements were planned by the health service for this feature of the race.

One Doctor in Nome

Included with the anti-toxin, which will weigh from 100 to 200 pounds, will be material for the Shick test, used to determine if persons are immune from diphtheria. These persons will be used to nurse the sick and to carry messages in the stricken northern town.

Dr. Curtis Welch, public health service surgeon, is the only doctor in Nome at present and his strength is being taxed to the utmost by the great demands made upon him.

According to word received by Dr. MaGruder, a special health board has been appointed in Nome by Mayor George S. Maynard to carry out the provisions of a district quarantine.

Every nurse in the town has been pressed into service and volunteer nurses are being asked.

HITTING TARGET AT C. OF C. MEET

Highlights of George Creel's address at the Chamber of Commerce meeting last night were:

"Twenty-five years ago a man married on his terms. But today a man is not allowed to 'shush' his wife and must be as courteous to her as he is to a stranger.

Years ago a woman never went out unless she wore as many layers as a Bermuda onion. The old fashioned riding habit not only covered her legs but the horse's legs as well.

"People don't read politics. Down south they have not heard of Jefferson's illness and in New England they are still voting for Abe Lincoln.

"In England, when a boy shows no signs of earning a living they put him in the army or in the church. Over here we send them to congress.

"Two states claim Hearst as a favorite son. New Yorkers say he is a Californian and Californians say he is a New Yorker.

"Men fear to enter public life because they dislike mud baths. It is cheaper to go to French Lick.

"Henry Ford would rather be wrong than be president.

"I am surprised that the humane society did not stop the last election.

"I can sit on a park bench and I never see a tax collector. But if I get a job, marry, raise a family and provide a home I pay a half dozen different kinds of taxes."

of New York, held the undivided attention of his audience for nearly two hours, driving home truth after truth, very often in a mirthful manner. He manifested a keen knowledge of governmental affairs throughout his talk. Creel began his newspaper career as a reporter in Kansas City and for many years afterwards edited newspapers in Kansas City and Denver. He married B'anche Bates, former actress in 1912. He has written a half dozen or more books and also is the author of the famous "Uncle Henry" articles in Colliers Weekly. For nearly two years during the World war he headed the committee on Public Information, through an appointment of President Wilson. He is a member of the Players Club of New York.

Plea for Preservation of Home.

"I come to you tonight with a plea for the preservation of two of our foremost institutions," said Creel. "The first of these is the American home. It used to be you had to have cause for a divorce but today a wife may divorce her husband or vise versa for the most trival reasons.

"I do not want to see the home destroyed. It's a thing that cannot be made during the extra hours or over the week-end. In looking over the many unhappy marriages I come to the conclusion that the blame can be placed at the door of my own sex. Up to 1900, a man could marry by his own terms. A husband was the master of his own home.

"Any girl who reached the age of 25 years without having a husband had her hunting license taken away. At 40 she was assumed to have come into the world with the rocks and hills and at 50 they debated whether or not to chloroform her. A woman in those days, using a lip stick would have been prayed for in open church. When a woman married she became a wife and mother only.

"Man made his mistake when he took his foot off the woman's neck. We were made to take off our silks and satins. From that time on women have changed. The woman bounded out of the rut and went into the schools, the stores, banks and factories. They claim the right to vote—if they choose. In years to come the husband is going to realize more and more his wife's position and when that time comes, the home is going to be more safe.

Elections and Equal Suffrage.

Now we come to another thing that is being threatened—that is elections. Last year more than 24,000,000 voters stayed at home. When the Irish took over the elections it looked for a time as though the problem had been solved. But the Irish soon adopted American ideals of not voting and turned the situation over to the Italians. In many elections I have seen Italians voting nine or ten times in one day. Then the Greeks followed, but soon they arose above the voting level so now very few vote. It is too bad we cannot have the Japs and the Chinese do our voting.

"In the olden times Republicans voted for Abe Lincoln and Democrats for Thomas Jefferson. We used to vote in livery stables, but equal suffrage has done away with these conditions. Today we are expected to read the platforms and know the names of some of the candidates.

"Prohibition has had a lot to do with the decline of interest in elections for the red-blooded manhood of America cannot do good work on sundaes. In the days when the saloon gave vim and vigor to the citizen I have seen stalwart electors voting early in the morning and keep it up till dark without turning a hair. As one politician recently complained to me, you can not get up any sort of enthusiasm for civic duty with an Eskimo pie.

Bryan Greatest Anglo-Saxophone.

"People are disguested with the caliber of men holding public office. They are afraid they will be charged with being an accomplice to a crime and consequently do not go to the polls on election day. Today when a boy reaches the voting age, he is told how his father and grandfather voted and he is expected to vote the same way. Up in Maine recently, they got the rooster and the eagle mixed and in a solid Republican community they elected a Democratic ticket.

"Out in the great open spaces of the west, William J. Bryan is still held in reverence as the greatest Anglo-Saxophone. In Arkansas, they keep his speeches for the long winter evenings. In spite of these methods intelligent men occasionally get to congress. The people have fixed their terms at two years and they no sooner take office than they are compelled to start running for re-election again.

"A congressman is expected to pour so much money into his district each year, and if it isn't an appropriation for dredging Snake Creek, it would be a five-story Italian marble post-office in a town of 200, pigs included When big men take interest in politics its usually 10 or 20 per cent. Instead of running the government they generally prefer to run the men that run the government—the power behind the bone.

Nation Likes Mud-Slinging.

The minute a man achieves success in business they look upon him as unfit for office. Just look at the case of John W. Davis. He lost because the people found out that J. P. Morgan had been one of his clients. The American people will not stand for any candidate who has clients unless it be in a few police court cases. They will not elect anybody who ever earned more than $18 a week. Preferably he ought to be in the bread line or live with his wife's folks.

"This is a great nation for 'mud-slinging,' and the worst of it the people like to see it. Whisper something to your neighbor about the other fellow and notice how he pricks up his ears. We should change the first line in our national anthem to 'Oh say, did you hear?' It would be more appropriate.

"They say more voters would come to the polls if we nominated great men like William R. Hearst or Henry Ford. You might nominate Hi Johnson but he's always running and would be out of breath when he reached the White House.

"A year ago I wasn't back of this Henry Ford movement for president. I favored Charley Chaplain, Mr. Sheean or Mr. Gallagher. I won't leave Mr. Ford without paying a tribute to his splendid Americanism. He likes America so well he does not take time to read its history.

"In the last campaign the Democrats were urged repeatedly to throw the towel into the ring. The fact is the Democrats never owned a towel to throw into the ring.

G. O. P.-Democratic Blunders

The Republicans give a lot of time and thought to their blunders. The Democrats just blunder instinctively, happily and with song. The Republicans nominate their candidates months in advance and keep them on ice until needed. Democrats go to their conventions without the slightest idea of what they are going to do and have to rely upon the telephone books or city directories in picking out their candidates.

"Mr. La Follette was termed a radical but he showed that he was a conservative when he did not resign his seat from that great common-wealth which borders the United States on the north. It is true the Wisconsin senator sought to curb the authority of the United States courts.

"The trouble with our courts is that they are too slow. La Follette was they are too slow. I know a man who inherited his litigation through his grandfather. La Follette was right when he said our courts needed reorganization. Justice moves too slow.

"Fifty-years ago Republican leaders had the forethought to see a great problem facing the nation in 1924 and Calvin Coolidge was born to meet that issue. Party leaders sat beside his cradle talking tariff and other big issues with him. Everybody worked for his election, even his enemies. The Democrats did Coolidge a great service when they called him 'Silent Cal.' The people have a superstitious reverence for any man who keeps his mouth shut. That's why Coolidge was elected. We needed a sphinx in the last election.

Conservatives and Liberals.

"President Coolidge had done nothing during the year that he had been in the White House and that made him thousands of votes. He was one of the few Republicans who hadn't done something.

"But the Republicans are not through with the La Follettes, Brookharts, Farziers, Kenyons, Johnsons and others, generally regarded as radicals but who still classify themselves as Republicans. We are going to have two groups in the future to choose between—the conservatives and the liberals.

"There are no real burning issues today. The baseball season hasn't opened and Dempsey has no real rivals. The only minor matters before us are the K. K. K., prohibition and such questions.

"I am for the Ku Klux Klan. There isn't so much humor in American life that we can afford to part with a single source of laughter.

"The passage of the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill eliminated the danger of some of us becoming food addicts. Among the things which can now be imported into this country are leaves, roots, stems, dried bugs and fishbone. Imagine a housewife getting up a meal on such stuff!

Prohibition and Taxes.

"Prohibition is settled once and for all. Coolidge was elected on a law enforcement platform and you can rely on his doing his best to enforce the 18th amendment. Brewers and distillers are not so much against prohibition, they say, as they are against the secrecy with whcih it was adopted.

"It is splendid to see how some of our best people have turned their homes into bar rooms since the advent of prohibition. But they are fighting a losing battle. Raisins have nothing to offer, they have not even invented a wrinkle remover. As you go along in New York you can smell other things except sour mash today. But time will prove the worthiness of prohibition the future generation will favor enforcement. We will then all say 'I was always for it.'

"Now we come to the question of taxes. I am asked to furnish four affidavits from persons who saw me enter a St. Louis restaurant to eat a meal for which I am not to be taxed. What color was the cashier's hair and how many automobiles were parked in front of the place when I entered, I am asked. There's too much red tape about this tax collection business.

Question of War.

"Then comes the big question of war. Six years ago the people were a unit against future wars. Today we are being urged to pour millions into the manufacture of war machines.

"Coolidge had the courage to say this country will enter a world court, which is the first step toward the league of nations as a guarantee against future wars. With airplanes and zeppelins, we are no longer safe from European conflicts. We drew the sword in France that this thing should never happen again.

"During the war I was chairman of the committee on public information. We organized the four-minute men, published newspaper articles, showed motion pictures, conducted meetings and did everything in the United States and other allied countries to strengthen the morale of the allies and break down hope and cause despair in the camps of our enemies. We were successful.

"Our men went into the mud of Flanders with a new hope and fought that this thing should be ended for ever."

Visits K. T. & K. Pottery.

Mr. Creel, who reached East Liverpool late Tuesday night made his headquarters at the Thompson House during his stay in the city. With T. T. Jones, a local newspaperman, he visited the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles pottery, yesterday afternoon, through the courtesy of James B. McDonald, a member of the firm, and Robert Weinhardt, an office executive. He inspected every department of the industry from the slip house to the packing shed.

Mr. Creel left here by trolley last night for Pittsburgh where he made train connections for his home in New York.

MAN DIES WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

COLUMBUS, Jan. 29.—Death of J. C. Williamson, address unknown, occurred here early today soon after he was hit by an automobile driven by Louis Miltzler, Brooklyn. Pending identification Williamson's body is at Denton, Donaldson and Hughes undertaking parlors. Miltzer was being held at city prison for investigation.

Al Smith's Potentialities.

A.—Mr. Hughes is a very able man—in fact, I regard him as one of the most brilliant secretaries of state which this country ever possessed. But there is one thing I can never forgive him for. That was when he and 31 others signed a statement, pledging their support of the league of nations, and later Mr. Hughes broke that pledge of honor.

Q.—Will Governor Al Smith have presidential possibilities in 1928?

A.—Of course Tammany Hall is behind him, but the trouble it isn't behind him far enough.

Q—Did Robert Lansing merit dismissal from the state department?

A—He should have been dismissed long before he was. He was the biggest mistake in the Wilson cabinet. He rightfully earned the title of the "Bud Fisher" of the cabinet, because he would sit during important meetings drawing caricatures with a pencil and tablet.

Baker's Place in History.

Q—What will be Secretary Newton Baker's ultimate place in history?

A—Mr. Baker will hold a prominent place in history because he accomplished a big task during the war. His only handicap is he does not weight 200 pounds. The trouble in this country is we put too much premium on beef.

Q—How much influence did Secretary Tumulty really have in President Wilson's activities?

A—Less than nothing.

Q—Does Senator Borah merit the high reputation given him as a statesman?

A—Senator Borah is for everything until he comes to vote and then he's against it. He was against the child labor bill because he found out that it interfered with state's right and so with many other measures. In the eleventh hour he always finds some excuse for being against a measure which was thought to have his whole hearted support.

Q—Why did Hughes resign his portfolio?

A—To make a living. Cabinet officers draw $12,000 a year and that isn't enough to pay their house rent. Men in public life in Washington must either starve or steal. Some do both.

Q—Will Ex-Secretary Fall ever be brought to court?

A—Not in our life time.

Q—Will Teddy Roosevelt, Jr., be able to come back?

A—He was never there.

Pays Tribute to Daniels.

Q.—Will our debtor nations pay the war loans due us? If so, when?

A.—They will pay as soon as they are able. France is unable to pay anything now. You cannot get blood out of a turnip.

Q.—Has John W. Davis a political future? If so, when?

Q.—What is your opinion of Josephus Daniels as a secretary of the navy?

A.—I will not tell you my opinion, but I will give you the statement of Admiral Dewey, made a year before he died, which I published. Dewey said that Daniels was the greatest secretary of the navy this country ever had. Every form of lie was used against him while he was in office. The brewers and distillers fought him because he banned liquor on government vessels for officers as well as enlisted men. A picture which he had taken at a Y. M. C. A. welfare hut, standing between two sailors with a hand on each of the men's shoulders, was stolen from the wall of the building, reproduced and scattered from one end of the country to the other in an effort to blacken his standing.

Fight Over Maine Primary Law.

Citizens in the State of Maine are preparing to fight for a repeal of the direct primary law. If 12,000 signatures to the petitions are obtained the Legislature will be asked to put the matter to a vote of the public, and already a large number of voters has been enrolled.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Oil stocks ran riot with the stock market in the early trading today, buying orders for the leading independent and Standard oil shares surged into the curb and listed markets in the largest volume since the early part of last year. pools which upset the calculations of Just prior to the opening of the big the oil industry. A decline of 20,000 barrels a day in crude oil production as reported by the American Petroleum institute and realization that higher crude oil prices means a gain of millions of dollars in the inventory values of companies which purchased large stores of oil at the low prices of 1924, brought new interest to the oil stocks today.

Stimulated by the steady rise in oil stock prices which has taken place since the middle of the month, culminating in advances of 2 to 5 points since Monday, traders rushed in to buy the oil shares at steadily advancing prices as soon as the market opened today. Wall street circulated rumors that a number of the prominent independent companies were to be merged into a giant producing refining and distributing combination. Standard Oil of New Jersey jumped a full point at the opening; Standard Oil of California sold a point higher and good gains were made by a score or more of the independent oils, including the Pan-Americans, Sinclair, Marland Cosden, Shell Union, Phillips, Texas Co., Pacific, Skelly, Pure Oil, Houston, California Pete.

A few of the rails and specialty stocks joined the upward movement near the opening, but it was evident that considerable "switching" was taking place from stocks of this class.

Soldier Confesses He Murdered Girl In Enraged Moment

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 29.—Private George C. Cordy, a member of headquarters company at Fort Adams, has confessed that he murdered Miss Mary Gleason, whose body was found in a moat near the fortification, Chief Inspector Ahearn, of Providence, announced today.

According to the confession, as related by Inspector Ahearn, Cordy was a former sweetheart of the young woman.

The night she was slain she was going to the fort to meet Private George Henderson, also a member of his company. Cordy, returning to the fort about the same time, after several days' absence, met her and became violently enraged when he learned she was going to see another man.

Henderson, who reported the young woman's disappearance two days later had been held by the police.

Plan to Speed up Action on Proposed New State Building

COLUMBUS, Jan. 29.—Plans for speeding up action relative to the proposed new state office building are expected to be made today when the senate committee on state buildings resumed discussion of the resolution of Senator Vorys, Franklin county, providing for creation of legislative committee to work in co-operation with the state building commission, in arranging for erection of an office building contiguous to the state house.

An architect of national renute is reported by State Auditor Tracy to have interested himself in the project "from the standpoint of art alone," and may propose two plans, one for erection of the building on the state house grounds and the other on a site nearby. The architect was not named.

Veterans' bureau officials said that no men will be accepted for training prior to June who did not have application for training or compensation before June 30, 1923. Those whose applications were rejected still have an opportunity to obtain a re-opening of their cases. Apneals, it was stated, will be acted upon promptly.

Reports to Director Frank T. Hines indicated that the rehabilitated exservice men, who came out of the war partially disabled and virtually a drug on the labor market, has "come back" and has established himself a firm cog in the commercial and industrial machinery of the nation.

Few rehabilitated men have failed to make good. Employment conditions among the rehabilitated exsoldier were described as far better than a year ago.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Frank Ross

Mrs. Frank Ross, 55 years old, died this morning in her home, 1123 White street, Wellsville after a lingering illness of complications.

She is survived by her husband and two children.

John Grant, over sixty years old, recently saved the life of William Downes, a fellow fisherman, whose boat was capsized by a heavy sea near Folkeston, England.

IN MEMORIAM.

Burrows:—Mary C. In loving memory of our dear Mother, who was taken away one year ago today, Jan. 29th, 1924.

"What happy days we once enjoyed
When we were all together.
But, oh, how changed it all is now,
Since you have gone forever,
You fought life's battles bravely,
And patiently stood every test,
And you will always be loved and remembered,
Because you were one of the best.

other. Many are out of work all the time, and at depression periods some time as high as 7,000,000 are jobless. The answer is: Bring the man and the job together.

"The Knights of Columbus, following the war, established 1,000 free employment bureaus throughout the country, hired 1,000 paid secretaries, 4,000 paid job hunters and 5,000 volunteer job hunters. Hundreds of thousands of ex-service men were placed back at work. Then came education. Thousands were fitted for advancement under guidance of best instruction possible. And those K. of C. workers never asked a man what his religion was. He would have been fired if he had.

"Establishment of non-partisan, non-political, free employment bureaus across the country would do away with non-employment. The underpaid man presents another problem. Every man has the right to a living wage, decent and comfortable circumstances. If not he is the victim of fraud. These were the principles contained in the great document laid down by Pope Leo XIII. These things can be brought about by peace and harmony only.

"The men who'd make for discord and class hatred are enemies to civilization and our country.

"Concerning religious bigotry and intolerance: God gave everyone the right to determine the manner of his own worship. This right is guaranteed by the constitution of the United States. Religious bigotry and intolerance were not what made the United States great. This happened only by the service of all—Catholic, Protestant, Jew and Gentile.

"I take the word 'America. The first letter A stands for all Americans, which we are, irrespective of the land of birth of our forefathers. All of us come from some foreign country. The only difference, if any, was the difference in the time of the arrival of the boats.

"The letter M stands for Manhood, the glory of America. Every man must build upon the foundation of character.

"The letter E stands for education which in turn means freedom and protection. Education must recognize religious and moral principles.

"The letter R stands for Republic, the greatest in history. It will be remembered we all stood shoulder to shoulder—Catholic, Protestant, Jew and Gentile—in time of war and the same conditions will prevail in the future.

"The letter I stands for Ideals, the rights of life, liberty and the persuit of happiness.

"The letter C is for the Constitution of our country, the foundation, guarantee and protection of rights. No one has the right to say that it will protect them and not some one else, because of differences in religion.

"The final letter A is for Ambition, which is the desire for service. As just laws come from the laws of God, so harmony, loyalty and peace emerge from the spirit of service for our country.

VALENTINE JOKE, DECLARES MAYOR

Mayor James S. Barnes is still living today despite the dire threats of his untimely end contained in a letter he received yesterday.

Mayor Barnes regards it as a premature Valentine note.

The letter said:

"Dirty ——— Mayor Barnes.

"Are you not shame of yourself to do that dirty d——— trick you done to kill that poor Mr. Frost for four bottles of slop beer.

"Now you are far enough. We are affiliated to get rid of you one by one. You will get your turn. We already got seven or eight kill of your dirty bunch and now you are the next one. Don't take this for a joke. We don't care how many watching you. We will get you and pretty dam quick.

"No mercies for you last than kill a mad dog. You don't worth more than a dog, less for us.

"You know what this means (blackhand drawing).

"We never stop for nothing."

ISSUE MANDAMUS AGAINST AUDITOR

City Auditor Fred Eckfeld, as fiscal officer of the city of Wellsville, has had an alternate writ of mandamus issued in common pleas court against him, returnable February 16 at 9:30 o'clock. This court action was taken following the refusal of Mr. Eckfeld to certify to council there was sufficient money in the city treasury of Wellsville to pay a judgment of $1,500 obtained by Jesse W. Stone against the municipality during the September term of court.

Following the judgment, Mr. Eckfeld was asked to certify to council his ability or inability to find funds to pay the judgment, or to suggest to council that bonds be issued to pay the judgment.

The petition relates that Mr. Eckfeld refused to go before the Wellsville council in this matter unless mandamus was issued.

The petition has been filed by Attorney W. A. O'Grady.

Plan Euchre Tonight.

Arrangements have been completed for the euchre which will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock under auspices of the Tulsa club in the headquarters of Corporal Dan D. Duty post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. Luncheon will be served by the social committee at the close of the program.

Mrs. Haggerty Hostess.

Mrs. Anna Haggerty will be hostess to members of the Tulsa club tomorrow evening at her home in Eighth street. The business session will be followed by a social hour.

Wellsville Personals.

Mrs. Fred Beatty of Mannington, W. Va., has concluded a visit with her mother, Mrs. George Fiber, of Arthur avenue.

Mrs. Bernard Hartman and daughter of Eighteenth street are ill.

Mrs. Anna Maas of Cleveland was a visitor yesterday with Mrs. R. A. McMullin of Riverside avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Morrow have concluded a visit with Minerva and Canton relatives.

Herrin is Crowded With Visitors for Klansman's Funeral

HERRIN, Ills., Jan. 29.—Herrin was crowded today with visitors who came from far and near for the most colorful drama in the stirring history of this little war-like town—the funeral of S. Glenn Young, two-gun Ku Klux Klan raider, who died with his boots on in a blaze of gun-fire last Saturday when two of his followers and his arch-enemy, Deputy Sheriff Ora Thomas also were killed.

Funeral services were being held simultaneously at five churches in order to accommodate the thousands of Klansmen who had journeyed here to participate in the monster demonstration. At the Baptist church where the leader's body lay in state, two white-robed klansmen stood guard at the bier throughout the night.

The background of the coffin, veiled on white, was a mass of red and white crosses and floral tributes from klan chapters in all parts of the state. Two illuminated crosses carried out the flaming symbol of the order.

Virtually all the city officers and principal business places were closed and it was estimated that a procession ten miles long will follow the hearse to the cemetery.

"Cozy" Dolan Tells Story of Baseball Scandal to Prober

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. — Albert "Cozy" Dolan," debarred coach of the New York Giants, suddenly appeared on the scene of the baseball scandal investigation today and went before Assistant District Attorney George Brothers for questioning. Dolan, with Jimmy O'Connell, New York Giants' outfielder, was declared ineligible by Baseball Commissioner Landis, following the attempt of O'Connell to bribe Heine Sand, of the Philadelphia club, not "to bear down" in a game with the Giants last September.

French Statesman Cites Two Ideals For Debt Payment

PARIS, Jan. 29.—If two 'ideals" are observed, a settlement of Franco-American debts will come about with satisfaction to both countries, it was indicated today by Raoul Peret, opposition leader in the chamber of deputies, who spoke at noon at the American club.

He specified the ideals as:

"First, the respect of contract by France; second, respect of justice by America."

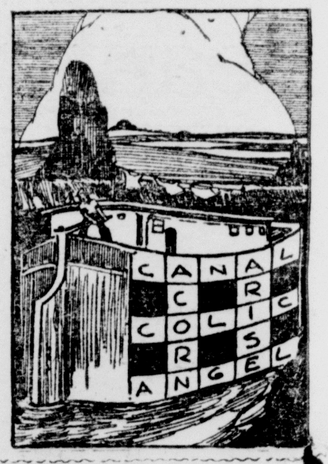

Ireland's Famine Aggravated by Fear Of Fever Outbreak

DUBLIN, Jan. 29.—Ireland's spreading famine already of serious proportions in Galway, Dongal, Connemara and Kerry counties, was aggravated today by a threatened outbreak of fever in the afflicted regions.

Dublin authorities are providing 15,000 children with one meal a day. The Bank of Ireland has contributed $10,000 towards relief and other organizations are raising funds for the sufferers.

WEATHER MAN PROMISES SNOW

Sweeping Storm Blankets Pittsburgh; Forecast is Colder.

Street car service in the East Liverpool district was handicapped by a six inch blanket of snow which began falling about 8:30 o'clock this morning.

Two snow sweepers were kept in operation in East Liverpool, Wellsville, Chester and as far east as Smiths Ferry. A large force of trucks and workmen were also at work keeping switches cleared of snow.

Telephone and train service were reported normal at the noon hour.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 29.—Temperatures ranging from 12 to 15 degrees above zero were forecast for Ohio tonight by officials at the local United States weather bureau today. Cloudy and moderating weather Friday, with a probable minimum temperature Friday night of 20 degrees above the cipher, also, was predicted.

Snow flurries prevailed throughout the state today. Light snow is expected tonight.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—A terrific gale off the coast of North Carolina is moving northward with increasing intensity, the weather bureau warned shipping today. Storm warnings were ordered displayed between Nantucket and Delaware breakwater.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The outlook is for snow tonight in the middle Atlantic states and tonight and Friday in the northern Atlantic states and the eastern lower lake region, the United States weather bureau announced today.

Moderate heavy snows are indicated for this afternoon and tonight in southern New England, southeastern New York, New Jersey, eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 29.—A sweeping snow storm blew into Pennsylvania today on the heels of the below-zero temperatures reported from all sections of the state yesterday. Starting just before 9 o'clock in Pittsburgh. The local weather bureau stated the storm was general over the state and the North Atlantic seaboard and forecast almost continued snowfall until late tonight. A low pressure area covering this section caused the snow. Slightly colder weather forecast for tonight will stop the snow late today, but no precipitation is possible tomorrow, the weather bureau stated.

Seven below zero in a Pittsburgh suburb was the coldest official temperature reported to the bureau here, but 23 below was reported unofficially.

Kansas Banking Chief Denies Pardon Bribery Charges

TOPEKA, Jan. 29.—Carl J. Peterson, state banking commissioner under former Governor Jonathan M. Davis, was arraigned today on carges of conspiracy and soliciting a bribe in connection with pardons. Peterson pleaded not guilty and was released on a $1,200 bond for appearance in February.

Former Governor Davis, against whom information was filed by the district attorney's office yesterday, along with Peterson, was allowed until Saturday to get here from his Bourbon county home.

Diphtheria Epidemic

dreds, according to dispatches received here today by Dr. G. M. Magruder, in charge of the United States public health service in this district. Five are dead already and hundreds are dying.

There was no indication given in the dispatches as to the number of persons suffering from the disease.

Dr. Magruder said a large percentage of the afflicted were Eskimos, who, he said, were particularly susceptible to diseases that scourged the white man.

Arrangements were being completed today by Dr. Magruder to rush 1,000,000 anti-toxin units to Nome on the steamer Alameda which sails Saturday from Seattle to Seward, Alaska.

From Seward the units will have to be shipped overland and Dr. Magruder was trying today to arrange a system of packing to protect the shipment from freezing as it is carried on dog sleds.

Efforts to obtain an airplane in Alaska to carry the serum were unsuccessful, and it seemed probable the only method of transportation left will be by dog teams.

Temperatures in the north were reported being 60 and 70 degrees below zero, according to Dr. Magruder, which will mean special packing to protect the anti-toxin. Elaborate arrangements were planned by the health service for this feature of the race.

One Doctor in Nome

Included with the anti-toxin, which will weigh from 100 to 200 pounds, will be material for the Shick test, used to determine if persons are immune from diphtheria. These persons will be used to nurse the sick and to carry messages in the stricken northern town.

Dr. Curtis Welch, public health service surgeon, is the only doctor in Nome at present and his strength is being taxed to the utmost by the great demands made upon him.

According to word received by Dr. MaGruder, a special health board has been appointed in Nome by Mayor George S. Maynard to carry out the provisions of a district quarantine.

Every nurse in the town has been pressed into service and volunteer nurses are being asked.

HITTING TARGET AT C. OF C. MEET

Highlights of George Creel's address at the Chamber of Commerce meeting last night were:

"Twenty-five years ago a man married on his terms. But today a man is not allowed to 'shush' his wife and must be as courteous to her as he is to a stranger.

Years ago a woman never went out unless she wore as many layers as a Bermuda onion. The old fashioned riding habit not only covered her legs but the horse's legs as well.

"People don't read politics. Down south they have not heard of Jefferson's illness and in New England they are still voting for Abe Lincoln.

"In England, when a boy shows no signs of earning a living they put him in the army or in the church. Over here we send them to congress.

"Two states claim Hearst as a favorite son. New Yorkers say he is a Californian and Californians say he is a New Yorker.

"Men fear to enter public life because they dislike mud baths. It is cheaper to go to French Lick.

"Henry Ford would rather be wrong than be president.

"I am surprised that the humane society did not stop the last election.

"I can sit on a park bench and I never see a tax collector. But if I get a job, marry, raise a family and provide a home I pay a half dozen different kinds of taxes."

of New York, held the undivided attention of his audience for nearly two hours, driving home truth after truth, very often in a mirthful manner. He manifested a keen knowledge of governmental affairs throughout his talk. Creel began his newspaper career as a reporter in Kansas City and for many years afterwards edited newspapers in Kansas City and Denver. He married B'anche Bates, former actress in 1912. He has written a half dozen or more books and also is the author of the famous "Uncle Henry" articles in Colliers Weekly. For nearly two years during the World war he headed the committee on Public Information, through an appointment of President Wilson. He is a member of the Players Club of New York.

Plea for Preservation of Home.

"I come to you tonight with a plea for the preservation of two of our foremost institutions," said Creel. "The first of these is the American home. It used to be you had to have cause for a divorce but today a wife may divorce her husband or vise versa for the most trival reasons.

"I do not want to see the home destroyed. It's a thing that cannot be made during the extra hours or over the week-end. In looking over the many unhappy marriages I come to the conclusion that the blame can be placed at the door of my own sex. Up to 1900, a man could marry by his own terms. A husband was the master of his own home.

"Any girl who reached the age of 25 years without having a husband had her hunting license taken away. At 40 she was assumed to have come into the world with the rocks and hills and at 50 they debated whether or not to chloroform her. A woman in those days, using a lip stick would have been prayed for in open church. When a woman married she became a wife and mother only.

"Man made his mistake when he took his foot off the woman's neck. We were made to take off our silks and satins. From that time on women have changed. The woman bounded out of the rut and went into the schools, the stores, banks and factories. They claim the right to vote—if they choose. In years to come the husband is going to realize more and more his wife's position and when that time comes, the home is going to be more safe.

Elections and Equal Suffrage.

Now we come to another thing that is being threatened—that is elections. Last year more than 24,000,000 voters stayed at home. When the Irish took over the elections it looked for a time as though the problem had been solved. But the Irish soon adopted American ideals of not voting and turned the situation over to the Italians. In many elections I have seen Italians voting nine or ten times in one day. Then the Greeks followed, but soon they arose above the voting level so now very few vote. It is too bad we cannot have the Japs and the Chinese do our voting.

"In the olden times Republicans voted for Abe Lincoln and Democrats for Thomas Jefferson. We used to vote in livery stables, but equal suffrage has done away with these conditions. Today we are expected to read the platforms and know the names of some of the candidates.

"Prohibition has had a lot to do with the decline of interest in elections for the red blooded manhood of America cannot do good work on sundaes. In the days when the saloon gave vim and vigor to the citizen I have seen stalwart electors voting early in the morning and keep it up till dark without turning a hair. As one politician recently complained to me, you can not get up any sort of enthusiasm for civic duty with an Eskimo pie.

Bryan Greatest Anglo-Saxophone.

"People are disguested with the caliber of men holding public office. They are afraid they will be charged with being an accomplice to a crime and consequently do not go to the polls on election day. Today when a boy reaches the voting age, he is told how his father and grandfather voted and he is expected to vote the same way. Up in Maine recently, they got the rooster and the eagle mixed and in a solid Republican community they elected a Democratic ticket.

"Out in the great open spaces of the west, William J. Bryan is still held in reverence as the greatest Anglo-Saxophone. In Arkansas, they keep his speeches for the long winter evenings. In spite of these methods intelligent men occasionally get to congress. The people have fixed their terms at two years and they no sooner take office than they are compelled to start running for re-election again.

"A congressman is expected to pour so much money into his district each year, and if it isn't an appropriation for dredging Snake Creek, it would be a five-story Italian marble postoffice in a town of 200, pigs included. When big men take interest in politics its usually 10 or 20 per cent. Instead of running the government they generally prefer to run the men that run the government—the power behind the bone.

Nation Likes Mud-Slinging.

The minute a man achieves success in business they look upon him as unfit for office. Just look at the case of John W. Davis. He lost because the people found out that J. P. Morgan had been one of his clients. The American people will not stand for any candidate who has clients unless it be in a few police court cases. They will not elect anybody who ever earned more than $18 a week. Preferably he ought to be in the bread line or live with his wife's folks.

"This is a great nation for 'mud-slinging,' and the worst of it the people like to see it. Whisper something to your neighbor about the other fellow and notice how he pricks up his ears. We should change the first line in our national anthem to 'Oh say, did you hear?' It would be more appropriate.

"They say more voters would come to the polls if we nominated great men like William R. Hearst or Henry Ford. You might nominate Hi Johnson but he's always running and would be out of breath when he reached the White House.

"A year ago I wasn't back of this Henry Ford movement for president. I favored Charley Chaplain, Mr. Sheean or Mr. Gallagher. I won't leave Mr. Ford without paying a tribute to his splendid Americanism. He likes America so well he does not take time to read its history.

"In the last campaign the Democrats were urged repeatedly to throw the towel into the ring. The fact is the Democrats never owned a towel to throw into the ring.

G. O. P.-Democratic Blunders

The Republicans give a lot of time and thought to their blunders. The Democrats just blunder instinctively, happily and with song. The Republicans nominate their candidates months in advance and keep them on ice until needed. Democrats go to their conventions without the slightest idea of what they are going to do and have to rely upon the telephone books or city directories in picking out their candidates.

"Mr. La Follette was termed a radical but he showed that he was a conservative when he did not resign his seat from that great common-wealth which borders the United States on the north. It is true the Wisconsin senator sought to curb the authority of the United States courts.

"The trouble with our courts is that they are too slow. La Follette was they are too slow. I know a man who inherited his litigation through his grandfather. La Follette was right when he said our courts needed reorganization. Justice moves too slow.

"Fifty-years ago Republican leaders had the forethought to see a great problem facing the nation in 1924 and Calvin Coolidge was born to meet that issue. Party leaders sat beside his cradle talking tariff and other big issues with him. Everybody worked for his election, even his enemies. The Democrats did Coolidge a great service when they called him 'Silent Cal.' The people have a superstitious reverence for any man who keeps his mouth shut. That's why Coolidge was elected. We needed a sphinx in the last election.

Conservatives and Liberals.

"President Coolidge had done nothing during the year that he had been in the White House and that made him thousands of votes. He was one of the few Republicans who hadn't done something.

"But the Republicans are not through with the La Follettes, Brookharts, Farziers, Kenyons, Johnsons and others, generally regarded as radicals but who still classify themselves as Republicans. We are going to have two groups in the future to choose between—the conservatives and the liberals.

"There are no real burning issues today. The baseball season hasn't opened and Dempsey has no real rivals. The only minor matters before us are the K. K. K., prohibition and such questions.

"I am for the Ku Klux Klan. There isn't so much humor in American life that we can afford to part with a single source of laughter.

"The passage of the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill eliminated the danger of some of us becoming food addicts. Among the things which can now be imported into this country are leaves, roots, stems, dried bugs and fishbone. Imagine a housewife getting up a meal on such stuff!

Prohibition and Taxes.

"Prohibition is settled once and for all. Coolidge was elected on a law enforcement platform and you can rely on his doing his best to enforce the 18th amendment. Brewers and distillers are not so much against prohibition, they say, as they are against the secrecy with which it was adopted.

"It is splendid to see how some of our best people have turned their homes into bar rooms since the advent of prohibition. But they are fighting a losing battle. Raisins have nothing to offer, they have not even invented a wrinkle remover. As you go along in New York you can smell other things except sour mash today. But time will prove the worthiness of prohibition to the future generation will favor enforcement. We will then all say 'I was always for it.'

"Now we come to the question of taxes. I am asked to furnish four affidavits from persons who saw me enter a St. Louis restaurant to eat a meal for which I am not to be taxed. What color was the cashier's hair and how many automobiles were parked in front of the place when I entered, I am asked. There's too much red tape about this tax collection business.

Question of War.

"Then comes the big question of war. Six years ago the people were a unit against future wars. Today we are being urged to pour millions into the manufacture of war machines.

"Coolidge had the courage to say this country will enter a world court, which is the first step toward the league of nations as a guarantee against future wars. With airplanes and zeppelins, we are no longer safe from European conflicts. We drew the sword in France that this thing should never happen again.

"During the war I was chairman of the committee on public information. We organized the four-minute men, published newspaper articles, showed motion pictures, conducted meetings and did everything in the United States and other allied countries to strengthen the morale of the allies and break down hope and cause despair in the camps of our enemies. We were successful.

"Our men went into the mud of Flanders with a new hope and fought that this thing should be ended for ever."

Visits K. T. & K. Pottery.

Mr. Creel, who reached East Liverpool late Tuesday night made his headquarters at the Thompson House during his stay in the city. With T. T. Jones, a local newspaperman, he visited the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles pottery, yesterday afternoon, through the courtesy of James B. McDonald, a member of the firm, and Robert Weinhardt, an office executive. He inspected every department of the industry from the slip house to the packing shed.

Mr. Creel left here by trolley last night for Pittsburgh where he made train connections for his home in New York.

MAN DIES WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

COLUMBUS, Jan. 29.—Death of J. C. Williamson, address unknown, occurred here early today soon after he was hit by an automobile driven by Louis Miltzler, Brooklyn. Pending identification Williamson's body is at Denton, Donaldson and Hughes undertaking parlors. Miltzer was being held at city prison for investigation.

Al Smith's Potentialities.

A.—Mr. Hughes is a very able man—in fact, I regard him as one of the most brilliant secretaries of state which this country ever possessed. But there is one thing I can never forgive him for. That was when he and 31 others signed a statement, pledging their support of the league of nations, and later Mr. Hughes broke that pledge of honor.

Q.—Will Governor Al Smith have presidential possibilities in 1928?

A.—Of course Tammany Hall is behind him, but the trouble it isn't behind him far enough.

Q.—Did Robert Lansing merit dismissal from the state department?

A.—He should have been dismissed long before he was. He was the biggest mistake in the Wilson cabinet. He rightfully earned the title of the "Bud Fisher" of the cabinet, because he would sit during important meetings drawing caricatures with a pencil and tablet.

Q.—What will be Secretary Newton Baker's ultimate place in history?

A.—Mr. Baker will hold a prominent place in history because he accomplished a big task during the war. His only handicap is he does not weight 200 pounds. The trouble in this country is we put too much premium on beef.

Q.—How much influence did Secretary Tumulty really have in President Wilson's activities?

A.—Less than nothing.

Q.—Does Senator Borah merit the high reputation given him as a statesman?

A.—Senator Borah is for everything until he comes to vote and then he's against it. He was against the child labor bill because he found out that it interfered with state's right and so with many other measures. In the eleventh hour he always finds some excuse for being against a measure which was thought to have his wholehearted support.

Q.—Why did Hughes resign his portfolio?

A.—To make a living. Cabinet officers draw $12,000 a year and that isn't enough to pay their house rent. Men in public life in Washington must either starve or steal. Some do both.

Q.—Will Ex-Secretary Fall ever be brought to court?

A.—Not in our life time.

Q.—Will Teddy Roosevelt, Jr., be able to come back?

A.—He was never there.

Pays Tribute to Daniels.

Q.—Will our debtor nations pay the war loans due us? If so, when?

A.—They will pay as soon as they are able. France is unable to pay anything now. You cannot get blood out of a turnip.

Q.—Has John W. Davis a political future? If so, when?

Q.—What is your opinion of Josephus Daniels as a secretary of the navy?

A.—I will not tell you my opinion, but I will give you the statement of Admiral Dewey, made a year before he died, which I published. Dewey said that Daniels was the greatest secretary of the navy this country ever had. Every form of lie was used against him while he was in office. The brewers and distillers fought him because he banned liquor on government vessels for officers as well as enlisted men. A picture which he had taken at a Y. M. C. A. welfare hut, standing between two sailors with a hand on each of the men's shoulders, was stolen from the wall of the building, reproduced and scattered from one end of the country to the other in an effort to blacken his standing.

Fight Over Maine Primary Law.

Citizens in the State of Maine are preparing to fight for a repeal of the direct primary law. If 12,000 signatures to the petitions are obtained the Legislature will be asked to put the matter to a vote of the public, and already a large number of voters has been enrolled.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Oil stocks ran riot with the stock market in the early trading today, buying orders for the leading independent and Standard oil shares surged into the curb and listed markets in the largest volume since the early part of last year. pools which upset the calculations of Just prior to the opening of the big the oil industry. A decline of 20,000 barrels a day in crude oil production as reported by the American Petroleum institute and realization that higher crude oil prices means a gain of millions of dollars in the inventory values of companies which purchased large stores of oil at the low prices of 1924, brought new interest to the oil stocks today.

Stimulated by the steady rise in oil stock prices which has taken place since the middle of the month, culminating in advances of 2 to 5 points since Monday, traders rushed in to buy the oil shares at steadily advancing prices as soon as the market opened today. Wall street circulated rumors that a number of the prominent independent companies were to be merged into a giant producing refining and distributing combination. Standard Oil of New Jersey jumped a full point at the opening; Standard Oil of California sold a point higher and good gains were made by a score or more of the independent oils, including the Pan-Americans, Sinclair, Marland Cosden, Shell Union, Phillips, Texas Co., Pacific, Skelly, Pure Oil, Houston, California Pete.

A few of the rails and specialty stocks joined the upward movement near the opening, but it was evident that considerable "switching" was taking place from stocks of this class.

Soldier Confesses He Murdered Girl In Enraged Moment

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 29.—Private George C. Cordy, a member of headquarters company at Fort Adams, has confessed that he murdered Miss Mary Gleason, whose body was found in a moat near the fortification, Chief Inspector Ahearn, of Providence, announced today.

According to the confession, as related by Inspector Ahearn, Cordy was a former sweetheart of the young woman.

The night she was slain she was going to the fort to meet Private George Henderson, also a member of his company. Cordy, returning to the fort about the same time, after several days' absence, met her and became violently enraged when he learned she was going to see another man.

Henderson, who reported the young woman's disappearance two days later had been held by the police.

Plan to Speed up Action on Proposed New State Building

COLUMBUS, Jan. 29.—Plans for speeding up action relative to the proposed new state office building are expected to be made today when the senate committee on state buildings resumed discussion of the resolution of Senator Vorys, Franklin county, providing for creation of legislative committee to work in co-operation with the state building commission, in arranging for erection of an office building contiguous to the state house.

An architect of national repute is reported by State Auditor Tracy to have interested himself in the project "from the standpoint of art alone," and may propose two plans, one for erection of the building on the state house grounds and the other on a site nearby. The architect was not named.

Veterans' bureau officials said that no men will be accepted for training prior to June who did not have application for training or compensation before June 30, 1923. Those whose applications were rejected still have an opportunity to obtain a re-opening of their cases. Appeals, it was stated, will be acted upon promptly.

Reports to Director Frank T. Hines indicated that the rehabilitated ex-service men, who came out of the war partially disabled and virtually a drug on the labor market, has "come back" and has established himself a firm cog in the commercial and industrial machinery of the nation.

Few rehabilitated men have failed to make good. Employment conditions among the rehabilitated ex-soldier were described as far better than a year ago.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Frank Ross

Mrs. Frank Ross, 55 years old, died this morning in her home, 1123 White street, Wellsville after a lingering illness of complications.

She is survived by her husband and two children.

IN MEMORIAM.

Burrows:—Mary C. In loving memory of our dear Mother, who was taken away one year ago today, Jan. 29th, 1924.

"What happy days we once enjoyed
When we were all together,
But, oh, how changed it all is now,
Since you have gone forever,
You fought life's battles bravely,
And patiently stood every test,
And you will always be loved and remembered,
Because you were one of the best.

other. Many are out of work all the time, and at depression periods some time as high as 7,000,000 are jobless. The answer is: Bring the man and the job together.

"The Knights of Columbus, following the war, established 1,000 free employment bureaus throughout the country, hired 1,000 paid secretaries, 4,000 paid job hunters and 5,000 volunteer job hunters. Hundreds of thousands of ex-service men were placed back at work. Then came education. Thousands were fitted for advancement under guidance of best instruction possible. And those K. of C. workers never asked a man what his religion was. He would have been fired if he had.

"Establishment of non-partisan, non-political, free employment bureaus across the country would do away with non-employment. The underpaid man presents another problem. Every man has the right to a living wage, decent and comfortable circumstances. If not he is the victim of fraud. These were the principles contained in the great document laid down by Pope Leo XIII. These things can be brought about by peace and harmony only.

"The men who'd make for discord and class hatred are enemies to civilization and our country.

"Concerning religious bigotry and intolerance: God gave everyone the right to determine the manner of his own worship. This right is guaranteed by the constitution of the United States. Religious bigotry and intolerance were not what made the United States great. This happened only by the service of all—Catholic, Protestant, Jew and Gentile.

"I take the word 'America.' The first letter A stands for all Americans, which we are, irrespective of the land of birth of our forefathers. All of us come from some foreign country. The only difference, if any, was the difference in the time of the arrival of the boats.

"The letter M stands for Manhood, the glory of America. Every man must build upon the foundation of character.

"The letter E stands for education which in turn means freedom and protection. Education must recognize religious and moral principles.

"The letter R stands for Republic, the greatest in history. It will be remembered we all stood shoulder to shoulder—Catholic, Protestant, Jew and Gentile—in time of war and the same conditions will prevail in the future.

"The letter I stands for Ideals, the rights of life, liberty and the persuit of happiness.

"The letter C is for the Constitution of our country, the foundation, guarantee and protection of rights. No one has the right to say that it will protect them and not some one else, because of differences in religion.

"The final letter A is for Ambition, which is the desire for service. As just laws come from the laws of God, so harmony, loyalty and peace emerge from the spirit of service for our country.

VALENTINE JOKE, DECLARES MAYOR

Mayor James S. Barnes is still living today despite the dire threats of his untimely end contained in a letter he received yesterday.

Mayor Barnes regards it as a premature Valentine note.

The letter said:

"Dirty ——— Mayor Barnes.

"Are you not shame of yourself to do that dirty d——— trick you done to kill that poor Mr. Frost for four bottles of slop beer.

"Now you are far enough. We are affiliated to get rid of you one by one. You will get your turn. We already got seven or eight kill of your dirty bunch and now you are the next one. Don't take this for a joke. We don't care how many watching you. We will get you and pretty dam quick.

"No mercies for you last than kill a mad dog. You don't worth more than a dog, less for us.

"You know what this means (blackhand drawing).

"We never stop for nothing."

ISSUE MANDAMUS AGAINST AUDITOR

City Auditor Fred Eckfeld, as fiscal officer of the city of Wellsville, has had an alternate writ of mandamus issued in common pleas court against him, returnable February 16 at 9:30 o'clock. This court action was taken following the refusal of Mr. Eckfeld to certify to council there was sufficient money in the city treasury of Wellsville to pay a judgment of $1,500 obtained by Jesse W. Stone against the municipality during the September term of court.

Following the judgment, Mr. Eckfeld was asked to certify to council his ability or inability to find funds to pay the judgment, or to suggest to council that bonds be issued to pay the judgment.

The petition relates that Mr. Eckfeld refused to go before the Wellsville council in this matter unless mandamus was issued.

The petition has been filed by Attorney W. A. O'Grady.

Plan Euchre Tonight.

Mrs. Anna Haggerty will be hostess to members of the Tulsa club tomorrow evening at her home in Eighth street. The business session will be followed by a social hour.

Wellsville Personals.

Mrs. Fred Beatty of Mannington, W. Va., has concluded a visit with her mother, Mrs. George Fiber, of Arthur avenue.

Mrs. Bernard Hartman and daughter of Eighteenth street are ill.

Mrs. Anna Maas of Cleveland was a visitor yesterday with Mrs. R. A. McMullin of Riverside avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Morrow have concluded a visit with Minerva and Canton relatives.

Herrin is Crowded With Visitors for Klansman's Funeral

HERRIN, Ills., Jan. 29.—Herrin was crowded today with visitors who came from far and near for the most colorful drama in the stirring history of this little war-like town—the funeral of S. Glenn Young, two-gun Ku Klux Klan raider, who died with his boots on in a blaze of gun-fire last Saturday when two of his followers and his arch-enemy, Deputy Sheriff Ora Thomas also were killed.

Funeral services were being held simultaneously at five churches in order to accommodate the thousands of Klansmen who had journeyed here to participate in the monster demonstration. At the Baptist church where the leader's body lay in state, two white-robed klansmen stood guard at the bier throughout the night.

The background of the coffin, veiled on white, was a mass of red and white crosses and floral tributes from klan chapters in all parts of the state. Two illuminated crosses carried out the flaming symbol of the order.

Virtually all the city officers and principal business places were closed and it was estimated that a procession ten miles long will follow the hearse to the cemetery.

"Cozy" Dolan Tells Story of Baseball Scandal to Prober

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. — Albert "Cozy" Dolan," debarred coach of the New York Giants, suddenly appeared on the scene of the baseball scandal investigation today and went before Assistant District Attorney George Brothers for questioning. Dolan, with Jimmy O'Connell, New York Giants' outfielder, was declared ineligible by Baseball Commissioner Landis, following the attempt of O'Connell to bribe Heine Sand, of the Philadelphia club, not "to bear down" in a game with the Giants last September.

French Statesman Cites Two Ideals For Debt Payment

PARIS, Jan. 29.—If two "ideals" are observed, a settlement of Franco-American debts will come about with satisfaction to both countries, it was indicated today by Raoul Peret, opposition leader in the chamber of deputies, who spoke at noon at the American club.

He specified the ideals as:

"First, the respect of contract by France; second, respect of justice by America."

Ireland's Famine Aggravated by Fear Of Fever Outbreak

DUBLIN, Jan. 29.—Ireland's spreading famine already of serious proportions in Galway, Dongal, Connemara and Kerry counties, was aggravated today by a threatened outbreak of fever in the afflicted regions.

Dublin authorities are providing 15,000 children with one meal a day. The Bank of Ireland has contributed $10,000 towards relief and other organizations are raising funds for the sufferers.

FIRST SESSION COMES TO CLOSE

Upper House Succeeds in Blocking Governor's Appointments.

The initial session of the 1925 legislature came to its end with the customary formal resolutions and committees to wait on the governor and the houses of the legislature shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Introduction of long lists of bills occupied virtually all of the time today in the house of delegates and much of that spent by the senate and in the end a total for the session of 1,098 introduced in two houses was reached, of this number 679 being in the hands of the clerk of the house of delegates and 399 in the senate. A large proportion of the bills were "local" measures affecting charters, levies and bond issues of municipalities and districts or counties, and many of the others were "skeleton" or "dummy" bills introduced to make possible legislation that might be desired on various subjects.

Combination of 14 Democrats and two Republicans in the senate blocked action by the body on confirmation of a series of appointments submitted by Governor Morgan and affecting about a score of positions. The names submitted were not made public, in accordance with the practice of the senate. Senator R. L. Hogg, of Mason county, offered a motion that the senate go into executive session, but after a conference of the Democratic members they joined with Senators Hugus and Hardman from the Republican side in voting against the motion. Several of the senators explained their votes, among them Senator Hugus, who declared he had no personal opposition to any man named on the list, but believed an incoming governor should have the power to name the men who would share the responsibilities of the administration.

ABANDONED BOOZE CAR IS CAPTURED

An auto, evidently being used to transport liquor from Pennsylvania into Ohio, was captured by Brooke county authorities on the Washington pike yesterday afternoon. The driver escaped.

A search resulted in the discovery of 100 gallons of whisky, hidden in the rear compartment of the car. It was stored in 15 five-gallon and 20 one-gallon cans, all packed tightly underenath a seat.

The auto was apparently broken down, as it had been abandoned by the driver. Footprints of the alleged liquor runner were traced in the snow but were lost at a point where the man is believed to have boarded a vehicle.

Authorities confiscated the auto and its contents and have started an investigation to learn the identity of the owner. Ohio and Pennsylvania licenses were found in the car.

BURGETTSTOWN SCHOOLS CLOSED

Owing to a new outbreak of scarlet fever this week at Burgettstown, the public schools of that place have been closed by order of the district school board.

First cases of the disease appeared around Christmas when Principal R. Knarr and his son, the latter captain of the football team, were stricken with the malady.

PROBATE COURT RECORDS CITED

Figures for Past Year Made Public by Judge Riddle.

Thirty-nine persons from Columbiana county were committed to state institutions because of their mental condition in 1924, according to the records of the office of Probate Judge Lodge Riddle.

In 1923 the record of commitments stood at 57.

Last year there were 18 males and 8 females committed to the Massillon state hospital, and two males and one female were sent to the Gallipolis institution.

The record shows that in 1923 23 males and 28 females were committed to Massillon, and two males and four females were sent to Gallipolis. The record shows that no colored people were committed to either of these state hospitals during 1923 or 1924.

During 1924 this court sent four children to the state reform schools, one girl between the age of 12 and 13, another between the age of 14 and 15 and another between the age of 15 and 16 years. These girls were sent to the State Industrial school.

Only one boy was sent to the Boys' industrial school last year by this court, and he was between the age of 14 and 15 years.

The record for 1923 shows one girl between the age of 14 and 15 and three between the age of 15 and 16 years sent to the Girls' Industrial school and two boys between the age of 10 and 11; three boys between the age of 14 and 15 and two between the age of 15 and 16 were sent to the Boys' Industrial school.

A comparison of these records shows that the number of persons requiring treatment in state hospitals during 1924 showed a decided decrease from the record of 1923 and also the number of boys and girls who were sent to state industrial schools.

It is the opinion of the court in handling juvenile cases that misguided ones should be given that "one more opportunity" before more severe measures are adopted, and of the large number of cases of this class that the court has handled the established rule has worked to the good of many children.

Hand Book for Cow Testers Prepared by Agricultural Bureau

The county farm bureau has been informed that a hand book for cow testers has been prepared by the United States department of agriculture which is of considerable value to those men engaged in the work of testing cows for production in cow testing associations. It has been declared that many men engaged in this line of work are not especially trained but by following the suggestions of the handbook and the standard methods advised, they will make their records much more valuable to the dairymen and also more useful in the various studies of the department based on such records.

The handbook not only informs the tester just how to do his work in the most valuable way, but also informs the owner of the herd just what he can expect from the tester.

The handbook is called Miscellaneous Circular No. 26, and can be had free from the United States department of agriculture at Washington upon request.

Two Handed Fines.

Mrs. Baraschiva Balan and her son, Charles Balan, and Sam Hoza, of Salem, indicted by the grand jury for resisting an officer in the performance of his duty, went before Judge James G. Moore and changed their plea from that of not guilty to that of guilty. The woman and Hoza were fined $10 and costs and young Balan was taken before the juvenile court, where he also was fined $10 and costs.

Tuberculosis Clinic Will Be Held Here In Next Few Weeks

A tuberculosis clinic with thorough physical examination of persons believed to have incipient cases of the disease will be conducted in Lisbon in the next few weeks as part of the state and district health program, as announced by Rr. T. T. Church district and county health commissioner following receipt from the state department of health of an offer to install such service here. This service will be without expense to those examined.

The health commissioner has suggested February 10 and 11 as the most convenient time for holding the clinic, which will extend over two days. Two recognized chest specialists will conduct the examinations, assisted by a nurse from the state department of health.

The local clinic will be the sixty-fifth of a series to be conducted in various parts of the state during the next year under joint auspices of the state department of health, local health authorities, the Ohio State Medical association and various voluntary health organizations.

This clinic will take care of all such patients residing in all northern townships.

It is also proposed to have a similar clinic in East Liverpool, probably early in March, and arrangements for this affair are now being made. This clinic will take care of patients in Franklin, Washington, Yellow Creek, Wayne, Madison, St. Clair and Liverpool townships, including Wellsville and East Liverpool.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause — Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the REAL cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

PROBATE COURT RECORDS CITED

Figures for Past Year Made Public by Judge Riddle.

Thirty-nine persons from Columiana county were committed to state nstitutions because of their mental ondition in 1924, according to the ecords of the office of Probate Judge odge Riddle.

In 1923 the record of commitments tood at 57.

Last year there were 18 males and 8 females committed to the Massillon tate hospital, and two males and one emale were sent to the Gallipolis ititution.

The record shows that in 1923 28 ales and 28 females were committed Massillon, and two males and four emales were sent to Gallipolis. The ecord shows that no colored people ere committed to either of these tate hospitals during 1923 or 1924.

During 1924 this court sent four hildren to the state reform schools. ne girl between the age of 12 and 13, nother between the age of 14 and 15 nd another between the age of 15 nd 16 years. These girls were sent o the State Industrial school.

Only one boy was sent to the Boys' ndustrial school last year by this ourt, and he was between the age of 4 and 15 years.

The record for 1923 shows one girl etween the age of 14 and 15 and hree between the age of 15 and 16 ears sent to the Girls' Industrial chool and two boys between the age f 10 and 11; three boys between the ge of 14 and 15 and two between the ge of 15 and 16 were sent to the oys' Industrial school.

A comparison of these records hows that the number of persons reuiring treatment in state hospitals uring 1924 showed a decided decrease from the record of 1923 and lso the number of boys and girls ho were sent to state industrial chools.

It is the opinion of the court in andling juvenile cases that misguided nes should be given that "one more pportunity" before more severe meaures are adopted, and of the large umber of cases of this class that the ourt has handled the established rule as worked to the good of many chilren.

Get at the Real Cause — Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the REAL cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

A Risk.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: About four months ago I met a young man and it was love at first sight. We were introduced at a dance. He had another girl with him and I had gone with another fellow and so he could not take me home, but he asked to call the next night. Since then he has come or taken me somewhere every night I would let him. I am a stenographer and he is selling life insurance. He would like to get married right away but can't afford it as he has not saved anything and is barely making enough for us to live on. Last night he asked me if I would be willing to get married and go on working for a while. I told him I would think it over. I am the kind of girl who would be perfectly willing to work for a man who wanted to support me, but I don't feel quite ready to marry and keep on working when the man asks it of me. Am I selfish in feeling this way? Please advise me what to do. I am 23 years of age.

POLLY N.

It is only natural that you should feel as you do, and not selfish. Tell the man you cannot consent to such a thing and that you want him to be in a position to provide a home for you and to support you after marriage. The risk of marrying as he suggests would be too great. If you and he had children you would no longer be able to work, or else you would have to do so at the expense of the little ones.

Her Heart Is Lost.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a high school girl. Early last fall I met a young man with whom I fell in love. I did not know whether he cared for me but he asked me to go several places with him. He seemed pleased with my company and then suddenly he quit asking me to go places with him and began acting very distant. He still treats me as a friend but that is all. I still care for him and care more every time I see him. He does not go with other girls. Please tell me how to win back my heart.

BLUE EYES.

To try to win back the young man would only be wasted effort. If you want happiness, forget him as quickly as possible. As long as you cling so fondly to your memory of him you will not enjoy the happy things which come to you day by day.

Father's Fault.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married man and at preesnt not living with my wife and baby and I miss them ever so much and she refuses to live with me but wants money and I will not give her any till she comes back to me. She has some one else so she tells me and wants to stay with her mother all the time and I can't get along with her mother. I am willing to do anything for them but I will never do what is right as long as I am craven for my baby. I have a wonderful job with big pay but I just throw my money away so please tell me how I can get them back as I need them bad to straighten me out.

LONSEOME FATHER AND HUSBAND.

Inasmuch as you are denied the privilege of determining what all the rules of the game shall be, you refuse to play. Your letter indicates childish self-indulgence and no woman is proud of a childish husband. Exhibit some self respect and you will find your troubles vanishing. To begin with it would be a good idea to save some of your money. You doubtless will need it for your child to whom you say you are devoted.

PIMPLES DRIED RIGHT UP WITH SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin on face, neck, arms or body is overcome quickest by applying Metho-Sulphur. The pimples seem to dry right up and go away, declares a noted skin specialist.

Nothing has ever been found to take the place of sulphur as a pimple remover. It is harmless and inexpensive. Just ask any druggist for a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur and use it like cold cream.

Rheumatism

A Remarkable Home Treatment Given by One Who Had It.

In the year of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Sub-Acute Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who are thus afflicted know for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, but such relief as I obtained was only temporary. Finally, I found a treatment that cured me completely and such a pitiful condition has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, even bedridden, some of them seventy to eighty years old, and the results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of muscular and sub-acute (swelling at the joints) rheumatism, to try the great value of my improved "Home Treatment" for its remarkable healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address, and I will send it free to try. After you have used it, and it has proven itself to be that long-looked for means of getting rid of such forms of rheumatism, you may send the price of it, One Dollar, but understand I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer, when relief is thus offered you free. Don't delay. Write today.

The cross-word puzzle diagram is merely a means of concealing words which are synonymous to those listed and which will interlock perfectly and so read equally well crosswise or downwards. Always look for the number of the synonym on the diagram. If horizontal, you must find a word to fit between that number and the first shaded stop to the right; if vertical, you must fit your word between the number and the first shaded stop below.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

BY MRS. ELIZABETH A. THOMPSON

A Risk.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: About four months ago I met a young man and it was love at first sight. We were introduced at a dance. He had another girl with him and I had gone with another fellow and so he could not take me home, but he asked to call the next night. Since then he has come or taken me somewhere every night I would let him. I am a stenographer and he is selling life insurance. He would like to get married right away but can't afford it as he has not saved anything and is barely making enough for us to live on. Last night he asked me if I would be willing to get married and go on working for a while. I told him I would think it over. I am the kind of girl who would be perfectly willing to work for a man who wanted to support me, but I don't feel quite ready to marry and keep on working when the man asks it of me. Am I selfish in feeling this way? Please advise me what to do. I am 23 years of age.

POLLY N.

It is only natural that you should feel as you do, and not selfish. Tell the man you cannot consent to such a thing and that you want him to be in a position to provide a home for you and to support you after marriage. The risk of marrying as he suggests would be too great. If you and he had children you would no longer be able to work, or else you would have to do so at the expense of the little ones.

Her Heart Is Lost.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a high school girl. Early last fall I met a young man with whom I fell in love. I did not know whether he cared for me but he asked me to go several places with him. He seemed pleased with my company and then suddenly he quit asking me to go places with him and began acting very distant. He still treats me as a friend but that is all. I still care for him and care more every time I see him. He does not go with other girls. Please tell me how to win back my heart.

BLUE EYES.

To try to win back the young man would only be wasted effort. If you want happiness, forget him as quickly as possible. As long as you cling so fondly to your memory of him you will not enjoy the happy things which come to you day by day.

Father's Fault.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married man and at present not living with my wife and baby and I miss them ever so much and she refuses to live with me but wants money and I will not give her any till she comes back to me. She has some one else so she tells me and wants to stay with her mother all the time and I can't get along with her mother. I am willing to do anything for them but I will never do what is right as long as I am craven for my baby. I have a wonderful job with big pay but I just throw my money away so please tell me how I can get them back as I need them bad to straighten me out.

LONSEOME FATHER AND HUSBAND.

Inasmuch as you are denied the privilege of determining what all the rules of the game shall be, you refuse to play. Your letter indicates childish self-indulgence and no woman is proud of a childish husband. Exhibit some self respect and you will find your troubles vanishing. To begin with it would be a good idea to save some of your money. You doubtless will need it for your child to whom you say you are devoted.

PIMPLES DRIED RIGHT UP WITH SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin on face, neck, arms or body is overcome quickest by applying Metho-Sulphur. The pimples seem to dry right up and go away, declares a noted skin specialist.

Nothing has ever been found to take the place of sulphur as a pimple remover. It is harmless and inexpensive. Just ask any druggist for a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur and use it like cold cream.

Rheumatism

A Remarkable Home Treatment Given by One Who Had It.

In the year of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Sub-Acute Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who are thus afflicted know for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, but such relief as I obtained was only temporary. Finally, I found a treatment that cured me completely and such a pitiful condition has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, even bedridden, some of them seventy to eighty years old, and the results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of muscular and sub-acute (swelling at the joints) rheumatism, to try the great value of my improved "Home Treatment" for its remarkable healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address, and I will send it free to try. After you have used it, and it has proven itself to be that long-looked for means of getting rid of such forms of rheumatism, you may send the price of it, One Dollar, but understand I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer, when relief is thus offered you free. Don't delay. Write today.

THE DOUBLE HOUSE

By Elizabeth Dejeans

He led her up the galleried stairway which looked down into the patio strung with soft lights, and Karesia heard the light splash of water and glimpsed depths beneath arches curtained with vines; the commingled sweetness of tropical flowers reached her. A door on the gallery stood open and Rossiter took her hand and led her into a little vestibule. To the right was a suite of rooms, richly furnished; in spite of their spaciousness, there was the atmosphere of an actor's dressing room about the place, dozens of photographs and a wide dressing table with mirrors arranged to afford every possible view of face and body, and a luxurious couch in the center of the room; beyond were a bedroom and bath, both luxurious.

"My rooms," Rossiter said, "but that isn't what I want you to see."

He turned to the right and opened a door, touched an electric button and a suite of rooms sprang out of darkness, a vista of rose-colored lights. Lotus-pink and pale green and cream-white; decorations, furniture, hangings, rugs, even the exquisite articles on the dressing tables were of the three colors; the cream satin hangings of the wide bed and its satin cover were embroidered with lotus flowers, broad green leaves and entwined stemps; and the bathroom was of cream-colored marble mosaicked with rose-pink and green.

"How very beautiful!" Karesia said in a hushed, still way. All day she had sat in the presence of tragedy, seeing a face that never weakened, never smiled; ever present in her mind the saw-toothed, water-washed cavern that had given up its dead. Here were softness and ease and dalliance.

"Your rooms, Kara," Rossiter said a little unsteadily. "I didn't want you to see my house until they were finished."

Karesia said nothing; she did not flush, her eyes were wide and dark. Rossiter did not expect her to exclaim; the moment he had seen her he knew that she had come with her decision made. He had a vivid remembrance of how she had looked when he had taken her into the minister's little parlor in San Francisco, emotionally tense, camillia-white, as she looked now. A fear had lurked in his heart then, there was a fear tugging at him now. He knew, from the way she looked, that she was prepared to give herself; back at that time he had had a confession to make, and he had a confession to make now; he was exultant and at the same time fearful.

He was pale and his eyes very bright. "You will—stay—after they are gone?" he asked huskily.

"Yes," she answered in the same even way.

Rossiter put his arms about her, held her close. She turned her face against his breast, stood perfectly quiet. "You will forgive me, Kara?" He was hot and quivering.

"It is I—who will beg to be forgiven," she answered very low.

He laughed a little in his excitement, pressed his lips to her shoulder. "Come down soon!" he said and left her.

Karesia went to the window and looked across the canyon. Scattered lights were below her, to her right an immense expanse of lights reaching to the canopy of stars that touched a glowing line of horizon. She looked across the canyon only, at a light nearest the opposite slope of hillside, her house. Then she drew down the shade and plunged the room into darkness. She heard voices below and went down.

XXXI

It was a dinner of twenty-four. Karesia stood near Rossiter as the guests came in, looking very much the mistress of Rossiter Hill. Handsome Rossiter's devotion to Sonya Karesia was the latest gossip of Hollywood, and there was a double interest in the appraising eyes of his guests.

They were people whom Karesia and the public knew well by name; Rossiter had chosen as his guests on this occasion the people in whom he thought Karesia would be particularly interested; several authors whom interest in the motion picturization of their novels had brought to Los Angeles, two of them authors who were screen writers as well as novelists; several playwrights who now gave all their time to screen work, and several actors and actresses who had been contemporaries of Rossiter during his stage days and who were now appearing in pictures, producing their own pictures, some of them. There was the tall, broad-shouldered actor, an Englishman, a matinee idol of a decade ago and now a screen favorite. And there were Nadine Navarre, and also the many-gifted woman, the Carmen of opera and screen.

Karesia had not expected Nadine Navarre to be one of Rossiter's guests. She came with Clarice. They were the last to arrive, and it was evident that Nadine Navarre had taken John Dascome's daughter under her wing. She was cordially greeted as she made her way through the group around Rossiter and Karesia, and she paused to introduce Clarice to all who greeted her. "I present Spring to you—is she not?" she said with her piquant accent, and Clarice raised grave wide eyes to the admiring looks bent on her.

She looked Spring at its loveliest; her little gown was of gauzy silver with touches of jade, a jade girdle interlinked with silver, and at her breast a single blush rose. Her exquisite face was as perfect in its beauty as the rose at her breast. Nadine Navarre was an artist and she had evolved this costume.

"What a lively child," the man who was standing by Karesia exclaimed. "Who is she?"

"Clarice Dascome," Karesia answered. "I think she is the most beautiful girl I have ever seen."

Sarah Whitsey, the little gray-haired, bright-eyed author, had heard and turned swiftly. Judge Whitsey's wife was seven years older than she was on the night when she had given her husband her theory of the Dascome mystery, but none the less clever and vivacious. Karesia noticed the startled and vividly interested way in which she looked at Clarice, and made the connection: she had heard Rossiter ask Mrs. Whitsey, "How is the judge?" This then was the wife of Judge Joseph Whitsey before whom Dascome had been tried.

"John Dascome's daughter?" Mrs. Whitsey asked quickly. "Is she here—alone?"

"No, with her father. They are living here," Karesia answered.

By Elizabeth Dejeans

He led her up the galleried stairway which looked down into the patio strung with soft lights, and Karesia heard the light splash of water and glimpsed depths beneath arches curtained with vines; the commingled sweetness of tropical flowers reached her. A door on the gallery stood open and Rossiter took her hand and led her into a little vestibule. To the right was a suite of rooms, richly furnished; in spite of their spaciousness, there was the atmosphere of an actor's dressing room about the place, dozens of photographs and a wide dressing table with mirrors arranged to afford every possible view of face and body, and a luxurious couch in the center of the room; beyond were a bedroom and bath, both luxurious.

"My rooms," Rossiter said, "but that isn't what I want you to see."

He turned to the right and opened a door, touched an electric button and a suite of rooms sprang out of darkness, a vista of rose-colored lights. Lotus-pink and pale green and cream-white; decorations, furniture, hangings, rugs, even the exquisite articles on the dressing tables were of the three colors; the cream satin hangings of the wide bed and its satin cover were embroidered with lotus flowers, broad green leaves and entwined stemps; and the bathroom was of cream-colored marble mosaicked with rose-pink and green.

"How very beautiful!" Karesia said in a hushed, still way. All day she had sat in the presence of tragedy, seeing a face that never weakened, never smiled; ever present in her mind the saw-toothed, water-washed cavern that had given up its dead. Here were softness and ease and dalliance.

"Your rooms, Kara," Rossiter said a little unsteadily. "I didn't want you to see my house until they were finished."

Karesia said nothing; she did not flush, her eyes were wide and dark. Rossiter did not expect her to exclaim; the moment he had seen her he knew that she had come with her decision made. He had a vivid remembrance of how she had looked when he had taken her into the minister's little parlor in San Francisco, emotionally tense, camillia-white, as she looked now. A fear had lurked in his heart then, there was a fear tugging at him now. He knew, from the way she looked, that she was prepared to give herself; back at that time he had had a confession to make, and he had a confession to make now; he was exultant and at the same time fearful.

He was pale and his eyes very bright. "You will—stay—after they are gone?" he asked huskily.

"Yes," she answered in the same even way.

Rossiter put his arms about her, held her close. She turned her face against his breast, stood perfectly quiet. "You will forgive me, Kara?" He was hot and quivering.

"It is I—who will beg to be forgiven," she answered very low.

He laughed a little in his excitement, pressed his lips to her shoulder. "Come down soon!" he said and left her.

Karesia went to the window and looked across the canyon. Scattered lights were below her, to her right an immense expanse of lights reaching to the canopy of stars that touched a glowing line of horizon. She looked across the canyon only, at a light nearest the opposite slope of hillside, her house. Then she drew down the shade and plunged the room into darkness. She heard voices below and went down.

XXXI

It was a dinner of twenty-four. Karesia stood near Rossiter as the guests came in, looking very much the mistress of Rossiter Hill. Randsome Rossiter's devotion to Sonya Karesia was the latest gossip of Hollywood, and there was a double interest in the appraising eyes of his guests.

They were people whom Karesia and the public knew well by name; Rossiter had chosen as his guests on this occasion the people in whom he thought Karesia would be particularly interested; several authors whom interest in the motion picturization of their novels had brought to Los Angeles, two of them authors who were screen writers as well as novelists; several playwrights who now gave all their time to screen work, and several actors and actresses who had been contemporaries of Rossiter during his stage days and who were now appearing in pictures, producing their own pictures, some of them. There was the tall, broad-shouldered actor, an Englishman, a matinee idol of a decade ago and now a screen favorite. And there were Nadine Navarre, and also the many-gifted woman, the Carmen of opera and screen.

Karesia had not expected Nadine Navarre to be one of Rossiter's guests. She came with Clarice. They were the last to arrive, and it was evident that Nadine Navarre had taken John Dascome's daughter under her wing. She was cordially greeted as she made her way through the group around Rossiter and Karesia, and she paused to introduce Clarice to all who greeted her. "I present Spring to you—is she not?" she said with her piquant accent, and Clarice raised grave wide eyes to the admiring looks bent on her.

She looked Spring at its loveliest; her little gown was of gauzy silver with touches of jade, a jade girdle interlinked with silver, and at her breast a single blush rose. Her exquisite face was as perfect in its beauty as the rose at her breast. Nadine Navarre was an artist and she had evolved this costume.

"What a lively child," the man who was standing by Karesia exclaimed. "Who is she?"

"Clarice Dascome," Karesia answered. "I think she is the most beautiful girl I have ever seen."

Sarah Whitsey, the little gray-haired, bright-eyed author, had heard and turned swiftly. Judge Whitsey's wife was seven years older than she was on the night when she had given her husband her theory of the Dascome mystery, but none the less clever and vivacious. Karesia noticed the startled and vividly interested way in which she looked at Clarice, and made the connection: she had heard Rossiter ask Mrs. Whitsey, "How is the judge?" This then was the wife of Judge Joseph Whitsey before whom Dascome had been tried.

"John Dascome's daughter?" Mrs. Whitsey asked quickly. "Is she here—alone?"

Universal Adoption Of Mixed Farming Urged in Canada

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. — Universal adoption of mixed farming will insure continued prosperity for western Canada, according to Hon. John Bracken, "Farmer Premier" of Manitoba, in an address here.

"Increasing development of dairying and live stock raising throughout the prairie provinces," said Mr. Bracken, "is placing agriculture on a sounder basis. Grain growing will continue to be the main industry of western Canada and will continue to create an immense amount of wealth. But diversified farming will bring about an agricultural development in the next ten years even greater than the grain growing has in the last two decades."

You just KNOW he's well

You just know he's NOT well

There is no reason for you to look or feel this way.

CONSTIPATION means WEAKNESS

Constipation is practically universal among civilized human beings. It is a national curse causing inefficiency and physical unpreparedness. It causes disease, premature old age, lessens endurance and resistance, and many times fatal illness is directly traceable to its obnoxious results. The clear eye, healthy look, vim, vigor and vitality can be had only when the bowels are free and are moving regularly.

Dr. Caldwell's

SYRUP PEPSIN

The Family Laxative

—promptly relieves constipation. It is not a bitter medicine nor a griping, nauseating, uncomfortable physic. It is a pleasing liquid combination of Egyptian senna, pepsin and aromatics that Dr. Caldwell, with his long and extensive practice, found effective and an aid to Nature in performing her proper functions when the bowels were mistreated through improper food, lack of exercise, and indifference to physical sanitation.

Gently Restores The Bowels To Health

The first dose will gently ease the bowels to action and as Nature resumes her proper functions, the dose may be gradually decreased. Your bowels should act at least twice daily. If they do not, you need Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. 10,000,000 bottles sold annually prove its effectiveness. Used nationally for over 30 years.

It is sold everywhere medicine is sold—and guaranteed. Try it at our risk. Your druggist will return your money if it fails to do as promised.

YOUR HEALTH

Baldness May Be a Sign of Weak Heart or Tight Hat

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

RECENTLY a correspondent wrote me:

"In a discussion the other night, it was my contention that unclean hats, that is, those with sweat bands, full of perspiration and oil from the hair, were in the main, contributing factors to baldness. On the other side of the argument it was contended that baldness is hereditary."

Both these men are right and both of them are wrong. I must explain this paradoxical statement.

There can be no doubt that unclean sweat bands in hats may become culture beds for the growth of the germs of disease. Perhaps the germs of some skin disease might develop so extensively in a foul sweat band as to lead to infection of the scalp. The development of disease in the scalp might be followed by baldness or loss of hair in patches. But such a case would be exceptional.

The other man argued that baldness is hereditary. It cannot be denied that President Adams was bald and his descendants were bald. There are many notable examples of baldness through several generations of the same family. This is likely to be founded on family structural similarity. As a man's nose is like his father's, so are the blood vessels.

The scalp is nourished from blood vessels running up the sides and front of the face and the back of the neck. The further removed the blood vessels are from the heart the smaller they are. Any blood vessel to find a scale place in the scalp would have to be small because the space between the skull and the outer skin is very thin. For these reasons the amount of blood which can be forced to the crown of the head is limited in quantity.

There can be no growth of hair without free blood supply. The hair is just as dependent on the blood as the growth of plants is upon moisture. Unless the roots of the hair are freely irrigated there can be no growth of the hair and if for any reason the blood supply is seriously interfered with the hair may die from lack of nourishment.

Whenever I see a bald-headed man I know he has a weak heart. I do not mean by this that he has a diseased heart. But I do mean that his heart is not a powerful pump, forcing the blood in untailing stream to the farthest extremities of the body.

Let the man with the weak heart wear a hat a trifle too small for him and so pulled down upon his head that the sweatband presses upon the tiny blood vessels cutting off the circulation of the blood and you have the conditions necessary for the loss of hair.

The sweatband is really a matter of importance. Not alone should it be clean to avoid infecting the scalp, but the sweatband should be elastic and large enough so that the blood vessels of the scalp are not pressed upon.

Vigorous health, sufficient exercise to keep the circulation good and the choice of foods which contain sulphur and the other hair-building materials—through these will come a bodily condition which will defeat the efforts of Father Time to cut down the head of hair which should be the glory of the old man as well as of the youth.

Answers to Health Questions

MRS. C. R. Q.—What effect would a small amount of escaping gas have on the general health and how would its effects be noticeable? The gas in question escaping from a faulty gas stove or pipes.

A.—Such a condition would produce drowsiness, lack of concentration or anemia if endured for an indefinite time. It would also cause nausea later and possibly a cough, due to irritation.

ANXIOUS. Q.—I am a woman of 31 years—during the past 5 years I have grown 2 inches and am still increasing in height. I tire very easily and have a feeling of extreme weakness. Could this be the result of unusual growth? What would you advise?

A.—You should consult your doctor and have him suggest treatment under the circumstances. The tired, weak feeling is probably caused as you say by unusual growth.

W. H. Q.—Will you kindly advise what causes night sweats?

A.—This is usually an indication of weakness and is in some instances an early sign of more serious trouble. It would be wise to have a thorough examination so that the proper treatment may be prescribed and followed.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medical hygiene and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it cannot be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally if a self-addressed stamped envelope is enclosed. TODAY'S RECIPES

Escalloped Squash — Mash squash, season with salt, sugar, cream and butter, a dash of white pepper and pinch of ginger. Put in baking dish. Bake ten minutes, then place a few marshmallows on top and bake five minutes more.

WHAT SALADS TO SERVE

These suggestions are offered for the aid of the housewife in planning her menus for various occasions:

Formal Meal—Green salad with plain French dressing or a variation.

Informal Meal—Any salad with appropriate dressing.

Formal Luncheon — Green with French dressing; fruit with French mayonnaise or variation; or chicken, if no other meat is served.

Suppers—Meat, fish, shellfish, fruit or any ingredients with appropriate dressing.

Do not repeat the salad ingredients in another part of the meal. Serve on decorated china which harmonizes with the colors of the salad or glass plates.

Fruit—Prepare one package of raspberry gelatin, adding more lemon and sugar if needed. Pour gelatin in mold, then diced apples, sliced orange, sliced banana and halved green grapes. Then more gelatin. Walnuts can be added if desired.

Spaghetti—Cook one-half pound of spaghetti until tender in two quarts of boiling salt water, drain and blanch in cold water. Place two tablespoons of butter in skillet and cook a small onion and one green pepper and one cup of celery (do not brown). Lift these vegetables out and then fry one-half pound ground round steak until tender and brown, add one small can of tomato sauce and then add onion, pepper, celery and cooked spaghetti. Season with salt, pepper, dash of red pepper and tablespoon of grated cheese and heat thoroughly. Serve piping hot with grated cheese sprinkled on top.

SGGGESTIONS

If a chicken or beef is well rubbed with a cut lemon before being cooked it will make the meat tender and juicy.

You will find satisfaction in using kerosene to clean an enamel sink. Using gritty substances like powdered pumice removes the fine finish of enamel and as a consequence grease and dirt adhere and will increase pipe stoppage. Don't use kerosene lavishly and send it down the drain unnecessarily. Use a cloth.

Coffee stains on a cloth or on any material are most difficult to eradicate unless treated immediately. Boiling water will remove them if the fiber of the material has not had time thoroughly to absorb the coffee. But if the stain is of long standing, equal parts of yolk of egg and glycerine applied to the spot and allowed to dry on it offer practically the only method of removing them.

This suggestion solves the problem of cleaning the kitchen easily. Divide kitchen into six part, mentally, and do one part of the additional work every morning with the regular clearing up after washing the breakfast dishes. The result is a clean kitchen every day in the week, with only a few minutes of extra work.

ELYRIA—Fred Peters, 32, died as a result of burns received when coal oil, which he was using in an attempt to speed up a fire, exploded in his home at Fields Corners.

NIGHT COUGH QUICKLY RELIEVED.

This is the substance of a letter received from H. W. Webb, Quincy, Ill., "I coughed a great deal, especially at night. Read what Mr. Walter L. Main, the great show man, says about it: "Gentlemen—I have had stomach trouble for may years and spent much time and money with doctors, with no relief. A friend told me about Dr. Orth's Stomach Remedy, I was induced to try it and now am very glad I did, as I am now a well man—feeling good, I am glad to recommend it to all who suffer with stomach trouble. Walter L. Main. Geneva, Ohio, May 20th, 1921.

You can secure Dr. Orth's Stomach Remedy at any first-class drug store, with the distinct understanding that you can get your money back if it is not just as good as we say. Special note to out of town sufferers: 75 cents mailed to the Dr. Orth Laboratories, East Liverpool, Ohio, will bring a box by post and guaranteed.

DON'T GET UP NIGHTS

John Lumpkins, Dayton, Ohio, says: "Come to 7 Carrie St., and I will show you 25 pieces of gravel that passed after taking Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula). Had to get up 15 times at night for two years. Alright now." Lithiated Buchu cleanses the bladder like Epsom Salts do the bowels, thereby relieving irritation, driving out foreign matter and neutralizing excessive acids. These are the causes of unnatural action of the bladder at night. Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) is not a cheap medicine. The tablets cost 2 cents each. Sold at leading drug stores or Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Locally at J. D. Holloway. adv.

DON'T GET UP NIGHTS

John Lumpkins, Dayton, Ohio, says: "Come to 7 Carrie St., and I will show you 25 pieces of gravel that passed after taking Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula). Had to get up 15 times at night for two years. Alright now." Lithiated Buchu cleanses the bladder like Epsom Salts do the bowels, thereby relieving irritation, driving out foreign matter and neutralizing excessive acids. These are the causes of unnatural action of the bladder at night. Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) is not a cheap medicine. The tablets cost 2 cents each. Sold at leading drug stores or Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Locally at J. D. Holloway. adv.

ONE who signs 'M. S." asks an unusual question.

"Assuming that you knew you could beat the races pursuing legitimate methods in doing so, would you play the game?"

That is the question.

The answer, of course, is "yes."

Any other answer would be hypocrisy.

The writer is just as eager to acquire sudden wealth as the next man. But "M. S." should learn that there is NO method, legitimate or otherwise, of beating the races.

Ask any bookmaker. He will tell you.

It isn't a MORAL question with this writer, not playing the races.

It is wholly ECONOMIC.

There probably is no great sin involved in playing the races, if you can afford the money.

It is a sin if you play them when the loss of the money you are BOUND TO LOSE deprives you of the necessities and comforts to which your work entitles you, if it deprives your family of anything.

It is a sin in that the TIME you waste might be usefully employed. Many men can easily afford the money. No man can afford the TIME.

"M. S." perhaps thinks he has a system for beating the races. If systems of this kind were filed in some government office, like patents, there would be several million of them in the files. And not one of them is worth a nickel.

The horses don't run to systems, if they are permitted to run HONESTLY by their owners, trainers and jockeys. The hoses can't be made to understand systems.

And when they are forced to run DISHONESTLY it is generally for the purpose of beating systems.

Men have committed suicide following systems to their logical conclusion, which almost invariably is FAILURE.

You can't beat 'em!

Let "M. S." walk up to any old bookmaker, and say, "I've got a million dollars, plenty of time, and

Score is Deadlocked Several Times During Battle Which Proves Biggest Event of Season in Sunday School Circuit.

Sunday school basketball league honors for the first half of the present season last night were unanimously awarded the First Methodist Protestant passers following their hard-earned, one point victory over the Lutherans, their nearest rivals. The final score in the M. P.-Lutheran championship clash, staged on the high school gym court before a record breaking crowd, was 21 to 20.

The game resembled in every way that of high school teams as throngs cheered on their favorites. The clash was somewhat rough and neither team had much of anything on the other.

The champions won the game from the foul line, for the Lutherans outscored them from the field. The West Third streeters tossed the ball through the hoops for nine field goals while the best the M. P. cagers could do was five goals.

The Lutherans can blame their defeat to their inability to count from the foul line for out of 16 chances they were successful only twice while the M. P.'s scored 11 times in 22 tries.

The Lutherans got under way with a crushing attack that saw G. Woessner score the first field goal of the game. Wilson scored from the foul line for the M. P.'s. Davis hit the hoop from near the center of the floor giving the Lutherans a three-point lead. Mackey tallied on a free throw for the Protestants. The quarter ended with the Lutherans ahead, 4 to 2.

Mackey's pretty field goal from the center of the floor tied up the score for the Protestants in the second period. Davis broke the tie with a foul for the Lutherans. The lead changed hands again when Wilson scored from the field for the M. P.'s.

G. Woessner brought it back again to th Lutherans when he found the basket for another two-pointer. Thus the lead see-sawed back and forth between the battling contenders. The M. P.'s forged ahead with Todd's two-pointer, and Mackey made good from the foul line, giving the Protestants a 9 to 7 margin at the end of the half.

The Lutherans again savagely tore into the ranks of the foe at the outset of the third period. Davis, Schneidmiller and G. Woessner registered successive field goals and the Lutherans took a four-point lead. Both teams made good from the free line. Wilson made a foul line tally and Todd came through with a field goal which knotted the count for the Protestants. Todd's field goal gave the M. P. cagers the lead at the end of the third period with the score standing 15 to 14.

The Lutherans went into the lead when G. Woessner and Davis scored from the field, the baskets putting them three points ahead. Mackey's foul and Wilson's field goal tied it up. Then Mackey hooped the ball three times straight from the foul line. With a minute to go, Kibble for the Lutherans hit the bull's eye from back of center, and his team still had a chance to win. But the scoring was over after that shot and the M. P.'s left the floor with coveted honors.

To name the individual star of the game would be difficult as every player on both teams was doing his level best and then some, from start to finish. Mackey and Wilson were scoring stars for the winners while G. Woessner and Davis performed in a similar capacity for the losers.

The opening game of the evening, in which Park Boulevards defeated the First Presbyterians, 51 to 15, proved a fitting preliminary to the title scrap, although the Presbyterians were no match for the Boulevard lads. Barnes, the Kirkhams and McBee did most of the scoring for the Parks while Allison, Todd and Householder were the chief performers for the Presbyterians.

Lineups and summaries:

Park Boulevards		First Presby.
Barnes	F	Allison
F. Kirkham	F	George
O. Kirkham	C	McShane
Hall	G	Householder
McKee	G	Todd

Substitutions — Craven for Hall, Crawford for McKee.

Field goals—O. Kirkham 7, F. Kirkham 7, Barnes 6, McKee 6, Craven, Allison 3, Householder.

Referee, McConville; timer, Price; scorer, Brown.

First M. P.		Lutherans
Mackey	F	G. Woessner
Wilson	F	R. Woessner
Todd	C	Schneidmiller
Weikart	G	Kibble
Carey	G	Davis

Substitutions — Dawson for Davis, Anthony for R. Woessner.

Foul goals—Mack 6, Wilson 3, Todd, Carey, Davis 2.

Referee, McConville; timer, Price; scorer, Brown.

Last Night's Fights

O'Connell Will Not Go East Unless He's Promised Immunity

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29—Jimmy O'Connell, the giant outfielder, intends to spend many months in California's golden sunshine, his attorney, Joseph McInery, announced here today.

"Jimmy O'Connell has been refused the immunity he demanded by the New York district attorney and therefore will not go East to testify in the probe of the alleged attempt to bribe Heinie Sand, Phillie's infielder," said McInerny.

"Get Cozy Dolan to talk and then you can get all the higherups and all the boys in this affair.

"We don't blame Judge Landis. He did all he could in this investigation and was without authority to go further but the district attorney can go further and make a real investigation.

"However, O'Connell has no intention of testifying unless a genuine investigation is assured and unless he is promised immunity."

McInerny said in response to a question, that O'Connell has nothing to tell. He said, if the outfielder went to New York he would relate the same story he did in his "confession."

Thirty Thousand is Gibbons' Price for Battle With Feunte

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 29.—Thirty thousand dollars or a privilege of 40 per cent of the gate receipts. That is what Tommy Gibbons, runner up for the heavyweight crown of Jack Dempsey, is reported to want for a match here on February 21 with Tony Fuente. This figure, it was said today, was quoted by Eddie Kane, Gibbons' manager, to Dick Donald, who replied he would guarantee $20,000 with an alternate privilege of 35 per cent of the gate receipts.

Donald plans to stage the bout in Washington Park here on the evening before Washington's birthday. On the same card it is planned to have Sammy Mandell meet Phil Salvadore and Kane is said to want a $7,500 guarantee for Mandell's appearance.

Fuente, with his manager, Fred Winsor, and Fred Fulton and his manager are scheduled to go on trial here today for conspiracy to violate the California boxing laws as the result of a fight staged here some time ago in which Fuente disposed of Fulton via the K. O. route in unusual short order.

Training Camp Will Be Discontinued by Bison Grid Leaders

BETHANY, W. Va., Jan. 29.—Athletic Director Elder of Bethany college has announced that in all probability there will be no training camp at the Bison school next year before the opening of the regular college session.

The fact that the opening game of the season will not be played until October 3 is the reason for discontinuing the two weeks of training camp before the opening of school.

A training camp has been maintained at Bethany for several years but mainly because the grid season opened early and it was necessary to give the men the extra two weeks' drill and training.

When gas heaters are connected with flues, to carry off the poisonous products of combustion, they become a source of comfort rather than a source of danger.

Potters Take Lead In First Half and Win From Irondale

The Potters piled up a commanding lead in the first half of the game. The score was 19 to 7 when play was resumed in the second half. In the third period Irondale put on a rally but was unable to overcome the points that the Potters had amassed at the outset of the battle.

Myers, Brookes and Hogue were the stars for the Irondale passers. Zuck was high point maker with five field goals and two fouls. The classy guarding of Wallace and McGuinness was too much for the home lads. The lineup:

Potters		Irondale
Ward	F	Sperandi
Cooper	F	Davis
Zuck	C	Hogue
McGuinness	G	Close
Wallace	G	Brookes

Fouls—Zuck 2, Hogue, Davis.

Referee—H. Smith.

Two British Boxers To Make Appearance Tonight in New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Two British boxers, representing Tex O'Rourke's three-year quest of a representative English heavyweight at the behest of a London syndicate, will make their American debut tonight at the Manhattan A. C. They are Billy Prestago who will meet Arthur Smith, and Les Price, who will face smiling Bill Nolan.

Prestige is twenty years old, 6 feet and 2 inches in height and weight 192 pounds. He is an ex-foundryman from Rugby. Price, said to be wealthy in his own right, has taken up boling as a hobby. He is six feet, one inch in height and weighs 185 pounds. He comes from Bristol.

If it wasn't for the word "biliousness" we wouldn't know how to designate the results that follow over eating and lack of exercise.

Y Baseball Loop Ready For Action

Four Teams Entered for Play in Indoor League.

The Y. M. C. A. industrial baseball league was organized last night at a meeting in the "Y."

The league will get under way with four teams in action, including Laughlin 5, Laughlin 6, Potters and Smith-Phillips. Games will be played on the schedule formerly used by the volleyball league — Mondays and Wednesdays.

The first game on the Monday night dates will start at 8 and the second at 8:45. The Wednesday games will be of half-hour duration, the first game commencing at 7 and the second at 7:30, in order to permit the basketball circuit to run its games according to schedule.

Any player working at the shop represented by the team will be eligible to take part in the games.

Teams will hold separate meetings before the week-end to appoint their own managers.

D. E. McVey, of Laughlin 6, was named president and C. Moore, of Potters Co-operative, secretary of the circuit.

Mount Union Five Will Battle Hiram Passers Saturday

ALLIANCE, Jan. 29.—Mount Union college cage team treks down to Hiram Saturday, January 31, for a game with the Disciples. This will be Coach Detrick's first game abroad this season.

Since the Hiram five beat Reserve at Cleveland, and since their floor is smaller than Mount's men are used to, the game will be a hard one. The enemy's court squad is a veteran one, Hurd being their star player.

Mountites engage the Heidelberg five on the home floor next Tuesday, February 3.

Labor, Miller, and Bromby, are showing excellent form and make a powerful triumvirate as the backbone of the Purple attack.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—After watching Paavo Nurmi deposit his fifteen indoor record in the athletic morgue, while winning the Wanamaker mile and a half last night, Joe Loomis, national champion of another day and age, delivered himself of the opinion that the Finn has merely kidded the great American public to date. Loomis thinks that, not unlike John Paul Jones, Admiral Perry, or somebody who said he had just begun to fight, Paavo hasn't even begun to run.

The man who has made the records fall right and left in the path of his twingling toes has only given eighty percent of his best since coming to America, the ex-champion declared.

Nurmi, he says, can do a half mile in 1:49, the mile in 4 minutes, two miles in 9 minutes and so on at a corresponding speed up to ten miles.

"This talk of Nurmi's wonderful achievements is a joke," said Loomis, who has seen the great Finn in most of his races here. "Why, that man can take every one of the fifteen records he has made on our indoor tracks and break them over all against by as much as five seconds.

The public seems to be dazzled by his performances but it has missed the vital fact that the man has been under wraps in every race.

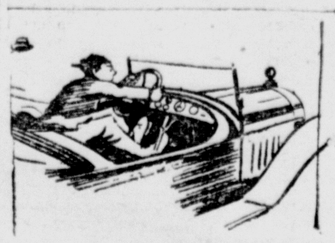

Loomis added that he didn't consided Nurmi a limelight seeker and that, therefore, no one would really see him run until a new and almost equally gifted contender is developed.

The present lot, he says, will not do at all; in fact, ought to be given handicaps, Joie Ray included, in order to make the business interesting.

"Six or seven years ago Ray would have made Nurmi step some and you would have seen records created that would make the present standards look sick," Loomis declared. "But Joie is not the runner he was, in spite of general opinion to the contrary. This idea, I think, has been fostered by the fact that Ray ran 4:14 for the mile against Nurmi. But it is a fallacy. Seven years ago Nurmi would have carried Ray along on at least two seconds faster than he can do now.

"As it is, Nurmi's competition is such that he plays around during a race. In the special three quarters on Tuesday night he did everything a runner shouldn't do and yet he won, pulled up, in record time. I am not criticising his tactics, however, because I think he knew perfectly well that he didn't have to resort to strategy.

"Nurmi has a million dollar pair of legs and they tell me he is very intelligent. That is an unbeatable combination. If he really makes up his mind to do, no record will safe, from Ted Meredith's half mile on up to ten miles."

Thirty Thousand is Gibbons' Price for Battle With Feunte

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 29.—Thirty thousand dollars or a privilege of 40 per cent of the gate receipts. That is what Tommy Gibbons, runner up for the heavyweight crown of Jack Dempsey, is reported to want for a match here on February 21 with Tony Fuente. This figure, it was said today, was quoted by Eddie Kane, Gibbons' manager, to Dick Donald, who replied he would guarantee $20,000 with an alternate privilege of 35 per cent of the gate receipts.

Donald plans to stage the bout in Washington Park here on the evening before Washington's birthday. On the same card it is planned to have Sammy Mandell meet Phil Salvadore and Kane is said to want a $7,500 guarantee for Mandell's appearance.

Fuente, with his manager, Fred Winsor, and Fred Fulton and his manager are scheduled to go on trial here today for conspiracy to violate the California boxing laws as the result of a fight staged here some time ago in which Fuente disposed of Fulton via the K. O. route in unusual short order.

Two British Boxers To Make Appearance Tonight in New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 29—Two British boxers, representing Tex O'Rourke's three-year quest of a representative English heavyweight at the behest of a London syndicate, will make their American debut tonight at the Manhattan A. C. They are Billy Prestago who will meet Arthur Smith, and Les Price, who will face smiling Bill Nolan.

Prestige is twenty years old, 6 feet and 2 inches in height and weight 192 pounds. He is an ex-foundryman from Rugby. Price, said to be wealthy in his own right, has taken up boling as a hobby. He is six feet, one inch in height and weighs 185 pounds. He comes from Bristol.

If it wasn't for the word "biliousness" we wouldn't know how to designate the results that follow over eating and lack of exercise.

Y Baseball Loop Ready For Action

Four Teams Entered for Play in Indoor League.

The Y. M. C. A. industrial baseball league was organized last night at a meeting in the "Y."

The league will get under way with four teams in action, including Laughlin 5, Laughlin 6, Potters and Smith-Phillips. Games will be played on the schedule formerly used by the volleyball league — Mondays and Wednesdays.

The first game on the Monday night dates will start at 8 and the second at 8:45. The Wednesday games will be of half-hour duration, the first game commencing at 7 and the second at 7:30, in order to permit the basketball circuit to run its games according to schedule.

Any player working at the shop represented by the team will be eligible to take part in the games.

Teams will hold separate meetings before the week-end to appoint their own managers.

D. E. McVey, of Laughlin 6, was named president and C. Moore, of Potters Co-operative, secretary of the circuit.

Mount Union Five Will Battle Hiram Passers Saturday

ALLIANCE, Jan. 29—Mount Union college cage team treks down to Hiram Saturday, January 31, for a game with the Disciples. This will be Coach Detrick's first game abroad this season.

Since the Hiram five beat Reserve at Cleveland, and since their floor is smaller than Mount's men are used to, the game will be a hard one. The enemy's court squad is a veteran one, Hurd being their star player.

Mountites engage the Heidelberg five on the home floor next Tuesday, February 3.

Labor, Miller, and Bromby, are showing excellent form and make a powerful triumvirate as the backbone of the Purple attack.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—After watching Paavo Nurmi deposit his fifteen indoor record in the athletic morgue, while winning the Wanamaker mile and a half last night, Joe Loomis, national champion of another day and age, delivered himself of the opinion that the Finn has merely kidded the great American public to date. Loomis thinks that, not unlike John Paul Jones, Admiral Perry, or somebody who said he had just begun to fight, Paavo hasn't even begun to run.

The man who has made the records fall right and left in the path of his twingling toes has only given eighty percent of his best since coming to America, the ex-champion declared.

Nurmi, he says, can do a half mile in 1:49, the mile in 4 minutes, two miles in 9 minutes and so on at a corresponding speed up to ten miles.

"This talk of Nurmi's wonderful achievements is a joke," said Loomis, who has seen the great Finn in most of his races here. "Why, that man can take every one of the fifteen records he has made on our indoor tracks and break them over all against by as much as five seconds.

The public seems to be dizzled by his performances but it has missed the vital fact that the man has been under wraps in every race.

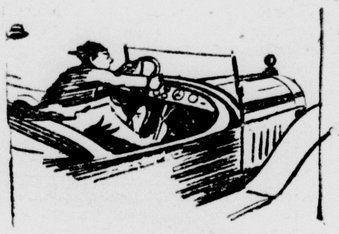

Loomis added that he didn't consided Nurmi a limelight seeker and that, therefore, no one would really see him run until a new and almost equally gifted contender is developed.

The present lot, he says, will not do at all; in fact, ought to be given handicaps, Joie Ray included, in order to make the business interesting.

"Six or seven years ago Ray would have made Nurmi step some and you would have seen records created that would make the present standards look sick," Loomis declared. "But Joie is not the runner he was, in spite of general opinion to the contrary. This idea, I think, has been fostered by the fact that Ray ran 4:14 for the mile against Nurmi. But it is a fallacy. Seven years ago Nurmi would have carried Ray along on at least two seconds faster than he can do now.

"As it is, Nurmi's competition is such that he plays around during a race. In the special three quarters on Tuesday night he did everything a runner shouldn't do and yet he won, pulled up, in record time. I am not criticising his tactics, however, because I think he knew perfectly well that he didn't have to resort to strategy.

"Nurmi has a million dollar pair of legs and they tell me he is very intelligent. That is an unbeatable combination. If he really makes up his mind to do, no record will safe, from Ted Meredith's half mile on up to ten miles."

Murrin May Break Into Mountaineer Lineup This Week

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 29.—There is a strong possibility that Clarence Murrin will break into the regular West Virginia university lineup while the Mountaineer basketball squad is on its annual between semester trip. In practice this week Coach Francis H. Stadsvold has been giving Murrin steady work at forward, and the former Parkersburg high athlete stands a good chance of getting into the Washington and Lee game at Charleston, W. Va., this Saturday and the battles with the University of Kentucky and Marietta college the first part of next week.

Murrin was not a member of the party that invaded western Pennsylvania on the first trip of the year and at that time is was thought that he had not been successful in his fight for a place on the varsity squad. He kept on fighting, and before notified that he would be able to carry nine players on this trip Coach Stadsvold started grooming Murrin for relief service. It was clear that he intended to have Murrin with the squad for the W. and L., Kentucky and Marietta engagements even if it had been necessary to leave one tof the men taken on the earlier jaunt at home.

Sunday School Loop Games for Tonight Put Off to Friday

Because of an enterlainment that is to be held at the First Methodist Protestant church tonight the Sunday school league basketball contests scheduled to be played on the First Methodist Protestant floor have been postponed until tomorrow night, the Chester Presbyterians meeting the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal five. The game between the First Christians and the United Presbyterians, scheduled for tonight, will be played at a later date.

Runyon Says:

health, and a system for beating the races by legitimate methods."

The bookmaker will answer:

"You haven't got a chance!"

You may remember little Jack Sharkey, successful young bantamweight boxer of a few years back.

He was a real good fighter at his best, picturesque, colorful. He drew big crowds whenever he appeared in a boxing show in New York. He made considerable money.

Also he spent considerable money. The little man loved Broadway, with its lights, its crowds, its "good times." He did much dancing in cabarets, a pair of shiny patent leather shoes on his nimble feet.

He was a fine dancer. If he had covered as much territory in early morning road work through Central Park as he covered in dancing he would have maintained great physical condition.

The writer often used to see Sharkey skipping about the dance floors along Broadway, a good-natured, happy-go lucky little chap.

He wrote of Sharkey on several occasions that he would wind up where all fighters who do their training on Broadway wind up, past, present, and future.

You haven't heard much of him for some time, have you?

He left his fights on Broadway. The last time the writer saw him in a ring, the little fellow couldn't fight himself into a good perspiration. You had to feel sorry for Sharkey. He always was a pleasant little man.

He even flashed a faint smile on this occasion. Perhaps he was smiling at his own efforts, thinking of what he USED TO BE.

Now it seems that a friend has come to Sharkey's aid in an effort to send the little chap back to the ring in CONDITION.

The friend has adopted a novel method that may succeed. He is keeping Sharkey MENTALLY occupied. That is a good scheme. The trouble with the average boxer today is he doesn't have anything to THINK about when not in the ring.

Sharkey's friend is Humbert J. Fugazy, son of a wealthy banker, and well known himself in boxing and political circles. He has induced Sharkey to buy a billiard academy and bowling alley at 152 Bleecker street on the lower East Side.

This is the theory underlying Mr. Fugazy's advice:

By getting Sharkey to go into business, he gives Sharkey regular hours.

To keep the business going, Sharkey must be there at all times during the day. He must report at his place of business every morning at 7 o'clock. He leaves at 5 o'clock, and is in bed a few hours later.

Before he became a business man, Sharkey had no idea of the value of a dollar. He was open-handed, reckless. Now, as a business man, a dollar is a dollar to him. He is learning to take care of his money.

Sharkey has commenced to feel better, to look better.

He didn't want to go into business. He thought he could keep on fighting just as he was. It sometimes is quite difficult to make fighters realize tha they are "bad."

He appreciates the difference now that he has commenced to attain condition. A few months of regular living may send Sharkey back to the ring in his old form. In the meantime Shakey is winning his greatest victory, a victory over HIMSELF.

If any young boxer just starting out on his professional career wishes a few words of sage advice, he might well consult little Jack Sharkey.

Sharkey can tell him something that may be of immense value to the youth later on, when things are breaking nicely for him, the money pouring in and people telling him how good he is.

One thing you may be sure Sharkey will tell the young man is:

"Keep away from that Broadway!"

BIG MOMENTS in SPORT.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH,
International News Service Sport Editor.

No. 4.—When Tilden Gambled His All on One Shot.

William T. Tilden is not altogether immune to defeat. Vincent Richards has beaten him on occasions; Bill Johnston holds at least one important decision over him. So does Lindley Murray. But none of them can do much about it when the young man decides that he really owes it to himself to win.

Murray took a fall out of him in the national finals of 1918 and Johnston repeated the following year. That, however, was before Tilden became great. He has lost neither a Davis Cup nor a national championship match in the last five years. Once and once only was he as close as a dead heat to defeat in the national finals. And therein rests the plot.

It came in the national championships of 1922 at the Germantown Cricket Club, Philadelphia, and Johnston, volleying with deadly intensity and using his famed forehand drive to excellent purpose, had brought the situation to a head by winning the first two sets. He lost the third and the principals retired to the dressing room for intermission.

Johnston Outplayed.

Johnston had been outplayed in the third set, but he was a new man when he returned to the courts. He jockeyed Tilden out of position, forced the going at all times and altogether comported himself as a champion-in-prospect should. He won the first four games of the fourth set and was within eight points of the championship. He carried the points to love-forty in the fifth game and needed only five points to renew acquaintance with a title that had been his personal property in 1915 and 1919.

Driving hard to Tilden's backhand, he rushed the net with the laudable idea of volleying the game-point out of the champion's reach. Tilden was in the far corner of the court as he received the ball and his return was none too good. It was a weak lob that went directly to Johnston at the net, and as the ball rose in the air the gallery knew that only a miracle could prevent Johnston from winning the game, which almost inevitably would carry with it the set and match.

The miracle happened. As soon as he returned the ball Tilden began running toward the opposite corner of the court with a speed that only Tilden, among tennis players, can summon. Had Johnston crossed him by smashing to his original position, Tilden would have been caught on his feet flat. But Johnston didn't.

Does the Obvious.

He elected to do the obvious by smashing so hard to the extreme corner that when Tilden met the ball he was half way across the adjoining court. From that position he had a space about the size of a pocket handkerchief to shoot at and not the slighest chance of meeting Johnston's return volley, if any.

"As I ran to meet that ball," Tilden afterward explained to the writer, "I realized I was in the tightest position of my career. I decided to give the ball everything I had. It was not a moment in which to play safe. I just smashed the ball and hoped for the best."

He got it. Never has the writer seen a more perfect shot come back across the net. It was unreturnable as it whistled beyond Johnston's reach and ricocheted in mid-court for a perfect placement ace.

Somehow, fight as he would, Johnston was a beaten man from that moment. Ultimately, the points went to dence, and he lost the game. Ultimately, he lost the set. Ultimately, he lost the following set, the match and the title.

In the shadow of defeat that day Tilden was greater than ever he has been in victory.

Murrin May Break Into Mountaineer Lineup This Week

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 29.—There is a strong possibility that Clarence Murrin will break into the regular West Virginia university lineup while the Mountaineer basketball squad is on its annual between semester trip. In practice this week Coach Francis H. Stadsvold has been giving Murrin steady work at forward, and the former Parkersburg high athlete stands a good chance of getting into the Washington and Lee game at Charleston, W. Va., this Saturday and the battles with the University of Kentucky and Marietta college the first part of next week.

Murrin was not a member of the party that invaded western Pennsylvania on the first trip of the year and at that time is was thought that he had not been successful in his fight for a place on the varsity squad. He kept on fighting, and before notified that he would be able to carry nine players on this trip Coach Stadsvold started grooming Murrin for relief service. It was clear that he intended to have Murrin with the squad for the W. and L., Kentucky and Marietta engagements even if it had been necessary to leave one tof the men taken on the earlier jaunt at home.

Sunday School Loop Games for Tonight Put Off to Friday

Because of an entertainment that is to be held at the First Methodist Protestant church tonight the Sunday school league basketball contests scheduled to be played on the First Methodist Protestant floor have been postponed until tomorrow night, the Chester Presbyterians meeting the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal tive. The game between the First Christians and the United Presbyterians, scheduled for tonight, will be played at a later date.

Runyon Says:

health, and a system for beating the races by legitimate methods."

The bookmaker will answer:

"You haven't got a chance!"

You may remember little Jack Sharkey, successful young bantamweight boxer of a few years back.

He was a real good fighter at his best, picturesque, colorful. He drew big crowds whenever he appeared in a boxing show in New York. He made considerable money.

Also he spent considerable money. The little man loved Broadway, with its lights, its crowds, its "good times." He did much dancing in cabarets, a pair of shiny patent leather shoes on his nimble feet.

He was a fine dancer. If he had covered as much territory in early morning road work through Central Park as he covered in dancing he would have maintained great physical condition.

The writer often used to see Sharkey skipping about the dance floors along Broadway, a good-natured, happy-go lucky little chap.

He wrote of Sharkey on several occasions that he would wind up where all fighters who do their training on Broadway wind up, past, present, and future.

You haven't heard much of him for some time, have you?

He left his fights on Broadway. The last time the writer saw him in a ring, the little fellow couldn't fight himself into a good perspiration. You had to feel sorry for Sharkey. He always was a pleasant little man.

He even flashed a faint smile on this occasion. Perhaps he was smiling at his own efforts, thinking of what he USED TO BE.

Now it seems that a friend has come to Sharkey's aid in an effort to send the little chap back to the ring in CONDITION.

The friend has adopted a novel method that may succeed. He is keeping Sharkey MENTALLY occupied That is a good scheme. The trouble with the average boxer today is he doesn't have anything to THINK about when not in the ring.

Sharkey's friend is Humbert J Fugazy, son of a wealthy banker, and well known himself in boxing and political circles. He has induced Sharkey to buy a billiard academy and bowling alley at 152 Bleecker street on the lower East Side.

This is the theory underlying Mr. Fugazy's advice:

By getting Sharkey to go into business, he gives Sharkey regular hours.

To keep the business going, Sharkey must be there at all times during the day. He must report at his place of business every morning at 7 o'clock. He leaves at 5 o'clock, and is in bed a few hours later.

Before he became a business man, Sharkey had no idea of the value of a dollar. He was open-handed, reckless. Now as a business man, a dollar is a dollar to him. He is learning to take care of his money.

Sharkey has commenced to feel better to look better.

He didn't want to go into business. He thought he could keep on fighting just as he was. It sometimes is quite difficult to make fighters realize that they are "shad."

He appreciates the difference now that he has commenced to attain condition. A few months of regular living may send Sharkey back to the ring in his old form. In the meantime Sharkey is winning his greatest victory, a victory over HIMSELF.

If any young boxer just starting out on his professional career wishes a few words of sage advice, he might well consult little Jack Sharkey.

Sharkey can tell him something that may be of immense value to the youth later on, when things are breaking nicely for him, the money pouring in and people telling him how good he is.

One thing you may be sure Sharkey will tell the young man is:

"Keep away from that Broadway!"

BIG MOMENTS in SPORT.

No. 4.—When Tilden Gambled His All on One Shot.

William T. Tilden is not altogether immune to defeat. Vincent Richards has beaten him on occasions; Bill Johnston holds at least one important decision over him. So does Lindley Murray. But none of them can do much about it when the young man decides that he really owes it to himself to win.

Murray took a fall out of him in the national finals of 1918 and Johnston repeated the following year. That, however, was before Tilden became great. He has lost neither a Davis Cup nor a national championship match in the last five years. Once and once only was he as close as a dead heat to defeat in the national finals. And therein rests the plot.

It came in the national championships of 1922 at the Germantown Cricket Club, Philadelphia, and Johnston, volleying with deadly intensity and using his famed forehand drive to excellent purpose, had brought the situation to a head by winning the first two sets. He lost the third and the principals retired to the dressing room for intermission.

Johnston Outplayed.

Johnston had been outplayed in the third set, but he was a new man when he returned to the courts. He jockeyed Tilden out of position, forced the going at all times and altogether comported himself as a champion-in-prospect should. He won the first four games of the fourth set and was within eight points of the championship. He carried the points to love-forty in the fifth game and needed only five points to renew acquaintance with a title that had been his personal property in 1915 and 1919.

Driving hard to Tilden's backhand, he rushed the net with the laudable idea of volleying the game-point out of the champion's reach. Tilden was in the far corner of the court as he received the ball and his return was none too good. It was a weak lob that went directly to Johnston at the net, and as the ball rose in the air the gallery knew that only a miracle could prevent Johnston from winning the game, which almost inevitably would carry with it the set and match.

The miracle happened. As soon as he returned the ball Tilden began running toward the opposite corner of the court with a speed that only Tilden, among tennis players, can summon. Had Johnston crossed him by smashing to his original position, Tilden would have been caught on his feet flat. But Johnston didn't.

Does the Obvious.

He elected to do the obvious by smashing so hard to the extreme corner that when Tilden met the ball he was half way across the adjoining court. From that position he had a space about the size of a pocket handkerchief to shoot at and not the slighest chance of meeting Johnston's return volley, if any.

"As I ran to meet that ball," Tilden afterward explained to the writer, "I realized I was in the tightest position of my career. I decided to give the ball everything I had. It was not a moment in which to play safe. I just smashed the ball and hoped for the best."

He got it. Never has the writer seen a more perfect shot come back across the net. It was unreturnable as it whistled beyond Johnston's reach and ricocheted in mid-court for a perfect placement ace.

Somehow, fight as he would, Johnston was a beaten man from that moment. Ultimately, the points went to dence, and he lost the game. Ultimately, he lost the set. Ultimately, he lost the following set, the match and the title.

In the shadow of defeat that day Tilden was greater than ever he has been in victory.

EAST END POTTERS HEAR FORCEFUL TALK

Evangelist Kaye Speaks at Church of Christ Here.

A large crowd attended the services last evening at the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ, where Rev. Harry Kaye delivered one of the most forceful sermons of the campaign when he spoke to potters and their friends on the subject, "In the Potters House," which was found in the book of Jeremiah 18:3. His sermon subject for this evening is "The Credentials of Jesus."

He said in part as follows: "I believe that the potters' work is a business of art. At this day and age there are only a few that are willing to work hard, while the rest of us look for the easy jobs. Working in a pottery is not easy work, there are a lot of people in this world that are wanting to make money faster than they earn it.

"Jeremiah pictures man as a potter. God tonight is the potter, the wheel on which God is using, is my experience. God moulds us from an ugly mass of clay into a thing of beauty. He's taking us tonight and is trying to mould us into a thing of beauty. God wants no other material tonight but you and me.

"We find that the potter is right and that he has unlimited power. What we have belongs to God. God has the power and tonight he is moulding you and I as he wishes. Apart from God's will I have no part. God gives us a will to do, whether we choose to do right or wrong. He is not forcing any one to do right, but he is asking you to do right.

"I can will to do—right or wrong, but if I go to hell I have no one to blame but myself. Now is the time to open up to God's will. God and man are greater than the potter, than the clay. The potter and clay cannot communicate with God, but you and I can have a real communication whenever we desire, if we only trust our Christ.

"Old Lucifer said it is better to reign in hell than serve in heavea, that is what happened to him. He was kicked out of heaven because he rebelled, but I hope you are better than the devil. You cannot get away from God if you do serve the devil, because the devil is going to be put in chains, himself, God never created the devil. The devil created himself.

"The potter gains little, but the clay gains much. God has very little to gain through us. Instead of being a sinner out in this cruel sincursed world, as you are, you can be the child of a King. We find that the wheel is the church of Christ. Do the prayers that we utter tell the story of the old cross? Do the sermons that we preach tell the old, old story? If they don't there is something wrong.

"The Bible is our book of disciples. Our trials in this life are but the turning of the wheel. The thirty pieces of silver bought the potters' field. The Lord came that he might remould the wrecks that we find on the highways of life."

Who Was Blunderer at Jutland—Beatty or Jellicoe? Britain Asks

Who was responsible for the failure of the British to destroy the German fleet at Jutland, the greatest, yet most indecisive naval battle of modern times? The question is again agitating Britain, following the publication of a book by Admiral Sir Reginald Bacon in which Admiral Earl Beatty (right) is blamed. Until now the responsibility has rested largely upon Admiral Viscount Jellicoe (left).

A COUGH REMEDY WITHOUT OPIATES.

Many cough preparations contain some one or more harmful drugs which are added to take the place of opiates. None of these narotic substitutes have ever been used in FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND. The name of every ingredient is plainly printed on every carton. You know what you are taking when you take Foley's. It clings to the throat. Good for old and young. You have a cough, why not try it. Refuse substitutes. Sold everywhere.

Habitat

I build a house I call my own
To shut the city out,
With brick and mortar, wood and stone
I hedge myself about.

With bread and sweet philosophy
I arm myself within,
That I may view composedly
The city's dirt and sin.

But see, one window opens wide—
And may it never close—
For through it like a mighty tide
The city's music flows;

The wheels of work, the tears of sin—
Laughter to shake the skies—
And I who at the window lean
Am grown a little wise.

Don't Fuss With Mustard Plasters!

Musterole Works Without the Bliste.—Easier, Quicker

There's no sense in mixing a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can easily relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole.

Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of the present white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Stop Night Coughing This Simple Way

People who have persistent, annoying coughing spells at night, and who through loss of valuable sleep are weakening their systems and laying themselves open to dangerous infections, can stop their distressing trouble promptly by a very simple treatment. Hundreds who have hardly been able to rest at all for coughing, have gotten their full night's sleep the very first time they tried it.

The treatment is based on a remarkable prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You simply take a teaspoonful at night before retiring and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it, without following with water. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing. The result is that you usually sleep as soundly as a babe the very first night, and the entire cough condition goes in a very short time.

The prescription is highly recommended for coughs, chest colds, hoarseness and bronchitis, and is wonderful for children's coughs and spasmodic croup—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. It is on sale at all good druggists. Ask for

SICK WOMEN ATTENTION!

Norfolk, Virginia. — "If you only knew how many women and girls have taken your medicine by hearing my testimony, it would seem wonderful to you. Every day and every chance I have I advise some one to try it. It was in June, 1904, when I had given up to never get well, that I wrote to you. My husband went to the drug-store and brought the Vegetable Compound home to me. In a few days I began to improve and I have often taken it since. I am now passing through the Change of Life and still stick by it and am enjoying wonderful health. When I first started with your medicines I was a mere shadow. My health seemed to be gone. The last doctor I had said he would give me no more local treatments unless I went to the Hospital and was operated on. That was when I gave the doctors up. Now I am a healthy robust woman. I wish I could tell the world what a wonderful medicine Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is. I will be only too glad to answer letters from anywhere. I wish all sick women would take it."—Mrs. J. A. Jones, 317 Colley Avenue, Norfolk, Virginia.

The city's music flows;

The wheels of work, the tears of sin—
Laughter to shake the skies—
And I who at the window lean
Am grown a little wise.

Don't Fuss With Mustard Plasters!

Musterole Works Without the Bliste.—Easier, Quicker

There's no sense in mixing a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can easily relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole.

Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of the present white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

Stop Night Coughing This Simple Way

People who have persistent, annoying coughing spells at night, and who through loss of valuable sleep are weakening their systems and laying themselves open to dangerous infections, can stop their distressing trouble promptly by a very simple treatment. Hundreds who have hardly been able to rest at all for coughing, have gotten their full night's sleep the very first time they tried it.

The treatment is based on a remarkable prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You simply take a teaspoonful at night before retiring and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it, without following with water. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing. The result is that you usually sleep as soundly as a babe the very first night, and the entire cough condition goes in a very short time.

The prescription is highly recommended for coughs, chest colds, hoarseness and bronchitis, and is wonderful for children's coughs and spasmodic croup—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. It is on sale at all good druggists. Ask for

SICK WOMEN ATTENTION!

Norfolk, Virginia. — "If you only knew how many women and girls have taken your medicine by hearing my testimony, it would seem wonderful to you. Every day and every chance I have I advise some one to try it. It was in June, 1904, when I had given up to never get well, that I wrote to you. My husband went to the drug-store and brought the Vegetable Compound home to me. In a few days I began to improve and I have often taken it since. I am now passing through the Change of Life and still stick by it and am enjoying wonderful health. When I first started with your medicines I was a mere shadow. My health seemed to be gone. The last doctor I had said he would give me no more local treatments unless I went to the Hospital and was operated on. That was when I gave the doctors up. Now I am a healthy robust woman. I wish I could tell the world what a wonderful medicine Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is. I will be only too glad to answer letters from anywhere. I wish all sick women would take it."—Mrs. J. A. Jones, 317 Colley Avenue, Norfolk, Virginia.
